CIO HARVESTER UNION SPURNS FEDERAL PLEA

Threatens to Keep Plants Closed.

Highlights of the news from strike fronts in the midwest yesterday were:

CHICAGO—International Harvester company executives announced they would be glad to obey a request of the National Defense Mediation board and open all its plants, beginning Monday. The Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing committee [CIO], striking against the company, asserted the status of the strike had not changed and they would mass picket two Chicago plants Monday to prevent entrance of workers.

RICHMOND, IND.—Criminal charges were filed against 82 CIO pickets arrested Thursday when they attempted to keep 500 workers out of the reopened works of International Harvester. The plant continued to operate without further disorder.

WEST ALLIS, WIS.—The great Allis-Chalmers plant, strikebound for 65 days, was reopened with about 2,500 out of 7,800 workers reporting in defiance of CIO labor leaders who had threatened they would lose their jobs for respecting a "back to work" request by William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

HAMMOND—A federal injunction was issued forbidding the Steel Workers' Organizing committee from blocking the entrance to the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company plant in Gary, and limiting pickets to 10 to a gate. The SWOC immediately called off its dues collecting pickets.

ORDER MASS PICKETING

Officials of the striking Farm Equipment Workers Organizing committee [CIO] announced last night that a plea of the National Labor Mediation board that they return to work in International Harvester company plants on Monday "had not changed the status of the strike."

The company earlier in the day had telegraphed the board their willingness to open all plants and summon their workers back to their jobs.

The statement of the union was issued at the end of a meeting at 333 South Ashland avenue, attended by about 1,000 CIO representatives. It was made plain there that the officers at least had no intention of calling off the strike. They called for an "all out" picketing of Harvester works on Monday.

CIO Outlines Its Terms.

Strike issues, the prepared statement asserted, would have to be the basis for any discussions with the mediation board. Other conditions of

THE STRANGE STORY OF ONE OF COUNTY JAIL'S 'JONES' CASES

Attachés of the county jail recalled yesterday, in connection with the investigation of releases of prisoners by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green, the strange story of an inmate known as "one of the Jones boys."

This Jones suddenly emerged from an alcoholic fog one morning and demanded: "What jail is this and why am I in it?"

"Mr. Jones," said a polite guard, "this is the Cook county jail and you are in for reckless driving."

"Everything about this but the bars are phony," said the prisoner. "My name ain't Jones and I never drove a car in my life. It's mistaken identity and I want out."

The jailer notified Judge Green, who has admitted settling at least five "Joneses" in the jail for a cure and he ordered this one's release. "Jones" said as he left that all he could remember was that a well dressed stranger met him while he was spreeing in a tavern and persuaded him he had better go with him for anti-alcoholic treatment in a nice quiet sanitarium. "Jones" said he didn't think that meant the jail.

Denounces 21 Union Leaders as Communist

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, charged today that Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, is unwilling or unable to rid the CIO of communist influences.

In a letter to Murray, Dies named 21 CIO leaders who he said were communists and demanded:

"What are you going to do about communism in the CIO?"

"Abuse and Evasion."

Dies accused Murray of resorting to abuse and evasion in replying to previous demands that communists be expelled from the CIO.

"For three years," he wrote, "I have tried to get your organization to expel the communists, who are the greatest enemies of labor in any country. For three years you have sidestepped the issue. If your organization is not controled by communist influences you will immediately announce a policy of expelling all communists from your ranks and from positions of leadership.

A "Stupid Alliance."

"Communists and Nazis are now working in active coöperation thruout the world and in the United States to destroy the rights of labor. In America they are seeking to sabotage our national defense to insure a Hitler victory. Under these circumstances, howe can your organization in the name of labor continue your unnatural and stupid alliance with the communazi enemies of labor and democracy?

"The issue is squarely before you. The future of the laboring people in your organization depends upon the way in which you meet the issue."

The 21 Names.

"DONALD HENDERSON, head of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing, and Allied Workers of America, who was a member of the committee on appeals in the 1938 convention of the CIO.

"BEN GOLD, head of the International Fur and Leather Workers union, who was a member of the committee on rules and order of business in the 1938 convention.

A "Communist Organizer."

"KENNETH EGGERT, strike leader of the National Association of Die Casters and formerly section organizer for the communist party in Toledo, O.

"RALPH DAWSON, head of the Los Angeles CIO industrial council and communist of public record.

"JAMES J. MATLES, delegate to the 1938 CIO convention representing the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America, and member of the committee on appeals in that convention.

"ROBERT L. CRUDEN, member of the committee on press and publicity at the 1938 and 1940 conventions of the CIO.

Smelter Union Representative.

"JOHN HARVEY, delegate to the 1939 convention of the CIO, representing the International Union of Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers.

"ALBERT LAWRENCE SMITH, business agent for the CIO United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America.

"GEORGE KLEINMAN, member of the committee on press and publicity at the CIO convention in 1940. Kleinman is an instructor in the communist party's workers' school in New York.

"JOHN C. LAWSON, delegate to the 1938 and 1939 conventions of the CIO and member of committee on appeals in the 1938 CIO convention.

Furniture Union's Delegate.

"MORRIS PIZER, delegate to the 1940 CIO convention, representing the United Furniture Workers of America.

"IRVING POTASH, delegate to the 1938 and 1939 CIO conventions, representing the International Fur and Leather Workers union.

"ROBERT ROBINSON, delegate to the 1939 CIO convention, representing the State, County, and Municipal Workers of America.

'Gestapo Bill' Approved by House Group

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Francis Walter. [Acme Photo.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Ignoring charges of high-handed and irregular procedure, the house judiciary committee today approved a New Deal bill authorizing telephone wire tapping and other snoopihg methods employed by the secret police systems of foreign dictatorships.

The bill was reported by a vote of 13 to 7 after a motion to table it by Representative Francis E. Walter [D., Pa.] was rejected by a vote of 12 to 8.

Representative Walter, a consistent foe of administrative tyranny, which the Walter-Logan bill [vetoed by President Roosevelt] sought to curb, protested in vain against action on the wire tapping measure today. The committee's action was highly irregular, he complained, because the hearings conducted by a subcommittee had not been printed and the only record before the full committee was a letter by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson favoring the bill.

Evades Court Ruling.

Among other extraordinary aspects of the bill and its conduct by the administration, as noted by Walter and other opponents of the legislation, is that it takes the form of an amendment to the judicial code and not to the communications act of 1934. Section 605 of the communications act, as construed by the Supreme court, forbids interception of any communication, but instead of repealing or modifying that section the bill provides that "notwithstanding any other provision of law" the judicial code shall be amended to accomplish its purpose.

Pretext for Wallace.

The effect of this subterfuge was to send the bill to the judiciary committee instead of the house interstate commerce committee, which handles all communications commission legislation. Likewise, it would give Vice President Henry A. Wallace a pretext to refer the bill to the senate judiciary committee instead of to the inter-

REVEAL STAND ON AXIS PACT, BELGRADE TOLD

Jugo-Slavs Refuse to Ratify Treaty.

Vladimir Macek. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 28 (AP).—Viktor von Heeren, the German minister, tonight was reported authoritatively to have delivered a new two point note to the Jugo-Slav government, demanding a written answer on Jugo-Slavia's attitude toward the axis alliance and protesting the beating of Germans.

It was understood that Premier Gen. Dusan Simovitch's answer given this morning to Germany's "urgent request" for an exposition of Jugo-Slavia's attitude was considered unsatisfactory by the Berlin government.

Tonight's note was said to have reminded Jugo-Slavia that the axis pact is binding despite Jugo-Slavia's repudiation, in effect, of the treaty.

[The British radio last night quoted a Belgrade report as saying that Minister von Heeren had been recalled by Germany after he had had an audience with Simovitch.]

Maintains Neutrality.

The new Belgrade government earlier had informed Germany that the pact signed last Tuesday by the men who were overthrown two days later neither would be renounced nor ratified, but would be left dangling while Jugo-Slavia maintained "full and absolute" neutrality toward every one.

This amounts to outright repudiation, according to high diplomatic sources who said the Germans had been told flatly that compliance was "impossible because it would be contrary to the will of the Jugo-Slav people."

Jugo-Slav Army Ready.

The Jugo-Slav army, 1,200,000 strong, stood mobilized at the frontier, ready for any military threat. However, sharp interest shifted to Zagreb, where Vice Premier Vladimir Macek, the Croat leader, debated with his lieutenants whether to remain in the new cabinet.

Macek, a holdover from the "axis" government which was kicked out Thursday, was said to fear that Croatia, the northern part of the country, would bear the first fury of any German or Italian attacks. Thus, it was said, he desired fulfilment of the Vienna agreement of last Tuesday.

Macek was understood to be awaiting a reply from Premier Simovitch on what status the Croats would have under the new régime. Friends said the Croat leader was demanding a pledge that the Croat home rule not only would be maintained but would be increased.

Delivers U. S. Offer of Aid.

Arthur Bliss Lane, the American minister, delivered formally an American proffer of effective material aid to Jugo-Slavia in resisting aggression.

King Peter, who is 17 years old, swore on the cross to "keep forever the unity of the nation" and its independence.

The Turkish minister was reported to have proposed to Premier Simovitch a mutual assistance pact.

It was learned that German civilians living in Belgrade would be removed Monday on a Danube river boat to Vienna. Only diplomatic representatives and persons here on urgent business will remain.

King Peter Takes Oath.

But to the jubilant Belgrade public, the center of the universe was not in the council chambers or the frontier redoubts, but the altar of the Serb Orthodox cathedral.

There King Peter stood in the bright uniform of a general of aviation. The patriarch, in red and gold robes, presented a golden cross. Peter kissed it and intoned:

"I, Peter the second, ascending to the throne of the kingdom of Jugo-Slavia and taking over royal power, swear by God the Almighty that I will keep forever the unity of the nation, the independence of the country, and the integrity of state territory."

GERMANY TRIES TO MAKE LIGHT OF BALKAN BLOW

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—The Berlin press today was permitted to state that there was a coup d' etat in Jugo-Slavia yesterday and that "demonstrations unfriendly to Germany" took place.

An attempt was made to minimize the situation. Belgrade rioters were described as high school boys and other "half grown elements." It was declared that Germans were attacked, that the Swedish minister was "mishandled" when he ran into a crowd and tried to explain his way out by talking German, that show windows of big German business houses were smashed, and that women and children of Belgrade's German colony had to be placed under military guard in the German legation.

Germans Shocked.

It is an understatement to say that events in Jugo-Slavia have caused disappointment in high official circles. The more accurate word would be consternation. Neatly adjusted plans have been knocked out of shape, at least temporarily, and the axis diplomatic steamroller has struck a snag.

German government spokesmen were extremely cautious in their utterances. The German government is following developments in Jugo-Slavia with great interest, the press was told, but it was emphasized that so far there is no "official attitude." The absence of reliable reports of the exact situation at Belgrade was blamed for the vagueness of the German attitude.

The Tribune learned that three formal protests have been made with the new Belgrade government. Viktor von Heeren, the German minister, was said to have put questions to the Jugo-Slavs which so far have not been answered.

Expect Serbs to Stick.

Most important of these is whether or not the new Belgrade government intends to honor the obligations undertaken at Vienna by former Premier Dragisha Tsvetkovitch and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovitch, who, according to reports, are under arrest.

An official spokesman said it was assumed here that the present Belgrade government will honor the signature of the ousted government—meaning that Jugo-Slavia will stand by its adherence to the axis.

In unofficial circles the opinion was expressed that in the near future there will be no Jugo-Slavia as it now exists. Jugo-Slavia has been in danger of dislocation for years, having the "internal weakness of a state created by the Versailles treaty," these circles said.

Serbs Oppose Germans.

It appeared as if the Serbian part of the Jugo-Slav government is largely anti-German. Unofficial circles said the same is not true of the large "Croat part of the kingdom," the Croats being a people of predominantly German—or more accurately Austrian—culture. Likewise, it was said, the Slovenes—the third partner in the combination—are very much Germanized.

In addition, Jugo-Slavia has minorities, such as the Hungarians who were annexed to the country in the territory north of Belgrade and the river Sava, called the "Banat."

Prominent Jugo-Slavs have said they were skeptical of their country being able to weather any major crisis with an international aspect.

REPORT BROADCASTS FROM U. S. CALLED ON JUGO-SLAVS TO RISE

[By The New York News.]

New York, March 28.—While Prince Paul, former regent of Jugo-Slavia, negotiated with Berlin and his ministers traveled to Vienna to sign the axis pact, a call to the Jugo-Slav people to rise and take up arms against "the German oppressors" went on the air daily from the United States, it was learned today. Five million Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes are said to have listened to this call in cafés and public places and to have been encouraged by it to reject the German alliance.

Dr. Svetislav-Sveta Petrovitch, a Jugo-Slav writer and broadcaster, has been speaking to his people from WRUL, short wave station in Boston.

Dr. Petrovitch was back today in his New York apartment at the Park Chambers hotel after a week in Boston. During the last critical days, he said, he increased the frequency of his broadcasts to three a day, 15 minutes each. He will continue to speak daily from here.

U. S. WITH YOU, F. D. R. MESSAGE TO JUGO-SLAVS

Cables Greeting to Boy King.

U. S. Navy Mystery

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—A cryptic statement by the United States navy stirred speculation tonight that American warships might be kept indefinitely in the south Pacific for the sake of their moral influence on Japan. As a formidable squadron of seven fighting ships sailed away from Brisbane, Australia, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of operations, issued a statement that he had "no comment" as to its future destination. The navy said the statement was occasioned by "inquiries." The stay of the contingent already had been extended a week beyond the three day visit the navy had said was contemplated. Meanwhile the movements of a smaller force which visited New Zealand were screened in as complete official secrecy. Both contingents were ostensibly on training cruises from their normal operating bases in Hawaii. In a Pacific war any attempt to blockade Japan would be based in the south Pacific, strategists agree.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Sentiment among military experts and in noninterventionist circles tonight was that President Roosevelt and acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles have promised Jugo-Slavia more aid than we can fulfill.

Following a pledge yesterday by Welles, obviously upon instructions from Mr. Roosevelt, promising to the Jugo-Slav régime effective material assistance under the dictator act if Jugo-Slavs should choose to fight Germany, the President tonight cabled 17 year old King Peter II. further assurances of support.

The President's Message.

"At this moment when your majesty has assumed the full exercise of your royal rights and powers and the leadership of a brave and independent people, I wish to share with the people of the United States in the expression of our sincere and genuine wishes for the health and well being of your majesty and for the freedom and independence of Jugo-Slavia," Mr. Roosevelt cabled.

"Furthermore, I extend the hope that the relations between your government and the government of the United States may be mutually beneficial in the support of those principles of liberty and tolerance so cherished by the Jugo-Slav and American peoples."

Noninterventionists declared that the statements made by the President and Welles virtually commit the United States to war against Germany if this nation is to fulfill the pledges.

Britain Is Cautious.

Noninterventionists also observed that Great Britain has been cautious in its promises. Prime Minister Winston Churchill said yesterday: "We shall give all aid we can to those who are fighting to defend their freedom and their native land, and I am sure that the President of the United States will be actuated by the same generous feelings of sustaining those who are fighting to be free."

Military experts here were far less enthusiastic over the chances of effective American assistance when Jugo-Slavia might need it most. They also defeated some optimistic impressions of Jugo-Slav preparedness.

These experts said that our own arms shortage, plus difficulties of shipping into the Adriatic kingdom, means that the United States can do little at present to fulfill the pledges of its officials.

They Need No Rifles.

Experts said that rifles and motor trucks are about all the United States could spare them now but added that "the Jugo-Slavs need almost everything but rifles" and that trucks would be of little use for defensive war and guerrilla tactics in the rugged Jugo-Slav mountains.

While dispatches from abroad have placed the Jugo-Slav army at 1,200,000 men, reliable estimates in the capital put it as low as 700,000. The army is believed to be woefully short of mechanized equipment, antiaircraft guns, warplanes, and pilots.

CIO HARVESTER UNION SPURNS FEDERAL PLEA

Threaten Mass Action to Keep Plants Closed.

return were also outlined. These included the release of all CIO pickets arrested for disorders in Chicago and Richmond, Ind., and guarantees that no discrimination would be applied to strikers.

"The union members voted democratically to strike," it was asserted, "and they will vote the same way on a return."

A massmeeting of CIO men to decide on the picketing program was called for tomorrow at 10 a. m.

In the meeting last night Robert Travis, organizer, declared that "no scabs will pass into the Harvester works Monday."

"If we decide to march into McCormick works," he added, "the scabs there had better hunt their holes."

Earl Blanchard, another union official, said the tractor works would not open "Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday."

Two plants, the tractor works in Chicago and the Rock Falls, Ill., works, have been closed for weeks by CIO strikes. Two others, the McCormick works here and the Richmond, Ind., plant, were reopened this week at the request of workers, but are not at full efficiency because many CIO men are still out.

Telegram Sent to Board.

The Harvester telegram, signed by Fowler McCormick, second vice president, stated:

"In reply to your request of today the International Harvester company is glad to agree to resume production in the interests of national defense and to that end we will immediately notify all employés to report for work as soon as their departments can be placed in operating condition, beginning Monday, March 31. We are asking the striking unions to join us in meeting your request to resume production. We will be present at your office as requested at 10 o'clock Monday morning."

Officers of the newly organized AFL union at McCormick works promptly announced they were pleased to coöperate with the government and would urge all their members to continue at work.

"We regard the new development as a further AFL victory," said Irving Brown, organizer. "We had already demonstrated our desire to keep defense production moving."

The 6,000 workers at the tractor works have been idle for eight weeks and have lost about $1,600,000 in wages. If they return they will be in the same position as regards bargaining as they were when the walkout was staged.

FILE CRIMINAL CHARGES

BY HERMAN KOGAN.

Richmond, Ind., March 28 [Special]. —Criminal charges were filed here today by David B. Dennis, Wayne county prosecutor, against 82 persons who were arrested yesterday after a battle with police at the gates of the International Harvester plant. The prisoners, all CIO pickets, had attempted to block the entrance to nearly 500 men and women returning to work after a five week shutdown by a strike of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing committee.

Each of the prisoners was charged with conspiracy to commit murder, an offense punishable by fines ranging from $25 to $5,000 plus penitentiary sentences of from 2 to 14 years. They also were charged with unlawful assemblage and rioting. The latter are misdemeanors and carry penalties, fines, and jail sentences.

The CIO members were being held in two local detention houses—the 65 men in the county jail and the 17 women in Friendship house, a combination old peoples' and juvenile home. Bonds of $2,000 were fixed for each prisoner.

LIMIT PICKETS AT GARY

Judge Thomas W. Slick of the federal District court at Hammond, Ind., yesterday issued a restraining order forbidding the Steel Workers' Organizing committee from using force or intimidation in a drive to collect dues from workers in the Gary works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company.

The order specified that not more than 10 union pickets could be stationed at any one gate, in contrast to the thousands who gathered at the entrances Thursday and turned back many would-be workers who had failed to pay dues.

A few minutes after the issuance of the order, and before he had been formally notified of it, Frank Grider, the SWOC leader, pulled all pickets off the job.

"We are satisfied," he said, "and our object has been attained."

Independents Get Order.

Attorney Harry P. Sharavsky, representing an independent group of workers, obtained the order after he had had four independents testify that they were forcibly forbidden by the pickets to enter the plant Thursday night.

The attorney said the action was properly brought in the District court because some of the workers lived in states other than Indiana. A request that an injunction be issued to cover the same points will be heard by Judge Slick on Monday.

During the day about 300 pickets stood at the Broadway entrance to the plant, but confined themselves to asking the ingoing workers for union cards.

CIO Leaders Named as Reds

2,500 GO BACK TO WORK

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28 [Special].—Despite threats of the CIO, more than 2,500 men responded to the government's appeal to their patriotism today by returning to work at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company plant in West Allis. Thus the plant was able to resume limited production on $45,000,000 worth of armament contracts which had been tied up since the CIO union, local 248 of the United Automobile Workers, called a strike on Jan. 21.

The company asserted that more than 2,000 men had returned to work by noon and that 500 more reported for the evening shift. Union officials insisted that not more than 50 had gone back. However, a reporter who was taken on a tour of the vast 155 acre manufacturing area, was able to see that the company's figure was reasonable.

Test Will Come Today.

The test of whether the plant will be able to resume capacity production will come tomorrow. The union has called a massmeeting of its membership for 9 a. m. in the State Fair park, 5 miles west of the plant, when the question of prolonging the strike will be decided. The plant will operate tomorrow for any employés who wish to appear.

"I am sure that many of the people who are still out don't want to strike," said Gov. Julius P. Heil of Wisconson, who visited the plant today. "They have been misled by the union leaders.

"The company is not responsible for the strike. I believe all the employés will see the light and will be back at their jobs next week."

CIO Men Jeer Workers.

There was no violence when the men started coming back to work at 7 a. m. today. Elaborate precautions had been taken to guard against trouble. At the gates and in the vicinity of the plant were 200 regular deputies, 50 deputied Milwaukee policemen under Sheriff Joseph J. Shinners, and 46 West Allis policemen.

More than 2,500 CIO men, who are still striking, lined the approaches to the plant and jeered at the returning workers. The 2,500—they called themselves "observers," not pickets —shouted that all those who returned were traitors to labor and threatened that the latter would not have any jobs when the strike is settled. The company has assured those who return that their jobs will always be safe and that they are not dependent on the union for employment.

IRON HAND RULES ALLIS STRIKE; IT IS CHRISTOFFEL'S

1929 Apprentice Now Boss of Union.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28.—On April 14, 1929, the Allis-Chalmers company here engaged a tall, gangling boy of 16, as an apprentice in its electrical department.

The youth was Harold Christoffel, who now, at 28, is president of CIO local 248 of the United Automobile Workers union, the unquestioned one man power behind the strike which was called at the Allis-Chalmers plant last January by a vote which the union itself has admitted was fraudulent. The strike has tied up 45 million dollars in armaments orders and kept 8,000 workers idle for 10 weeks.

His Word Is Absolute.

It was Christoffel's "no" in defiance of the order of government officials in Washington that kept a large percentage of the 8,000 employés from returning to work today. It will be chiefly his personal influence that decides whether the men will vote tomorrow to return to work. It also will be Christoffel who must bear the brunt of whatever action government officials may take if the union insists on continuing the strike.

Christoffel's power over the union and, thru the union, over Allis-Chalmers employés, is almost absolute. Many of the men are said to fear him, but many of the younger ones admire him and try to ape his abruptness of speech and curtness.

His chief characteristic as a boy was his shyness, and he says he still is shy.

Denies Red Charges.

There have been many charges that Christoffel is a communist, but he denies them all.

At the union meeting tomorrow Christoffel faces a crisis. If he can hold the membership with him against returning to work, he will have defied the government. If the men vote him down, it will be his first serious upset.

600 STOCKYARD WORKERS VOTE A STRIKE CALL

Six hundred members of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, local 44 [CIO], voted unanimously last night to strike against the Union Stock Yards and Transit Co. and empowered a committee of 10 to call the strike at any time. Announcement of the strike vote, taken in union headquarters at 4758 South Marshfield avenue, was made by Frank McCarty, Chicago district director.

The union action followed the breakdown earlier yesterday of negotiations between the union and company representatives. The union is demanding the rehiring of Frank Monahan, PWOC steward suspended for refusing to allow the unloading of a carload of pigs from a strikebound shipper. Other demands are a 20 cents an hour increase in the minimum wage [to 75 cents], a closed shop, and an eight hour day.

McCarty said that the strike may begin Monday if an agreement with the company is not reached today. The union has asked both Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green to intercede. About 75 per cent of the live stock entering Chicago would be affected by a strike, McCarty estimated. The other 25 per cent is shipped direct to packers.

STEEL WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN CINCINNATI AREA

Union Leader Admits He Can't Explain It.

Cincinnati, O., March 28 (AP).—An unofficially estimated 850 AFL steel workers in 18 Greater Cincinnati plants either went on strike or were reported considering a walkout today. They are members of local No. 522, International Association of Iron, Bridge, and Steel Workers.

Issues were reported to include a new contract involving a pay increase of 10 cents hourly, seniority rights, and vacations of one week, but the situation apparently was not clear to Al Krueger, business agent for the union:

"I don't understand it myself," he said. "I can't make any statement until I find out about it."

Reports Covington Walkout.

Charles Costello, president of the Stewart Iron Works company, Covington, Ky., said approximately 300 men were on strike there, delaying work on armaments orders.

Ed Grimm, president of the Grimm Iron works, spokesman for six firms united as the Iron League of Cincinnati, said a number of the affected firms were turning out material in the national preparedness program.

Officials of the Michael Art Bronze company said the strike affected 59 men, while spokesmen for the Fries & Son Steel and Manufacturing company, manufacturers of jail cells, reported a contract covering 50 employés was due to expire Saturday.

Other Labor Developments.

Labor developments in other parts of the nation today were as follows:

PARKERSBURG, W. Va.—The CIO Steel Workers organizing committee called a strike today at the Parkersburg Iron and Steel company plant when joint negotiators failed to agree on union demands for a contract. Ward McCabe, SWOC organizer, ordered the plant's 450 workers from their jobs when the negotiating committees announced that they were in accord on every demand excepting a wage clause. The plant has been making stovepipes for army camps.

BOSTON, Mass.—A four day strike ended, 900 employés of the Walworth Manufacturing company's South Boston plant went back today to their jobs of making valves and pipe fittings for naval vessels. The employés, at a massmeeting last night, ratified an agreement described by Charles H. Cole, chairman of the Massachusetts board of conciliation and arbitration, as providing wage increases and other concessions. The employés are members of the CIO Steel Workers' Organizing committee.

End Tube Firm Strike.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa.—A 24-hour shutdown ended today at the Babcock and Wilcox tube company and CIO pickets were withdrawn from the gates of the plant, which employs 2,600 men. The pickets, posted during a membership drive by the Steel Workers Organizing committee, were called off by Bert Hough, SWOC organizer, allowing the 7 p. m. shift to return to work on armament orders.

DETROIT, Mich.—The United Automobile Workers [CIO] announced today an informal settlement has been reached in the 18 day strike at the Midland Steel Products corporation plant here. The Midland strike had forced suspension of production at the Lincoln Motor company and threatened to curtail operations in other automobile plants. Leo Lamotte, regional UAW-CIO director, said union members would hold a massmeeting tomorrow to ratify the agreement. The Midland plant, employing 1,700 persons, has been closed since March 10 over issues involving piecework abolition and wage adjustments.

U. of Michigan Regents Refuse to Deal with CIO

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 28 [Special].—Without comment, the University of Michigan board of regents today refused to enter into collective bargaining negotiations with the State, County, and Municipal workers of America, a CIO union. The union claims it represents a majority of the employés of the university and university hospital.

NEW BETHLEHEM STRIKE BEGINS AS ONE IS SETTLED

Report 11,000 Out at Big Cambria Mills.

Johnstown, Pa., March 28 (AP).—CIO unionists, protesting against an election by a rival bargaining agency, walked out of the Bethlehem steel company's sprawling Cambria works today in what leaders described as an "indefinite stoppage" that may continue "three days or three weeks."

The issue was the same in the disputes at Johnstown and Bethlehem. The CIO's steel workers organizing committee objected to an election of 60 bargaining representatives by the Employés Representation Plan [ERP], which the National Labor board has ordered abolished on the ground it is a company-dominated union. The ERP has appealed to the courts.

Effectiveness Is Disputed.

Union and management spokesmen disputed the effectiveness of the walkout here, which was carried out quietly. There was no picketing and no violence.

James Gent, subregional director of the CIO, claimed 11,000 of the 15,000 employés quit work and that there was 100 per cent stoppage of steel production and 80 per cent shutdown in finishing departments.

A company spokesman, on the other hand, contended only a relatively small number of workmen joined the walkout and that steel production was still under way. He said operations were curtailed, but "not seriously."

After conferring with Gent and company representatives, Arthur Riley, federal conciliator, said tonight he believed the difficulties would be settled by Monday. He said he hoped to bring the management and union together in a conference tomorrow.

BETHLEHEM PLANT REOPENS

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bethlehem, Pa., March 28.—The turbulent four day strike at the huge parent plant of the Bethlehem Steel company, which employs 18,000 workers, came to an end here today. After a storm-torn period in which automobiles were tossed into the river, 13 were injured, and troopers patroled the town, a sudden break halted the labor battle. Who won and why was a subject of street corner controversies as the plant resumed work on large armaments orders.

Cheering workers hurried back into the plant after they had ratified a four point peace program: This was done in a union meeting at which John Riffe, Steel Workers Organizing committee regional director, announced the peace program as follows:

1. All strikers will return to their jobs without loss of seniority and without discrimination.

2. The company will continue to meet and deal with representatives of its company in collective bargaining.

Firm to Deal with SWOC.

3. The company will continue to deal with the SWOC as the collective bargaining agency for its members and will accord it equal privileges and opportunities, including a mutually acceptable manner of handling grievances. This clause includes wages, working conditions, and "anything else that might arise."

4. Future action with reference to the selection of an exclusive bargaining agency should wait until final disposition of the case now pending in court. [This refers to the United States Supreme court action concerning the Employés' Representation Plan.]

The CIO officials called the strike on the contention that the ERP should not be permitted to hold an election on company property. This union, called company dominated by the CIO and an independent organization by the company, is now electing officers for future bargaining with the company.

SHIPYARD STRIKE IMPENDS

Hoboken, N. J., March 28 (AP).—The CIO industrial union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, local 15, empowered its executive committee tonight to call a strike of the 1,500 workers in the Hoboken shipyards of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Simultaneously, a meeting of Brooklyn, N. Y., local 13, which claims representation for 3,500 employed in two other Bethlehem shipyards, named a negotiating committee to confer with the company Monday, when a federal conciliator is expected to be present.

The Hoboken local has been negotiating for eight weeks with Bethlehem on a contract. A union spokesman said the negotiations were to form the basis for the three New York harbor yards. The dispute centered on what the union described as failure of these negotiations.

Charles Brecht, national representative at the Hoboken union office, said: "We shall use every means offered by the United States government, the national labor board and any other federal conciliation service before we call a strike."

PLAN HEARINGS ON EXTENSION OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

The city council judiciary committee announced yesterday that it will hold public hearings soon on the question of extending daylight time to the last Sunday in October. Daylight time at present is authorized from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.

Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] made the extension proposal on the plea that October is a beautiful month, and Chicagoans ought not be deprived of an extra hour of daylight daily during the month. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes recently ruled the city council has the right to extend daylight time without a public referendum.

DYKSTRA HEADS U. S. MEDIATORS FOR HARVESTER

Board of Five Is to Hear Labor Dispute.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—The national mediation board appealed to workers and management in four strikebound plants today to resume operations immediately on important rearmament contracts pending orderly mediation of the disputes.

Soon afterwards settlement was announced in one of the cases, the Universal-Cyclops Steel corporation, Bridgeville, Pa., where 1,400 CIO workers have been on a strike since Feb. 21. Acceptance of the terms will automatically remove the company from the list of mediation cases.

The company holds $441,000 worth of contracts for special steel for bullet cores and fuses for signal apparatus. The contracts are regarded as among the most important let for army ordnance.

Names Harvester Board.

Meanwhile the mediation board was acting swiftly to deal with labor disputes. A five man panel of board members was appointed to conduct hearings beginning Monday into strikes at four plants of the International Harvester company, which holds government orders totaling more than 8 million dollars.

Panels of three men each were appointed to hear the other disputes certified to the board of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Beside the Universal-Cyclops case, these disputes involve the Vanadium corporation, also in Bridgeville, and the Cornell-Dubilier company [also known as the Condenser corporation], South Plainfield, N. J.

Contracts tied up at Vanadium and Cornell-Dubilier total more than $50,000, in each case for highly specialized ordnance production.

Strike Legislation Looms.

Secretary Perkins certified the disputes by telephone to the mediation board from the west coast. Her action, the first since the board was appointed on March 19, was viewed as an admission that normal efforts by her department towards a settlement had been unavailing.

Miss Perkins, like most of the other cabinet members, is vacationing. Despite the general alarm over the affect of the strikes on the preparedness program, only Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard have remained in the capital since Mr. Roosevelt went fishing.

The labor secretary handed the mediation cases over to the new board soon after the current labor disorders touched off a series of heated discussions in congress reflecting a brewing storm which many believe is about to burst into full force with the passage of stringent antistrike legislation.

Notifications Sent Out.

Telegrams notifying principals in the disputes of the start of the hearings were sent out today by William H. Davis, vice chairman of the mediation board, who conferred earlier with Ernest P. Marsh, the board's executive secretary. Both received instruction by telephone from the chairman, Clarence A. Dykstra, from his home in Madison, Wis.

"This board is asking you to take action as follows," stated the messages, virtually the same in all cases. "First, that you agree today with your adversary to resume production and, second, that in any event and without fail you appear before this board . . . so that we may try to adjust all points in dispute and settle this controversy by common agreement while production is going on and thereby speed up production of essential defense material at this time of great national emergency."

Observers noted that unless both sides agree voluntarily to resume work the board's appeal will have little effect. The President's executive order which created the board has been criticized in congress because there was nothing in it empowering the group to enforce its decisions or orders. Legislation for this purpose is pending in the house.

Harvester Mediators.

In the International Harvester dispute copies of the telegram were sent to Fowler McCormick, vice president of the company, and Grant Oakes, chairman of the CIO-FEWOC. Board members who will consider this case are Chairman Dykstra, who represents the public; Philip Murray, CIO president, and George M. Harrison of the AFL, representing labor, and Walter C. Teagle of the Standard Oil company, and Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, representing management.

The board meetings will not be open to the public, it was announced. Asked why a five man panel had been appointed to hear the International Harvester dispute while only three man panels were appointed for the others, Davis replied that it had been considered "the best policy." Asked whether it has anything to do with the violence which has occurred at Harvester plants, he said:

"Draw your own conclusions."

Other Panels Chosen.

Following are the panels chosen to hear the other disputes:

Vanadium corporation—William H. Davis, New York patent lawyer, for the public; Thomas Kennedy of Pennsylvania, secretary-treasurer of the CIO mine workers; Roger D. Lapham, president of the American-Hawaiian Steamship company, for management.

Cornell-Dubilier company — Davis, Harrison, and Cyrus Ching, vice president of the United States Rubber corporation, for management.

Federal conciliators assigned to these disputes had been ordered to continue their efforts to reach a settlement. It has been reported that prospects for a settlement were good at Cornell-Dubilier.

Order Killer Held

Mrs. Nedra Evans as she appeared at inquest.

A coroner's jury recommended yesterday that William M. Evans, 25 years old, be held to the grand jury on two charges of murder for the fatal stabbing of his son, Douglas, 2, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. William J. Sanders.

William M. Evans.

Murder indictments will be sought before the grand jury next Tuesday, the state's attorney's office announced. Another indictment charging assault with intent to kill will be sought in connection with Evans' attack on his estranged wife, Nedra, a model, who was slashed. The attack occurred last Saturday in the Sanders home at 3208 South Grove avenue, Berwyn.

Both Evans and his wife appeared yesterday at the inquest in Berwyn, conducted by Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny. Neither testified. Both wept at times during the hearing. Among the witnesses were James Locke, 1828 Fairview avenue, Park Ridge, a salesman, who helped take the knife away from Evans after the stabbings, and Sergt. Charles Rudderham of the Berwyn force, who placed Evans under arrest.

Harvester Striker Dies After Suicidal Plunge

John Niedospial, 40 years old, of 2620 22d street, a striking employé of the tractor works of International Harvester company, who stabbed himself and then fell or jumped from a second floor porch at 2500 South Western avenue on Wednesday, died yesterday in County hospital. The police were unable to determine his motive for killing himself.

TWO INDICTED FOR BURGLARY.

Joseph Lotta, 26 years old, and his brother, Leo, 24, both of 833 Iroquois street, were indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of looting a chili parlor at 2000 Hastings street.

RUSH TEXAS BILL FOR PENALTIES IN STRIKE VIOLENCE

Austin, Tex., March 27 (AP).—Passed overwhelmingly by the Texas house of representatives within three days after its submission by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, a bill placing heavy penalties on violent strike activities is pending in the senate. The bill was passed by the house yesterday by a vote of 112 to 17 after spokesmen for organized labor had voiced objections to it.

The bill would make it a felony, punishable by imprisonment from one to two years, for "any person by the use of force or violence, or threat of its use, to attempt to prevent any person from engaging in any lawful vocation within this state."

Oklahoma Curb Sought.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 28 (AP).—A bill placing drastic restrictions on strikes and picketing is pending before the Oklahoma senate committee on commerce and labor. It would require a 60 day notice before a strike could be called, would prohibit picketing within 100 feet of a place of business, and would forbid pickets to interfere with anyone attempting to pass a picket line.

FLOWER SHOWER IN MARSEILLES HAILS SERBS' ACT

Thousands Defy Police in Demonstration.

MARSEILLES, France, March 28 (AP).—Many thousands of French poured today and tonight thru La Canebiere, Marseilles' proudest promenade, singing and shouting their joy in the resurgence of Jugo-Slavia and heaping a mountain of flowers about the spot where King Alexander I. was assassinated seven years ago.

It was a spontaneous demonstration which swelled in size and volume by the hour, and the 200 police who were called out were unable to halt it.

Assembled by little more than the whispered word that Jugo-Slavia had defied Berlin, they milled thru the promenade and into the Place de la Bourse, at the harbor end, crying "Long live Serbia!" and singing the Marseillaise.

Pay Silent Tribute.

This anthem of France and its stirring "Marchons! Marchons!" was carried thru France by the revolutionary volunteers of Marseilles in 1792.

The crowd stood silently late tonight, unmoving, in obvious demonstration. Many young persons stood near the monument to Alexander. The square was full of flowers, bouquets of red, white, and blue strewn in the street.

Inside the prefecture on the Place de la Bourse, soldiers carrying rifles were held ready for any rioting, but none developed. Only once did the demonstration cause police action. Then, several loads of demonstrators were taken away in cars.

Late in the day all florist shops were closed to prevent further demonstrations. Within an hour or so wreaths and bouquets made of paper began piling up on top of the natural blossoms before the plaque commemorating Alexander's memory.

Children Toss Posies.

Police tried roping this area off, but little children squirmed thru their legs to toss posies, and their fathers and mothers swarmed on Marseilles' clanging trolley cars, showering the space with flowers from the windows as they rode past.

The loudest cheers of all came when members of the Jugo-Slav colony and the "poilus of the east association" arrived to decorate the monument.

King Alexander, father of 17 year old King Peter of Jugo-Slavia, was assassinated here with the French foreign minister, Louis Barthou, when he arrived on a good will mission Oct. 9, 1934. The actual assassin, a Croat terrorist, was slain on the spot. Three Croats were sentenced to life imprisonment for complicity in 1936.

[No mention of the Marseilles incidents was made in Vichy, capital of unoccupied France. Marseilles has been the principal center of resistance to French collaboration with Germany's so-called new order.]

JAP MINISTER HAS A SURPRISE TALK WITH RIBBENTROP

BERLIN, March 28 (AP).—Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka had a second and unscheduled meeting with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop today. Observers believed that the sudden change in axis prospects in Jugo-Slavia might have had something to do with it.

Informed quarters hinted strongly that Japan must make up her mind whether she will enter actively into the fight against the English—Singapore was specifically mentioned as one point where she could make her weight felt—or whether she wants to face alone both the United States and Britain in the far east. If Japan stays on the bench she may find Italy and Germany disinterested in her ambitions later when they are victorious, it was hinted.

Matsuoka also conferred with Economics Minister Walther Funk and met many high ranking Nazi party and military leaders at a luncheon given by Fuehrer Hitler.

BANDITS STEAL SLOT MACHINES.

Streator, Ill., March 28 (AP).—Three men held up Hubert Schmitz in his tavern near here today, seizing $100 in cash and three slot machines. They drove off in a car bearing license plates which had been issued to an Edgewood, Ill., clergyman. Police said he had reported the plates stolen.

state commerce committee, which is headed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.]. When the house passed a similar bill last year, Senator Wheeler's committee killed it.

Restricted to FBI.

As originally drafted by the justice department and introduced by Representative Sam Hobbs [D., Ala.], the bill authorized the head of any government department to permit wire tapping by his secret operatives on the mere suspicion that any felony had been, was being, or was about to be committed.

As reported today the bill authorizes only the Federal Bureau of Investigation, headed by J. Edgar Hoover, to "intercept, listen in on, or record telephone, telegraph, or radio messages or communications."

The FBI may resort to such eavesdropping only when the attorney general believes and certifies that a felony cognizable under any federal law relating to espionage, sabotage, the transportation of kidnaped persons in interstate commerce, or the transmission of threatening or extortion communications thru the mails or in interstate commerce, may have been, is being, or may be about to be committed.

"Be Specific" Amendment.

An amendment by Representative Charles F. McLaughlin [D., Neb.] requires the attorney general, in making his certification, to set forth the facts forming the basis of his belief. Members of the committee had expressed the fear that the certification would become a mere form, or rubber stamp, available to any G-man or request.

The bill makes it a felony, punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than two years, for any person to use any intercepted information except in connection with the investigation, detection, prevention, or prosecution of the enumerated offenses.

CLAIMS GERMANS SEND 200,000 MORE TROOPS TO ARMY IN BULGARIA

ANKARA, Turkey, March 28 (AP).—Germany is sending an additional 200,000 troops into Bulgaria to augment her striking force already estimated at more than 300,000, a neutral diplomat who came from Bucharest by way of Sofia, said tonight. Unofficial reports also said that British troops continued to land in Greece, including the key Ægean port of Salonika.

The diplomat said German forces in southern Bulgaria were forced to rely on horses and mules for transport because of bad roads. Few Germans were stationed on the Bulgarian-Turkish frontier, he said, but many Bulgarian soldiers were in position there.

Japs Order Meatless Days to Get Supplies for Homes

TOKIO, March 28.—The introduction of meatless days, beginning in April, has been decided upon by the ministry of agriculture and forestry. A regulation said "if possible" such a day is to be observed weekly by butcher shops and restaurants to alleviate a shortage caused by a cornering of the supply that permitted restaurants and cafés to serve plenty of meat while householders had difficulty in getting any.

VISIT TO FRENCH CAMPS REVEALS REFUGEE PLIGHT

Food Shortage Increases Woes of 50,000.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, March 28.—France's food problem in the unoccupied zone is aggravated by the fact that at least 50,000 foreigners are maintained in concentration camps along the Pyrenees border at an estimated annual public expense of 400,000,000 francs [about $8,000,000]. Eight camps exist, according to official figures, but there may be more and the number interned may run above 50,000.

Administration of these camps, predominently occupied by German and Polish Jews, and Spanish republicans [anti-Fascists] has been criticized in America. In response to this, the French government organized a visit to five camps by American correspondents and photographers.

The general impression gained by THE TRIBUNE correspondent is that four of the five camps visited in four days are as well conducted as possible, considering this country's difficulties in looking after its own population at present, when undernourishment is widely prevalent.

In the first four camps, those at Recebedou, Noe, and Vernet-les-Baines, near Toulouse, and Rivesaltes, near Perpignan, where, respectively, there are 2,060, 1,600, 3,500, and 8,000 inmates, conditions are not pleasant. But conditions are tolerable from a material viewpoint and perhaps in many cases better than those under which some lived after escaping from central Europe or Spain.

The fifth camp, at Argeles-sur-Mer, where only a short visit was permitted and that at dusk, presented deplorable aspects which might be corrected with attention to sanitation and provision of barracks.

French authorities explain that this camp, which is south of Perpignan, soon will be discontinued and its occupants sent to other camps. Even the short visit disclosed that this would be a good thing in the interests of relieving human misery. The occupants are mostly former Spanish government soldiers and refugees. Most have been there for two or three years. They include 8,000 men, 4,000 women, and 2,500 babies and children living under the most squalid conditions.

Riot at Argeles.

Last Sunday, it was admitted, riots which had to be quelled by the guards, occurred at the Argeles camp. Some were wounded and it was reported some were killed. It was officially explained that the inmates objected to being sent to other camps. Unofficial reports were that the inmates objected to being transported to north Africa to serve in labor battalions now being organized to construct a new railway across the Sahara desert.

Most of the refugees dream of getting to the United States. This is particularly true among the Polish and German Jews.

4 U. S. MISSIONARIES ARE SEIZED IN COREA; WAR PLOT IS CHARGED

TOKIO, March 29, Saturday (AP).—United States Consul General O. Gaylord Marsh, stationed at Keijo, Corea, today was reported making every effort to help four American missionaries arrested by the Japanese on charges of plotting a campaign in Corea against Japan's war in China.

Reliable reports, however, said the four would be placed on trial and that assistance from the American embassy in Tokio likely would be necessary to augment Marsh's efforts. Marsh at first erroneously was reported among those arrested.

A. Dr. Clark and eight women missionaries were seized, but were released after questioning, it was reported in Tokio. Those still held were reported to be Dr. D. S. Lowe, Alice M. Butts, Herbert P. Blair, and Otto De Camp.

BRITISH PREDICT E. AFRICAN WAR TO BE WON SOON

Pursue Italians After Capturing Keren.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 28 (AP).—A prediction that "the end of the East African campaign is in sight" was voiced jubilantly tonight by British army men who reported the Italians in disordered flight down the road to Asmara, Eritrean capital, following the British capture of Keren, the Fascists' African "Verdun."

Uncounted thousands of prisoners and vast quantities of war stores were taken, the British announced, in the rout of the 35,000 Fascist defenders of the Eritrean mountain fortress which fell late Wednesday.

The conquering imperial forces, including a column of "free French" troops, swept on past the captured town and were reported close on the heels of the Fascists headed for Asmara, 42 miles to the southeast.

With Italian resistance at Keren smashed after a seven week siege and other British columns boring deeper into Ethiopia, the feeling grew in British quarters here that it would not be long before Premier Mussolini's men are thrown out of their colonial empire completely.

Weak Defenses at Asmara.

"All the Italians' energy went into the defense of Keren," a British army spokesman said. "It is not unduly optimistic to prophesy that the end of the East African campaign is in sight."

He said that Asmara, unlike Keren, had few natural defenses and only scant man made ones, unless new fortifications have been thrown up in the last 30 days.

The walled city of Harrar in Ethiopia, which fell the same day as Keren, was taken almost without casualties, advices from the front said. The Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad, lifeline of the Italian forces in eastern Ethiopia, is some 25 miles northwest of Harrar and is the immediate objective of the British force moving from Harrar.

Calato, on the Dodecanese Island of Rhodes in the eastern Mediterranean, came in for another RAF attack yesterday. Pilots said fires they started in fuel dumps could be seen for 100 miles.

Italy Admits Losses.

ROME, March 28 (AP).—The Italian high command today said the important walled city of Harrar in Ethiopia had been evacuated "to avert its bombing" and acknowledged British occupation of the Italian fortress of Keren in Eritrea.

The communique also said Italian assault craft had sunk an "enemy" warship in Suda bay on the Greek Island of Crete. The attack occurred March 25.

Nazis Say British Retreated.

BERLIN, March 28 (AP).—Informed Germans today said that the British, "in precipitate retreat," left behind airplane motors, bombs, machine guns, ammunition, and gasoline when Nazi forces took El Agheila, a British outpost southwest of Bengazi, Libya, Tuesday.

[The British said El Agheila was abandoned before the Germans entered and minimized its importance.]

GREEKS INFORM ITALIAN TROOPS OF SERB ACTION

ATHENS, Greece, March 28 (AP).—With loudspeakers blaring across Albanian battle lines and showers of plane borne leaflets the Greeks today told their Italian foes that Jugo-Slavia had turned against the axis.

[Other dispatches said newspapers in Athens gave considerable space yesterday to foreign reports that Italy soon would sue for peace in view of her defeats in Albania and the change of régimes in Jugo-Slavia.]

The Greek ministry of marine announced that the 5,451 ton Italian supply ship Carnia was destroyed March 23 in an attack by the Greek submarine Triton.

Premier of New Zealand to Confer with Churchill

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 28.—Prime Minister Peter Fraser today informed the house of representatives that he intends to accept British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's invitation to go to London to confer on war plans. Fraser said he might not return prior to June 25, but did not say when he would leave England.

GERMANS REDUCE WHEAT IN BREAD; USE RYE INSTEAD

Dwindling Reserves May Be Cause.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—Dwindling wheat reserves may be the cause of new bread and flour rationing measures announced in the German press today. Food ration cards for the 22d rationing period, extending from April 7 to May 4, will bring a change in the meal and bread tickets affecting the proportion of rye and wheat flour in bakers' products.

Openly admitting that the consumption of wheat products has increased "very considerably" since the beginning of the war, the official announcement of the new measure emphasized the necessity of altering the bread cards in such a way as to prevent a further increase in wheat flour consumption.

The German people were told that the country's reserves of wheat flour must be protected from being used up "sooner than planned."

Divide Reich Into Four Zones.

Total rations of bread and flour apportioned to each German remain the same, the authorities hastened to point out, but the proportion of rye to wheat flour will be raised. The whole area of the reich is to be divided into four zones, in which these proportions are to be adjusted so as to conform to the traditional local bread recipes.

The proportions of rye to wheat will vary from 70 per cent rye flour for most of northern Germany to a 40 per cent rye admixture in white bread baked in the southwest provinces.

The three largest cities of Germany, Berlin, Vienna, and Hamburg, will get a half and half mixture of rye and wheat in their loaves. Children up to 6 years of age may still obtain white bread.

Wheat Shortage in France.

VICHY, France, March 28 (AP).—Despite a barter agreement with the occupied zone and imports from colonies, unoccupied France has a wheat shortage of 490,000 tons [16,333,334 bushels], Jean Achard, secretary of food supply, told American correspondents today.

This figure, Achard added, was presented to the American government during the recent negotiations for experimental shipments of American grain and other foodstuffs to unoccupied France. The hitherto little publicized exchange agreement between the two zones had brought from Washington a demand on Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy for a full report.

[Preparations already had been made for a shipment of two Red Cross cargoes of flour to France.]

Picketed Worker and Two Children PicketUnionHead

New York, March 28 [Special].—Joe O'Shea, a member of the Transport Workers' union, whose home has been picketed by other members in an effort to "bring him back into good standing," reversed the order today by picketing the home of Michael Quill, head of the union. While O'Shea carried a sign saying, "Mike Quill invaded our home for dues we don't owe him," his son, Kevin, 2 years old, and daughter, Maureen, 5, carried signs charging Quill had made their mother ill. The union recently tied up New York bus service by striking.

MANY NOTABLES HAIL PARAGRAPH FROM LINDBERGH

New York, March 28 (AP).—Amos Pinchot, New York, lawyer, announced tonight that a group of prominent citizens had indorsed as their own sentiment a paragraph in Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's recently published "Letter to Americans."

The paragraph read: "If we desire unity and strength among our people, we must turn our eyes back from these everlasting wars of Europe—back to our own country, to the clear horizons of a great American future. Let us learn from the errors made by the democracies abroad and not repeat them. Let us give thanks to the generations of Americans before us who won and maintained the independence of our nation against far greater dangers than we face today. Let us dedicate ourselves to guarding that independence that we may pass it on to the future in even greater security than we received it from the past. It is by building our own strength and character at home—not by crusading abroad—that we can contribute most to civilization thruout the world."

Endorsers of the expression included Alfred M. Landon, Lillian Gish, Frank O. Lowden, Silas H. Strawn, George N. Peek, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Dr. George H. Whipple, Igor Sikorsky, Gen. Robert E. Wood, Bishop Wilbur E. Hammaker, Robert Ripley, Kathleen Norris, Frank Lloyd Wright, Harriet Vittum, Edward L. Ryerson, J. Sanford Otis, Janet Ayer Fairbank, the Rev. Samuel K. Wilson, John T. Flynn, Pinchot himself, and many others.

Carol, Mme. Lupescu Get Permission to Enter Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, March 28 (AP).—Applications from former King Carol of Rumania and Mme. Magda Lupescu to enter Mexico have been approved, the immigration department said today. They now are in Portugal. It was not known whether they planned to remain in Mexico or continue on to Central and South America. Chile also has granted them permission to live there.

Britain Will Give Her Workers Easter Holiday

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—British workers are going to get a short Easter holiday, the government disclosed today. The break in war work will extend from Saturday, April 12, until Tuesday morning, April 15. The government urged that "as far as possible there should be no cessation of work on Good Friday."

BOMB RAIDS KILL 1,000 IN BREMEN, BRITISH ASSERT

7,000 Reported Injured in Often Attacked Port.

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—The air ministry news service tonight declared that in the recent series of RAF raids on Bremen 1,000 persons were killed and another 7,000 injured. Bremen is a great seaport in northwest Germany, on the Weser river.

Ellen Wilkinson.
[Theatrical Studio Photo.]

The casualty figures—a manifold multiplication of those acknowledged by the Germans—were contained in a statement of results claimed for British bombing of Germany. Bremen has been attacked time and again. Exactly how the British obtained the casualty figures was not disclosed.

In Hanover on recent nights 250 persons were killed, 250 houses destroyed, and 500 seriously damaged, the statement said.

Damage in Berlin.

Berlin has "suffered cumulative damage" and there have been many casualties because Berlin's weakness is poor shelters, the new service said. As a result, it was said, there had been an exodus from the city.

As for British civilian casualties from German air attacks, 28,859 have been killed since the start of the war in September, 1939, and 40,166 seriously injured. These totals were disclosed at Newcastle by Ellen Wilkinson, parliamentary secretary of the home security ministry.

Without disclosing the exact number of military casualties, Miss Wilkinson said the ratio of civilian to service deaths was 50 to 1.

Cologne Heavily Bombed.

British air and sea forces, meantime, reported heavy blows to German arsenals and Italian supply lines. The RAF on Thursday night blasted the great Rhineland industrial centers of Cologne and Duesseldorf and the German held French "invasion ports" of Dunkirk, Brest, and Calais, the air ministry announced.

In the Mediterranean, the admiralty said, the submarine Parthian torpedoed a 6,000 ton supply or troop ship and a 10,000 ton tanker in an Italian convoy off southern Italy.

New Attacks on Shipping.

BERLIN, March 28 (AP).—Four ships have been sunk or damaged by German bombers, today, DNB, the official news agency, reported. They were listed thus:

West of the Hebrides, a 15,000 ton ship sunk by a direct bomb hit on the port side; in the Bristol channel, a 1,000 ton merchantman sunk; off the southwest English coast, two ships totaling 3,000 tons damaged severely.

PALS FOR LIFE, AND IN PRISON; 1 SLAIN, 1 SHOT

The lifelong friendship of Harry B. Bartlett, 44 years old, 445 South Halsted street, and Joseph Phillips, 45, of 315 South Halsted street, ended last night in a tavern at 768 West Van Buren street. Edward F. Healy, assistant state's attorney, gave the following case history:

Bartlett and Phillips grew up together on the west side. Bartlett acquired the nickname "Soup" for his dexterity with dynamite. When he applied his talent to laundries during a strike in 1921 he was sentenced to Joliet prison. He spent a year there, then was acquitted at a new trial.

Phillips became involved in a tavern holdup and was sentenced to Joliet where he and Bartlett were cellmates. Phillips remained there five years. Then there was another five year stretch at Pontiac reformatory for another robbery.

Last night the two old friends got into a dispute as to whether the cutting tool in a brace and bit should be called a "bit" or a "drill." Harsh words led to knife waving. Phillips obtained a revolver, was disarmed and shot in the arm. Then he disarmed Bartlett in turn and fired three shots at his old pal. "Soup" fell to the floor, dead.

TWO APPOINTED GENERALS FOR ARMORED UNITS

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Appointment of two brigadier generals, Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., and Henry W. Baird, to command two new armored divisions of the army was announced today by the war department. Both men rose from the ranks.

General Gillem, now on duty with the second armored divsion at Fort Benning, Ga., will command the third armored divsion to be organized at Camp Polk, La., and General Baird, now on duty with the first armored division at Fort Knox, Ky., will command the fourth armored division to be organized at Pine Camp, N. Y.

Both divisions will be organized immediately, and will contain 12,000 men each with about 400 tanks and 2,500 other motor vehicles.

The department said 7,500 men now training at Fort Knox and Fort Benning will be transferred to Camp Polk and Pine Camp for service in the new divisions.

MOTHER OF SERB BOY KING PLANS TO RETURN HOME

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Queen Mary of Jugo-Slavia said tonight she planned to return to Belgrade with her two younger sons as soon as she is well enough.

The 41 year old mother of King Peter II. is convalescing from an operation performed in Switzerland about a year ago. The brothers of the king are Tomislav and Andrei.

"I have tried to bring up all three boys to act on their own judgment, to work out their own problems, to be tough," she said. "I know Peter is well able to look after himself and that he will make a worthy king."

RESPOND TO CALL FOR MEDICAL AID IN DRAFT DRIVE

The board of health, county hospital, five private hospitals, and 40 physicians have responded to a call issued Wednesday for volunteers to aid in giving physical examinations to draftees, Louis A. Boening, head of the Cook county selective service office, announced yesterday.

Heavy April draft quotas will place an extra burden on local board physicians beginning next week, Boening said, altho this condition will disappear after June 30, when the number of military trainees is scheduled to reach 900,000 and the monthly quotas will decline. Several more hospitals and 50 to 60 more physicians are needed as volunteers, he said.

Private hospitals which responded are Englewood, Illinois Masonic, Walther Memorial, Danish-American, and Little Company of Mary. At the board of health doctors will be able to examine 100 men daily, while the county hospital's daily capacity will be 75.

FUTURE IS DARK WITH PROBLEMS, HOOVER WARNS

He Admonishes Youth of U. S. to Think Fast.

New Haven, Conn., March 28 [Special].—America is faced with the same gigantic problems whether the country joins in an all-out war or not, Herbert Hoover asserted tonight in an address at the 75th annual dinner of the New Haven Young Men's Christian association. The speech was broadcast over a national radio network.

Hoover admonished the youth of America to think fast about the rôle this country should take in the cataclysmic events now rocking the world. War and peace, he said, are the transcendent problems confronting the youth of this generation. He urged a study of past experiences to guide a future course.

"We joined in an exactly parallel war 25 years ago for the same purposes and under the same impulses," the former Republican President said. "Even with victory, we failed to get either military, economic, or spiritual peace.

"Final Fateful Step."

"Whether we take the final fateful step again or not, we already have made three positive appointments with destiny. One is that we will sit at the world's peace table. Another is that we face the problems of war emotions and war psychosis. The other is that we shall meet the financial, economic, and social aftermath of a war."

The action of congress in passing the dictator bill, Hoover said, has enormously changed the situation in which America is involved.

"The aid to Britain, combined with our own preparedness program, forces us a long way into a war economy," he declared. "Apart from these steps the mental and spiritual attitudes of war are pressed upon us by our indignation at gigantic wrong to the democracies, the repugnance of free men for the whole totalitarian ideology, the steady impact of foreign propaganda, and the constant agitation of a minority for all-out war."

Two Kinds of War.

In analyzing present problems the nature of total war must be considered, Hoover said. The world war was the first total war of modern history. It was the first great war after the mechanical age. Previous wars were more nearly contests between armies and navies with civilian life given little interruption.

"Perhaps the most striking difference of total war from the old wars was that formerly armed men fought only against armed men," he continued. "There were certain chivalries and sportsmanships. There was a real desire to keep women, children, and noncombatant men apart.

"In total war the basis has shifted in large measure from war between armed men to war by armed men upon civilians. In the last war for the first time systematic and organized terrorization and killing of civilians became a part of this strategy."

Exhaustion or Revolution.

Once total war is joined it apparently can have no intermediate stops, Hoover observed. A telling effect of impelling emotions in total war, he added, is that such war apparently can end only by exhaustion or revolution on one side or the other, and the victor in this race of exhaustion is only one lap behind the vanquished.

Altho we talked of voluntary cooperation in the last war, he recalled, the government's entry into business to increase production was socialism and the government's dictation to private owners was fascism.

Wife Wins Support

Mrs. Catherine Childs and her husband, Alfred, as they appeared in court.

Amateur Yachtsman and Actor Alfred Childs, 35 years old, appeared in Judge Rudolph Desort's court yesterday—all 6 feet 4 inches and 225 pounds of him. His wife, Catherine, 26, of 116 South 1st street, Highland Park, is suing him for separate maintenance and in yesterday's action sought temporary support.

"You're big enough, and handsome enough, to get a job," Judge Desort told Childs. "I'm told you've got a parent complex and depend on your folks for everything. I'm going to award your wife $25 a week and that means you'll have to go to work. I think that will mean you two will be back together again."

Last week Judge Desort deputized Childs' father, Earl, an Evanston insurance broker, to serve a summons on his son. Alfred had not shown up at two previous hearings in the matter. He was represented yesterday by Attorney Lloyd Faxon, while Attorney Benjamin B. Davis represented Mrs. Childs.

KELLY ATTACKS GREEN'S PAROLE REVISION PLANS

Springfield, Ill., March 28 (AP).—Democratic Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago took issue with Republican Gov. Dwight H. Green today over the governor's plan to revise the state parole system.

Kelly, here for a conference of Democratic leaders, declared the governor's plan to abolish the present seven member parole board and place parole power in a new five member board in the proposed new department of public safety would be "worse than the present system."

The mayor said he favored enactment by the legislature of the original Ward-Rennick bills which would leave the existing parole board intact but give judges of criminal courts power to set minimum and maximum sentences within the limits of the indeterminate sentence law.

AMERICA FIRST OPENS NEW DRIVE TO PREVENT WAR

Rallies to Oppose Sending Ships or Men.

The America First committee has opened a new drive to keep American ships and men from being sent abroad. The committee is sponsoring a series of massmeetings in nine cities in the middle west and the far west, R. Douglas Stuart jr., national director, announced yesterday.

Stuart said Senators Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], and Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], leaders in the movement to keep America out of war, will speak at the massmeetings.

Senator Nye arrived in Chicago by United Air Lines last night and stopped briefly before boarding another plane for San Francisco, Cal., where he will make the first of his series of speeches tonight. He said that "the convoy system was the sure road to war for America."

3 Los Angeles Rallies Planned.

Senator Nye's speaking schedule, after tonight, follows: March 31, Palo Alto, Cal.; April 1, 2, and 3, Los Angeles; April 6, Portland, Ore., and April 8, Seattle, Wash.

Senator Wheeler's schedule follows: April 4, Cincinnati, O.; April 6, Cleveland, O.; April 7, Detroit, Mich., and April 8, Lansing, Mich.

"Thru these meetings America can really achieve national unity," Stuart said. "The President, his unsuccessful rival, and practically every elected official in the country have pledged themselves to keep the country out of war. The overwhelming majority of the people, in the face of fierce prowar propaganda, want the country to stay out of war. These meetings are to express this united American desire."

Miss Gish to Address Luncheon.

The Chicago chapter of the America First committee announced yesterday that Miss Lillian Gish, stage and screen star, will describe propaganda methods used to draw the United States into the world war in a talk at a luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Hotel Sherman. Miss Gish spent six months in Europe in 1917 helping make war propaganda films.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, world war veteran and chairman of the committee's Chicago chapter, also will speak at the luncheon.

Wilbur Helm, educator and lecturer, addressed a rally of the committee's Lincoln Park chapter last night at 3140 North Clark street. He said opposition to America's entrance into a shooting war should be increased now that the dictator bill has been passed.

WOUNDED WAR PRISONERS TO GO TO SWITZERLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Hundreds of wounded British prisoners of war who are not likely to become combatants again soon will be released and sent to Geneva, Switzerland, the war office revealed today. Equal numbers of wounded Germans now in British hands will be released from here. The arrangements were made by the international Red Cross. Among the problems involved were complications regarding a guarantee of safe conduct by sea to Lisbon, Portugal, for the invalided Germans. Wounded Germans who will be released from here mostly are airmen and U-boat sailors.

LAURA M. HAMMOND DIES.

Jacksonville, Ill., March 28 [Special].—Miss Laura M. Hammond, 76 years old, died yesterday after a lifetime devoted to teaching. Some years ago she was accorded recognition by Columbia university for the introduction of a course of study that taught the evolution of musical instruments.

NAB JAN VALTIN, AUTHOR, AS RED FOR DEPORTATION

Real Name Is Krebs; German Citizen.

R. J. H. Krebs [Jan Valtin]. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

New York, March 28 (AP).—Richard Julius Herman Krebs, who wrote the best seller "Out of the Night" under the name of Jan Valtin, was arrested here today by federal officers to face deportation proceedings.

Krebs was arrested in the immigration offices and held at Ellis Island until he provided $5,000 bond. He then was released with the understanding he would return to the island for a hearing at a later date.

Krebs is a German citizen who described his experiences as a communist agitator both in Germany and among sailors in this country in his lengthy autobiographical work which became a best seller.

Tells of German Gestapo.

Only last Wednesday night Krebs, or Valtin, introduced on the radio from "an unnamed spot in America," told of his experiences at the hands of the German Gestapo and said "there is hardly any one in Germany now who does not have some horrible memory."

Federal law provides for deportation of an unwanted alien to his native country, which in this case would be Germany. In some instances, aliens facing deportation are permitted to leave voluntarily, but officials said that it appeared that this course would not be open to Krebs because of his having a criminal record.

The department said in a statement that Krebs admitted entering the United States illegally on March 6, 1938, by jumping the ship Ary Lensen at Norfolk, Va., and that he served a three year sentence, from 1926 to 1929, in California's San Quentin prison for assault.

Deported in 1929.

These charges lie against Krebs:

Illegal entry into the United States; conviction on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon prior to that entry; entering without permission after having been arrested and deported; belief in and advocation of the overthrow of the government of the United States by violence at the time of entry, and membership in an organization which advocated such overthrow.

The department said that Krebs admitted having joined the communist party in 1923, but claimed that he had quit the party in 1937, prior to his illegal entry into the United States the following year.

More Costa Ricans Hired to Work at Panama Canal

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, March 28.—The second contingent of artisans and laborers recruited here to work on the third set of locks for the Panama canal is scheduled to leave tomorrow. Hundreds of Costa Ricans are expected to be employed on the lock and other defense projects in the Canal Zone.

DEMOCRATS LAY PLANS TO REGAIN POWER IN STATE

Leaders Meet and Look Into Future.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—In two closed meetings here today, one a general conference of party leaders, the other a session of the state central committee, Illinois Democrats determined to take the offensive against the Green administration and other Republican forces in the state.

"Everybody admits we were better on defense than on offense," said Senator Scott W. Lucas, who stated the outcome of all the talk more clearly than did some others after the doors were opened.

Democratic Leaders Attend.

"Now that we are out of power in the state we'll gradually regain the offensive ability that we have lost. No one was downhearted. We still have federal, state, and local offices, and everybody here believes we will begin to return to power in 1942, assuming that there is no trend in world affairs that will be detrimental to the Democratic party."

Most of the big-shot Democrats of the state attended the all afternoon pow-wows at the St. Nicholas hotel. P. A. Nash, Cook county chief, and James M. Slattery, former senator, were missing, but those present included Mayor Kelly of Chicago, appearing in his rôle as national committeeman; former Gov. John Stelle, Harry B. Hershey, governorship nominee last year; Secretary of State E. J. Hughes, the one Democrat in state office; Bruce A. Campbell, Thomas F. Donovan, John E. Cassidy, Louie E. Lewis, John C. Martin, and a score of others also well known.

Plan Critical Campaign.

State Chairman Arthur A. Sullivan of Chicago made the official announcements to the press. He said the decision was to authorize him to appoint an advisory committee of as many members as he chooses. It will supervise the operation of a downstate headquarters in Springfield. It will be from this headquarters, according to others, that the offensive tactics will be carried out. These others mentioned propaganda as one of the offensive tactics.

W-G-N TO CARRY HUTCHINS' PEACE TALK TOMORROW

U. of C. Head's Chapel Address on Air.

Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, will address a nation-wide audience tomorrow morning by radio on the subject "The Proposition Is Peace." Dr. Hutchins' address, at the regular University chapel service, will be broadcast exclusively thru W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:45 a. m.

President Hutchins' address on peace will be his first public statement since the passage of President Roosevelt's war dictatorship bill. Shortly before passage of the measure President Hutchins expressed his reasons for opposing it in an address entitled "America and the War." This was his first discussion in eight years on anything except an educational subject.

In that address President Hutchins said that the American people are about to commit suicide by drifting into war.

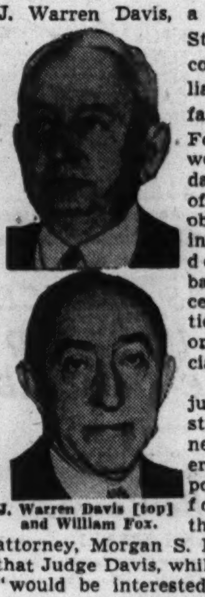
"Aid to Britain, China, and Greece," he said, "should be extended on the basis most likely to keep us at peace, and least likely to involve us in war." He urged a new moral order for America and warned that the United States must take up with new vigor the long struggle for moral, intellectual, and spiritual preparedness.

"If we would change the face of the earth," he said, "we must first change our own hearts."

Dr. Hutchins is 42 years old and has been president of the University of Chicago for 12 years. At Chicago he put into effect the educational plan, now known as the Chicago plan, which has had a profound influence on the nation's educational program.

WILLIAM FOX AND FORMER U. S. JUDGE INDICTED

Accused of Bankruptcy Conspiracy.



J. Warren Davis [top] and William Fox.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 28 (AP).—J. Warren Davis, a retired United States Circuit court judge; William Fox of movie fame, and one of Fox's attorneys were indicted today on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice in court matters dealing with bankruptcy proceedings on portions of Fox's once vast financial empire.

A federal grand jury specially instructed by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson reported it had found evidence that Fox and the attorney, Morgan S. Kaufman, knew that Judge Davis, while on the bench, "would be interested in and would accept and receive sums of money and other presents" in return for "action favorable" to Fox.

The 62 year old baldheaded producer whose motion pictures made screen history stepped to the bar immediately after the charge was made, entered a plea of guilty, and handed out five $1,000 bills for bond.

District Judge Guy K. Bard deferred sentence until April 14, issued bench warrants for the other defendants, who were absent, and set the same date for their arraignment. A similar bail also was fixed. Davis appeared later and posted bond.

Indictment of the 74 year old Lawrenceville, N. J., jurist, who was appointed to the bench by President Wilson in 1920, marked the second time in the nation's history that a member of the federal judiciary has been so charged, court attachés said. The maximum penalty is two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine, a sentence now being served by United States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton of New York, who was convicted under the same statute.

Before Judge Davis retired in 1939, Fox was involved in several bankruptcy cases before the Appellate court. Before the 1929 market crash his financial empire was estimated at $35,000,000. In 1936 he filed a petition in bankruptcy claiming liabilities of $9,935,261 and assets of $100.

Today's indictment says that on or about Nov. 14, 1935, at Davis' request, Kaufman loaned $10,000 to Charles Lee Stokely, a relative of Davis, and that the loan never was repaid.

FATAL CHICAGO AIR LINER CRASH BLAMED ON PILOT

Failed to Use Caution and Skill, Board Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Blame for the crash of a United Air Lines passenger plane at Chicago last Dec. 4, in which 10 persons were killed, was pinned upon the pilot, the late Capt. Philip C. Scott, in a report issued tonight by the Civil Aeronautics board.

The board said that the crash was due to "the failure of the pilot to exercise that degree of caution and skill required to avert a stall while approaching for a landing on the short northwest runway." The 33 year old pilot, who was killed in the crash, made an error in judgment in choosing the short runway at the Chicago municipal airport for his landing, the board ruled.

Only Six Survive.

The plane crashed late in the afternoon of Dec. 4 within two blocks of the airport after a flight from New York. The crew of three and seven of the 13 passengers aboard were fatally injured in the crash, and the huge airliner virtually was destroyed.

Investigation showed that icing conditions contributed largely to causing the pilot's misjudgment, but despite bad weather conditions the east-west runway was sufficiently long and was adequate for a landing under the prevailing wind and weather conditions—other pilots having used it—the report said.

On the contrary, the civil aeronautics board found, the northwest runway was limited in length by a railroad embankment and a landing on it under the existing wind and weather conditions would permit little, if any, margin of safety.

Ice on Windshield.

"Capt. Scott cannot be adversely criticized for descending thru the overcast for a landing, and United's dispatcher at Chicago cannot be adversely criticized for permitting him to do so," the report asserted.

"At the time Capt. Scott broke out of the overcast he had accumulated a quantity of ice on his windshield which impaired his vision sufficiently to cause him to circle the airport for the purpose of clearing his windshield.

"After flying for a short period over the airport he reported to the airport control tower that he would land on the east-west runway, but 40 seconds later changed his plan and stated that he would land on the northwest runway. No sudden emergency occurred which made it necessary for Capt. Scott to land on the northwest runway."

In addition to impairing visibility, ice had formed on the leading edges of the wings, which raised the stalling speed of the plane by an undetermined amount, and Capt. Scott under these conditions failed to maintain adequate flying speed for the landing, said the report. There was no engine failure, the board ruled.

Several Recommendations.

In view of the evidence uncovered in this crash the board made the following recommendations for corrective action:

1. An adequate stall-warning device is urgently needed for aircraft operations and the Civil Aeronautics administration is urged to give this matter "the utmost encouragement"; more research is needed on development of wing surfaces which are not subject to critical behavior at stalling speed.

2. Improved windshield wipers or other devices for improving vision from the cockpit are necessary.

3. A more accurate means must be developed and adopted for measuring the rate of ice accretion.

4. Accelerated research in connection with the development and adoption of an air speed indicator which is not susceptible to incorrect readings due to formation of ice.

5. The national advisory committee for aeronautics should intensify its research on means to prevent ice accumulation on wings and other parts without interfering with aerodynamic characteristics.

6. Measures should be adopted at all carrier airports to keep those responsible for issuing information to pilots better informed of hazardous field conditions in order that such information may be relayed promptly to pilots.

7. Since the Chicago crash severed power lines and cut off lighting facilities at the airport, auxiliary power lines should be installed at all airports used by air carriers for instrument or night approaches. The board is considering a requirement to this effect.

SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF WOMAN DOCTOR; SUSPECT DOPE USER

Richmond, Me., March 28 (AP).—Posses searched today for a shabby, bearded man suspected of slaying a 38 year old woman physician, Dr. Luverne Harris Joss, while she was alone last night in her brick colonial office-home. State police investigators said they believed the man was a narcotic addict.

Dr. Luverne H. Joss.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

The victim's husband, Merrill Joss, also a physician, told police that earlier last night he had dismissed from the home a stranger who asked for narcotics.

Investigators worked on a theory that while the husband was temporarily absent, the stranger returned, demanded narcotics of the wife, struck her over the head, and then dragged her to the foot of the cellar stairs, where her body was discovered by her husband upon his return home.

Coast Guardsmen Rescue Dog Marooned on Ice Cake

A dog marooned on a cake of ice in Lake Michigan was rescued yesterday by Coast Guardsmen Leon Anderson, Cliff Vogel, and Carl Walters, who pushed a boat thru the ice floats inside the basin just off the Oak street beach. The dog, described by Dr. W. A. Young of the Anti-Cruelty society as "mostly collie," is now safe and warm waiting to be claimed by its owner at the society headquarters, 157 West Grand avenue.

CITY ASKS TWO KINDS OF BIDS, SAVES $90,000

Shows How Asphalt Men Keep Prices Up.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

In an unprecedented action—calling for bids on both asphalt and concrete paving of an identical mile of Chicago street—the city administration believes it has saved Chicago taxpayers at least $90,000.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, who took this action at the direction of Mayor Kelly, said that the paving of Stony Island avenue between 79th and 87th streets with concrete would cost $90,703 less than paving the same stretch with asphalt. This was on the evidence of the low bids submitted on each type of roadway.

Hewitt disclosed also that all the difference in cost was not due to the use of different materials; that on itemized street paving bids some identical operations, such as grubbing up trees, excavating and digging storm sewers would cost more if done by an asphalt contractor than if performed by a concrete contractor.

Comparison of Bids.

The asphalt bids were obtained on Jan. 14, with seven firms competing. The low bid, by the Sensibar Engineering and Paving company, was $245,633. On the 19 concrete bids, received Thursday, the Calumet Coal company was low with $154,930.

The highest bid on the concrete paving, that of the Chatham Paving company, was $202,130, approximately $43,000 less than the low asphalt bid. While it is admitted that asphalt paving cannot be done quite as economically as concrete under any circumstances, paving experts said the spread might be greatly narrowed if the two types are kept in competition, as in this experiment.

One engineer employed by the city said that about half the extra cost of asphalt, about $40,000, was put in "just because the bidders have known for years that they didn't have as open competition as the concrete contractors." For years asphalt prices were kept up, largely by the late Michael Carrozzo, czar of the street workers' union. The city administration is striving to put a stop to practices he built up.

Differences in Construction.

City specifications for concrete call for a solid slab eight to ten inches thick. Asphalt construction calls for a concrete base seven to nine inches thick, on which is one and one-half inches of bituminous binder, topped with an inch and a half of asphalt.

With the exception of the added layers, the work is just the same. The bidding forms for each type of paving itemize such factors as excavation, sewers, sidewalks, painting traffic lines, and removal of trees. Each bidder uses a specified unit, such as a cubic yard of excavation or a foot of sewer, in the itemization.

Item.	Concrete Contractor's Price.	Asphalt Contractor's Price.
Excavation, per cu. yd.	$ .90	$1.30
Earth refill, per cu. yd...	.75	2.00
Storm sewers, 8", per ft.	1.00	1.42
Traffic line painting, per ft.	.07	.15
Tree removals, per diameter inches	.60	1.10
Top soil, per cu. yd......	1.15	1.80

Hewitt said the present two roadways on Stony Island avenue are to be widened from their present 25 feet to 31 feet. The work will require about 90 days, he said. The improvement is to be financed by the city's share of motor fuel tax funds.

EMPLOYE CREDIT UNION'S RECORDS UNDER INQUIRY

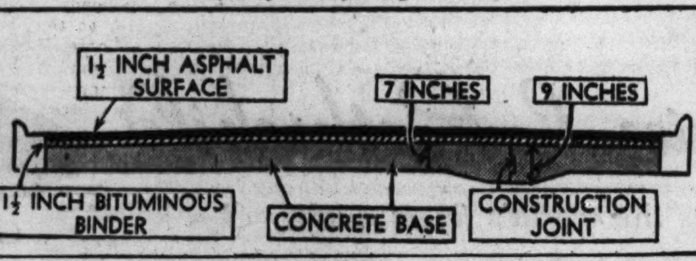
For the last week examiners for the state auditor's office have been conducting an investigation of the accounts of the Association Credit union, with offices in the Marquette building at 140 South Dearborn street.

Last night Auditor Arthur C. Lueder issued a brief statement. "An examination by the auditor's office is in progress," he said. "We have discovered irregularities. A complete audit will be necessary to determine their extent."

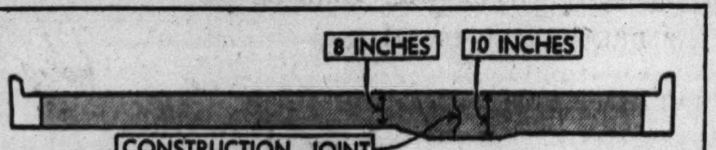
It was learned that the investigation was started by a report that the credit union had taken in more members than its charter permitted. Most of the members are employés of the Commonwealth Edison company. The company has no connection with the organization and no control over it.

Asphalt Loses to a Competitor

(Story in adjoining column.)



The city recently asked for bids from both concrete and asphalt paving contractors on a mile of pavement in Stony Island avenue. The lowest concrete bid was more than $90,000 below the lowest asphalt bid. The drawing above shows the specifications for asphalt and that below for concrete.



GOVERNOR GREEN ASKS REPORT ON SUPERHIGHWAYS

Congress Street Plan to Be Included.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—Gov. Dwight Green this afternoon ordered Director of Public Works Walter Rosenfield to prepare a complete review of Chicago superhighway studies and proposals that have been made by various agencies in the past. This will include a scrutiny of the well organized and financed promotion of a $40,000,000 Congress street super boulevard for which motorists' tax money would be spent in buying slum realty.

With this order the governor indicated that he is not going to be pushed by any pressure group into a blind approval of the Congress street scheme designed by Nash-Kelly engineers. If he should finally O. K. the project, it will be done deliberately and knowingly, not precipitately nor ignorantly, it was apparent.

Wants Complete Details.

Green, his followers have noted, is not disposed toward snap judgments.

"I want to be completely advised," was the governor's noncommittal comment, "before making any decision involving expenditures of millions of gas tax money."

It was considered likely that the Illinois highway department will make its own survey of traffic requirements in the metropolitan area to give the governor the benefit of technical advice of men of his own selection. This, it was predicted, might well lead to state sponsorship of superhighway projects. The federal road administration has been urging states to prepare plans for modern motor transportation facilities to serve armament industries and to furnish unemployment relief when peace ends the armament program.

Some significance was attached to the fact that the governor issued his order to Rosenfield rather than to Ernst Lieberman, chief engineer of the highway department. Lieberman was employed in the Chicago city hall before coming to Springfield eight years ago to be boss of road administration that was darkened by many scandals. In the press of other urgent business, Green has not as yet reformed the highway department.

Summary of Objections.

The inquiry to be conducted by Rosenfield will not ignore the well voiced claims of Congress street proponents that the improvement will rehabilitate west side slum areas and revitalize the south end of the loop. However, it will also heed the interests of gas tax payers who are unorganized and not so vocal.

Motorists' objections to this proposed expenditure of 40 million dollars of their tax money have included the following contentions:

A superhighway of the Congress street plan would dead end on the east at Canal street, be remote and virtually inaccessible from the outer drive and from most of the central business district; the western end would not be accessible from rural highways; the design is extravagant.

Vote to Indict Bookkeeper in Forgery Involving $192

Miss Lee Schuman, 33 years old, 6700 Sheridan road, a bookkeeper, was reported named by the grand jury in a true bill yesterday charging her with forging a $192 check. Miss Schuman confessed taking about $3,000 from her employers, the Globe Paper Box company, according to Frank T. McCurrie, assistant state's attorney.

New Castle, Ind., March 28 (AP).—A 15 year old New Castle girl was reunited today with her mother, whom for a time she had believed dead.

Norma June Gorbett and her mother, Mrs. Clarence Young, met at the railroad station as Norma June ended a week's trip without her mother's permission to California and back.

Norma June, Edgar Ray Sutton, 16, of Muncie, and Richard Nicholson, 17, of New Castle, drove to Los Angeles a week ago. Officers picked them up. The girl had a telegram with the signature of her stepfather saying, "Mother, heartbroken and worried, died last night."

Young denied sending the wire.

NAME ANNAPOLIS APPOINTEES OF SENATOR BROOKS

The American Legion announced yesterday that Ronald Harold Lind, 622 South Euclid avenue, Villa Park, and Barnett Charles Cook of Sherwood road, Des Plaines, have won the two appointments to the United States naval academy at Annapolis, Md., offered by Senator Wayland Brooks.

The Legion conducted the examinations for the appointments at the senator's request on March 15. There were 140 candidates. Lind was the youngest of the group. He celebrated his 16th birthday last Tuesday. Cook is 17.

Alternates to Lind are John Fredric Kurfess, 18, of Hinsdale; William Kahl, 19, of Champaign, Champaign county, and David J. Kull, 20, of Lawrenceville, Lawrence county. Alternates to Cook are Allan N. Gleason, 17, of 8343 Ingleside avenue; James Robert Gayle, 19, of Lincoln, Logan county, and Richard J. Faletti, 18, of La Salle, La Salle county.

ROOSEVELT BACK IN FLORIDA PORT; ON AIR TONIGHT

Port Everglades, Fla., March 28 (AP).—President Roosevelt returned to this south Florida port shortly before midnight tonight after a week's cruise off the Florida coast in the White House yacht Potomac.

Indications were that the President would make his Jackson day radio broadcast from the wardroom of the vessel tomorrow night. Workmen placed two telephone lines along the docks where the Potomac was moored when the chief executive boarded here a week ago.

It was understood these lines would be used to bring the speech ashore for radio transmission over three national networks. The speech is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. Chicago time.

Tells Warnings Given Inmates of St. Charles

The warning that three out of four of the inmates of the St. Charles School for Boys are doomed to die violently or wind up in prison unless they go straight is constantly held before the school's charges, Rodney H. Brandon, state public welfare director, said last night. He spoke before the board of governors of the Illinois Association for Cripples, in the La Salle hotel.

"The St. Charles boys in the main regard Al Capone as a successful man," said Brandon. "They believe that the way of the transgressor is made easy if he has a good lawyer. We try to impress upon them the thought that unless they reform only one out of every four will escape being killed or imprisoned."

MIXUP IN VITAL DRUGS IS PROBED BY U. S. AGENCY

Seek to Trace Shipments Thruout Nation.

A mixup in the manufacture of a drug, in which a powerful sleeping tablet accidentally became mixed with a new drug used in the treatment of pneumonia and certain infections, was disclosed yesterday by the American Medical association.

The drug which physicians had prescribed and which drug stores from New York to California have been selling was sulfathiazole, as prepared by the Winthrop Chemical company of New York, one of the largest drug concerns in the country. In preparation, however, it was contaminated with phenobarbital, more popularly known as luminal.

An investigation in the east, the middle west, and the west was begun last week by the federal food and drug administration, which sent hundreds of inspectors into the field in an effort to trace wholesale shipments and prescriptions in which the Winthrop product was used.

The American Medical association, when advised of the mishap, immediately began getting in touch with physicians known to have case histories involving the interchange of the two drugs. Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, issued a statement warning physicians and drug stores.

Statement by Dr. Fishbein.

The statement follows:

"From Farmington, Mo., came the first information that sulfathiazole, one of the newest and most valuable derivatives of sulfanilamide, was on the market in contaminated form. The date was Dec. 29, 1940, and again on Jan. 7, 1941. Apparently the product, which was the Winthrop Chemical company's product, Lot No. MP 029, was distributed in bottles varying from 100 to 1,000 tablets containing 7½ grains and which was contaminated with phenobarbital, otherwise known as luminal. This drug has an average dose of 1 to 2 grains for ordinary purposes. Phenobarbital is a powerful sedative drug, producing sleep and, in large doses, narcosis.

"The incident in Farmington was reported to the company on Jan. 7, 1941. An immediate investigation was begun. We are informed that the food and drug administration of the United States security agency was first notified about March 22. Immediately the food and drug administration sent hundreds of inspectors thruout the nation to secure every possible bottle of the shipment still in circulation.

Effect on Patients Told.

"Records already available from Missouri and Kentucky indicate a considerable number of patients who received this product suffered severe narcosis, but practically all recovered without other ill effects. Records also indicate the possibility that patients with pneumonia who received this drug died. Rapid loss of consciousness in patients receiving sulfathiazole should indicate need for prompt determination of the nature of the product administered. The vast majority of sulfathiazole now on the market is quite safe when administered by a physician for the usual purposes. Emphasis must be placed on the fact that it is this single lot of the Winthrop Chemical company's product, distinguished by the number MP 029, which has the possibility of harm."

Eastern Chief Tells of Inquiry.

In New York City last night W. R. M. Wharton, chief of the eastern division of the food and drug administration, said that reports of the extent of the ill effects caused by the mixup were "quite accurate." He said the investigation was begun on information received from the Massachusetts board of health. He said there were several cases in New England involving use of the drug.

John H. Martin, secretary of the Winthrop Chemical company, said in New York that no deaths have occurred thru use of the contaminated drug. He said the drug had not been shipped in large quantities.

In Washington, D. C., W. G. Campbell, commissioner of the food and drug administration, confirmed that an investigation was under way. J. O. Clarke, chief of the central district, with headquarters in Chicago, said he had 100 inspectors in the field, attempting to trace all prescriptions in which the Winthrop drug was used. Clarke said the company had sent out a great number of shipments before the mistake was discovered.

The investigation in this area is known to include East St. Louis, Quincy, Peoria, and Memphis, Tenn.

RELIEF RESPONSIBLE FOR HIGH STATE COSTS, SAYS SCHNACKENBERG

Rep. Schnackenberg.

The cost of state government has risen to an unprecedented peak as the result of relief burdens, Elmer J. Schnackenberg, speaker of the Illinois house, said last night. He spoke at the annual fellowship dinner of south and southwest side Kiwanis clubs at the Morgan Park Military academy, 2153 West 111th street.

Twenty-eight years ago when he entered the legislature, said Schnackenberg, "a citizen only asked to be let alone." Today, he added, the citizen depends more and more on government aid. Relief burdens have piled up, he said, and even industrial pickup from defense programs has made little impression on unemployment relief rolls.

The legislature, the speaker said, must reduce the operating expenses of the state government or find new sources of tax revenue.

Toman Collects $20,127 in Taxes; O'Brien $3,572

Payments of delinquent personal property taxes yesterday to County Treasurer John Toman totaled $20,127 from 197 taxpayers. This was the largest day's collection in three weeks. Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien and his deputies collected $3,572 in personal property tax judgments entered on past due bills against 13 firms.

NAVY PIER CLAD IN ANNUAL GLORY OF FLOWER SHOW

'Modern Trends' Theme of This Year's Gardens.

The 15th annual Chicago flower show opened its doors last night on Navy pier to thousands of flower lovers from thruout the state. The pansy vied with the orchid for attention, and the exhibits ranged from the formal pool of a large estate to a rustic woodland pool and waterfall.

The show, under the direction of the Garden Clubs of Illinois, will continue thru next Saturday. It is open daily from 10.30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Designed for Home Gardens.

With the theme "Modern Trends," the exhibits show treatment of entrance gardens, terrace gardens, porches, balconies, wall gardens, foundation planting, and table arrangements. The show is designed to answer the problems that confront the home gardener.

Entrance to the show is under a modern pergola draped with bougainvillia into the formal courtyard of a large estate. At one side is a 90 foot formal pool containing water plants. A wall garden borders the opposite side of the path.

Beyond this are a series of less formal gardens centered around small, modern houses. Further on the displays become more informal, showing the treatment of country homes and woodlands.

Show Flower Use Inside.

The tiny modern homes set the style of the gardens, and interestingly arranged interiors show how flowers can be made an integral part of house decorations. One exhibit shows the treatment of a two story window with green plants and bamboo. The window looks into a garden blooming with spring flowers. Crocus and daffodils poke up between the leaves, and wild crab apple, wild plum, and hawthorn trees are scattered over the lawn.

More than 90 garden clubs of Illinois are taking active part in the exhibit, and the flower arrangement displays by individuals number more than 150.

[The winners of the various awards will be announced in the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune on April 6.]

HAILED AS BEST YET

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

So you've always wanted to go to Charleston, S. C., to see the famous gardens? Well, over on Navy Pier at the Flower Show there are as many magnolias, azaleas and rhododendrons as you would see in Charleston. More than we saw when we visited the lovely old city a fortnight ago, for that was about three weeks too early for the gardens to be in bloom.

We ran out of superlatives several years ago in writing about the Garden Club of Illinois' flower shows. All we need say of the current one is that it is the best the women ever have arranged.

Winnetka Club Honored.

The dozens of women who are responsible for the show were dead tired last night by the time the doors were opened, but they were buoyed up by satisfaction with their achievement. Undoubtedly the happiest were members of the Winnetka Weeders Garden club, for that club's exhibit was awarded the Garden Club of America's purple ribbon as the outstanding exhibit. A silver medal from the Garden Club of Illinois also was left by the judges.

Mrs. Anderson A. Owen was chairman of the committee that arranged the garden. Beds of ivy, pink rhododendrons, oleanders, a low lead fence and a statue of two nude children was about all that the garden contained, but the arrangement was so perfect that the judge's decision had general support.

"Have you seen our ribbons?" asked young Mrs. Leonard Bridges as we wandered thru the gallery of arrangements beyond the gardens. Needless to say Mrs. Bridges is a Winnetka Weeder.

The Barrington Garden club members, of whom Mrs. Robert Clark was show chairman, were just as proud, tho, of the special award ribbon their terrace garden received. The new white geranium, Hlavacek's single white, which has waxy blossoms almost like those of a gardenia, was included in their garden.

Names Memorable Exhibits.

To mention all the exhibits that catch the eye would be to list practically everything in the big show. We remember especially the hand-carved wooden gate and fence in a tulip design that the Oak Park and River Forest Garden club has used in its garden [it was awarded a blue ribbon]; the Elmhurst Garden club's exquisite garden with yellow calla lilies, yellow pansies and espaliered fruit trees in it; the pool and surrounding garden planned by Mrs. C. E. Showalter of the Chicago Heights Woman's club; the white oak panelled garden room designed by the Little Garden Club of Evanston and the Lake Forest Garden club's garden in the woods. Just such a garden as any one living on the Des Plaines river might have.

Mrs. Howard Peabody and Mrs. Charles S. De Long were on the committee that planned this charming early spring idyll. Lady slippers, white violets, sweet williams, and trilliums are some of the blossoms hiding among the dead leaves, and just ready to burst into bloom is a lovely wild plum tree. More sophisticated, but a woodsy garden just the same is the exhibit of the Lombard club across the way.

Table arrangements always are among interesting things in a flower show and those on the Navy pier are exceptional. The outstanding one in the judges' estimation follows the modern trends theme of the show. It is a buffet table planned by the Lake Bluff Garden club. On a plain wooden table is a white plaster head, as surrealist as Dali ever imagined. The hair is of wheat and surmounting this is a huge round loaf of bread. Three crescent rolls, lemons, green grapes, red cabbage leaves, an alligator pear, and limes ornament it.

At the other end of the table is a large plaster hand holding a sickle and in the center is more wheat. We forgot to look at the dishes and silver; we were so bewildered.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen's Arabian buffet table was awarded second prize, and a stunning table it is, too. Old copper plates and dishes that were made in Palestine more than a century ago, a centerpiece of red shaded amaryllis and green glasses made in Jerusalem are on an old Persian cloth.

The Winnetka Garden club's beautiful chartreuse covered table won a silver medal. Echevaria and ponderoso lemons in a brass container from the centerpiece and instead of candles are two glass beakers, each holding a huge echevaria.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk were among early visitors, for the British War Relief society, in which they are interested, has a booth in the commercial part of the show.

Among the many who "did" the show from start to finish—and it's a good, long hike—were some who saw it from a rolling wheel chair. Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster saw the sights comfortably this way.

Few spectators took more interest in the exhibits than a number of young married couples who are busy with building. The Stewart Boals, whose new home is going up in Winnetka, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, II, who are building in Lake Forest, were among them. The Boals and the Gilbert Osgoods came together. They paused at the British War Relief booth, where Mrs. Boal bought an emblem from Mrs. John Harris Ward. Working with Mrs. Ward last night was Mrs. Norman Stuart Merrett.

Mrs. John T. Pirie visited the show three times yesterday. Last night Mr. Pirie Jr., accompanied his mother. The Frederick H. Scotts, Frederick Jr. and Edward Scott; and Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. Robert Cluett, were in a family group. Others enjoying the exhibits were the William Spencers, Mrs. Owen William Dynes, chairman of the show; Mrs. Joseph Brewer of Grand Rapids, Mich., the Henry Bartholomays, the Edgerton Throckmortons; Mrs. Eunice Curtis of Seattle, one of the judges, who is a houseguest of Mrs. Walgreen; and Mrs. Norton Smith Jr.

GARY'S HIGHWAYMEN.

The CIO has been picketing the steel works in Gary of late. No strike is in progress. The object is to force employés to join the union and to force those who have joined the union to pay their dues. Employés who have approached the gate on their way to work have been obliged to show they are in good standing with the union before they were allowed to proceed. Enough of the men and women were manhandled to dissuade the rest from insisting on their right to go about their business peaceably.

The police of Gary stood around and watched these proceedings without interfering. Mayor Schaible of Gary had promised that civil rights would be protected but it seems to have been just talk. Sheriff Knotts of Lake county also made promises which he didn't keep. His deputies did nothing to protect citizens in their right to come and go on peaceful errands.

The so-called pickets are highwaymen. They have no more right to shake down the citizens of Gary than the Art institute would have to organize a band of hoodlums to make citizens of Chicago pay a toll for the privilege of walking down Michigan avenue.

The union is a voluntary organization. It has no right to compel any one to join by threat of bodily injury and no right to use force to collect its dues. Public officials who tolerate conduct of that sort committed perjury when they swore to uphold the law. With all the power of organized society at their command they refuse to enforce the law against a band of lawless ruffians.

This is no service to union labor. There is already a strong movement in congress for repressive, antiunion legislation in the interest of national defense. Each lawless incident adds to the probability that congress will act.

ENGLISH SPOKEN HERE.

In Berlin, where Yosuke Matsuoka, the Japanese foreign minister, is being persuaded that his country should constitute itself a Committee to Defend Japan by Aiding Us, difficulties of language if not also of understanding cropped up. Herr Ribbentrop, the well known champagne salesman, was delegated to soften up Matsuoka with a sales talk before passing him along to Herr Hitler, who would sign him on the dotted line. Matsuoka speaks no German. Ribbentrop speaks no Japanese. So they got together in the language of the hated English.

Here, for certain, is an anomaly that the observer can remark and treasure. Two gentlemen who, if they are agreed on anything, are convinced that Britain is the common enemy, and that both are to profit at her expense, are reduced to outlining their cutthroat schemes in the decadent tongue of the despised adversary.

In days not too distant Ribbentrop was an Anglophile of sorts. A generous aunt made it possible for him to go to London as a clerk in a German importing firm. Later he went to Canada and sold some wine, tho he happened to be laying track with a railway gang in Manitoba when the world war broke out. Much later he returned to London as German ambassador to the Court of St. James's. He was an admirer of all things British until he committed the faux pas of heiling Hitler to King George VI. at court and the British took to calling him Brickendrop.

Matsuoka's personal history is slightly different. A relative convinced him when he was a child that the United States was the land of opportunity. He came here a penniless boy and received the hospitality of a kindly Scots family in Portland, Ore., while he acquired an education. He graduated in law at the age of 20 from the University of Oregon. Then he went back to Japan.

Both the gentlemen in the Berlin tête-à-tête have reason to feel grateful for opportunities that came their way in lands where English is spoken.

MIGHTY MEAN.

For the second time in less than two weeks a southern Illinois jury has freed a wife who triggered herself into widowhood. The sentimentality of juries in those parts is getting chronic. The latest beneficiary is Mrs. Mildred S. Turley of Elizabethtown. She shot her husband, Roy, on a country road which, in conformity with local usages, was known as Lovers' lane. She left him dying there and rushed off in her car some thirty-eight miles to tell her family about it.

In explaining to the jury, which incidentally contained four women, Mrs. Turley stated that Roy occasionally was unkind. He gave her a beating once and slapped her out of a rowboat with a paddle another time. Afterwards, she said, he would try to "redeemify" himself. After the beating he eased her pain with an alcohol rub. On the occasion of the rowboat incident he jumped in after her and pulled her out, but she rather thought that was because people were watching.

It may appear from all this that Roy had a mean streak, but, after all, it can hardly be said that Mrs. Turley had a sweet one. It was Roy who got shot, and with no accompaniment of an alcohol rub. He rescued her from the lake, but she left him alone and dying in the road. Perhaps the fact that no people were watching explains her failure to offer any assistance.

Mrs. Turley joins Mrs. Lue R. Burns of East St. Louis as an eligible widow. Mrs. Burns was acquitted by a jury in her second trial for murder. She had four husbands and killed two of them. It is to be hoped that the high incidence of jury leniency will not suggest anything to any more Illinois wives.

THE ARMY OF 1941.

A comparison of the composition of the new United States army now in training with the American army of 1918 shows that the general staff has absorbed some of the lessons of the present war in Europe and Africa, but by no means all of them. Something of the trench stagnation of 1914-1918 persists. It is almost as dangerous to make mistakes in paper planning as it is to make mistakes in the field, and the generals should awaken to their shortcomings.

Where 28 per cent of all soldiers in the army of 1918 were in the infantry, 29 per cent are today. The change is not great, nor does the experience of the German campaign in the west indicate that the foot soldier is either more or less valuable than he was in the world war. The distribution of automatic small arms is, of course, much greater now than it was then, and the fire power of the infantry has risen correspondingly.

Field artillery constitutes 14.1 per cent of the new army, as compared with 9.39 per cent of the world war force. The Germans advanced with a staggering assortment of mortars, howitzers, antitank, and antiaircraft guns, and the United States army is on safe ground in increasing its artillery arm. It is to be hoped that at least as large a proportion of our artillery as of theirs will be motor drawn.

The coast artillery, including antiaircraft, is to represent 13.1 per cent of the strength of the new army. In 1918, when the army was admittedly planned for overseas service, only 4 per cent fell in this category. The tremendous growth in the threat of enemy aviation since 1918 and the necessity of protecting the sea approaches and the coastal cities from planes as well as warships dictates the increase in long range coast defense rifles and antiaircraft guns. Nor can field forces have assurance of protection against air attack unless there are strong concentrations of mobile antiaircraft equipment distributed thru the columns.

The new army begins to get off the track when the armored corps is reached. It is planned to comprehend 2.2 per cent of the total of 1,400,000 men, or 30,800. In the world war it was but .44 per cent of the total of 3,638,434 men, or 16,000. Considering that the tank was then a comparatively new weapon, and that it was a British specialty, and that such new auxiliaries of the armored force as the combat car had not been developed, the small proportion of the American armored force compared to the entire army is understood. But it is not easy to explain why the armored force of the new army has not been increased correspondingly with the proved effectiveness of this arm as it was demonstrated by the Germans in Poland and the west, and the British in Libya. Partly, the question is one of tank production, but the army of 1941 is still in considerable part a paper extension, with all branches lacking both the training and the equipment they will eventually have. On this basis it is hard to understand why the armored force has not been projected on a much greater scale, even if the equipment cannot be obtained until a future date.

Still less comprehensible is it that the cavalry has been increased from .80 per cent in 1918 to 2.9 per cent now. The German breakthru force of 45,000 vehicles which fell upon the French between Namur and Sedan slaughtered the five or six French cavalry divisions serving as advance elements in that sector. The German military chronicler, Lieut. Col. Soldan, has flatly called horse cavalry useless in modern warfare, and he deplores the tendency to consider armored forces as "modern cavalry." The armored force can fight and win battles in complete detachment from all other ground troops, because it includes all types of weapons within its own organization. Horse cavalry, even in the Ardennes forest, where the terrain was more suitable than it would be normally, proved completely inadequate to the tasks that confronted it.

Where the brass hats demonstrate their greatest indifference to the lessons of 1940 is in the engineering corps. This branch, amazingly enough, has been reduced from a 1918 percentage of 8.45 to 6.1 now. If the German successes demonstrated nothing else, they demonstrated how vital is the part of the engineers in modern warfare. Not only did the German pioneer troops accelerate and sustain the forward rush with their work in setting off enemy land mines and destroying wirings for bridge demolitions, erecting pontoon and fixed bridges, and bringing up ferries for heavy equipment, but they served as combat units in forcing many river passages and destroying numerous emplacements and strong points. They manned a large number of the flame throwers the Nazis took into action.

The Germans were never forced on the defensive, but an army must expect to need engineer troops for defense demolition as well as construction. It takes time to dismantle a house, but by dynamiting it can be blown up to block a road in an instant. The United States general staff is not wise in reducing, rather than increasing, its engineering corps, and it is still less wise to divert so many military engineers from the study of military construction and destruction to supervising duty on the St. Lawrence waterway project and other long term constructions which have no application to defense, if they have any utility at all.

JIM SEES THE LIGHT.

[Detroit Free Press.]

James A. Farley has returned from a tour of Latin America an ardent advocate of increased trade between the United States and the republics to the south.

"We should buy more from them," he says. There is no other way of weaning important South American countries from their European contacts.

These nations are not more European minded than we are. Their financial, commercial, social, and ideological relations with their European mother countries are not so close as ours are with England. They trade with Europe because heretofore they have been unable to sell their principal products in this country.

With the exception of sugar, coffee, and tropical fruits, which we could not as easily obtain elsewhere, we have bought very little from Latin America.

We have gone to Australia for wool instead of to Argentina.

We have gotten tin from Malaya instead of Bolivia.

We are only now beginning to experiment with rubber production in the Americas, as a potential alternative to patronizing the rubber plantations of European colonies in Asia and Africa.

We have preferred overseas manganese to Latin American.

When it is suggested that we patronize our neighbors to the south we are told that we must buy from the old world in order that the old world may buy from us. That applies to the new world with equal force.

We shall waste time, energy, and breath trying to promote better relations with Latin America until we realize the fact that business is business and not banquet oratory.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

BEHIND THE HEADLINES.

If you wish to call Jugo-Slavia by its former official name, say Kraljevina Srba, Hrvata, i Slovenca. To the citizens it has been the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes; to western Europe and to us it is, for convenience, South Slavia, translated into their own tongue. The title of Jugo-Slavia was made official on Oct. 3, 1929.

Americans of the Linemaster's generation first heard of Serbia, in school geographies, as Servia, and there was a mistaken notion that the name derived from the Latin servus, a slave. We did not begin to speak of Serbia until the Other War began its educating influence.

* * *

Every morning, almost everywhere in the world, men perform a rite that has a verbal relation to Jugo-Slavia. Every morning men tie their neckties, and a necktie is a cravat, which comes from the French word for a Croatian—Cravate. Why?

* * *

Because regiments of Croatian cavalry served in the Austrian armies in campaigns against the French, and their uniforms were garnished with something that resembled the modern necktie. These Croatian horsemen were wild, plundering fellows called pandours; the word became synonymous with military ferocity in the eighteenth century.

* * *

There is little difference between the Serbs and Croats in the matter of language, except that the former write and print in Cyrillic [Russian] characters and the latter in Latin [our own]. . . . Louis Adamic, the American writer, is a Slovene by birth, and his book, "The Native's Return," gives an excellent picture of this western branch of the Jugo-Slavian nation.

NO REFUGE.

I have wrapped myself in quiet,
A cocoon of reticence,
But loud the drums of havoc
Assault my slim defense.

I hear the thin, high music
Of an insistent fife,
Summoning to battle,
Repudiating life.

I hear the muffled marching
Of armies in defeat,
The sound of some one weeping
In a narrow street.

I have wrapped myself in silence,
And in this vain cocoon,
I hear the world's heart breaking
Against the sun and moon!

The Oldest Inhabitants.

The population of Illinois has been decreasing year by year since the first settlers arrived, in spite of the census figures. The Indians have gone, of course, and so have the wapiti, the buffalo, the black bear, the puma, the timber wolf, and the weaver. All were native Illinoisans before the white man came.

The otter and the bobcat hung on until about 1912 and then departed. Small animals have also surrendered their domain. The chickaree, or little red squirrel, a most amusing critter, disappeared about 1920. The star-nosed mole, plentiful before the civil war, has not been found in this state for 30 years.

She play on stage in Japan with Dante and then call self Fleurette Miller. Japanese newspapers like her and why not; so they write about her as Moi-yo San, meaning Miss Pretty Girl. She take this name. Fujiyama.

ONLY A FEW OF US LEFT!

We're really quite old fashioned,
Outmoded as can be,
For I'm in love with my husband
And he's in love with me!

Most all my friends have known divorce,
Their love affairs have run their course,
And they tell me in accents hoarse,
"You, too, in time, my dear!"
They think we're really very quaint,
They wish we were the way we ain't,
Our happiness is their complaint,
We're in a rut they fear.

They wish we didn't coo so much,
Nor hold each other's hands and such,
They'd like to see me get in Dutch
To liven things a bit.
But I'm afraid we're not the type
That yellow journalists find ripe;
I like my knitting, he, his pipe—
Prosaic, I admit!

Well, yes, we are old fashioned,
A hopeless case, you see,
Since I'm in love with my husband
And he's in love with me!

The "Dear Midnight" Girl.

May De Sousa, who launched Bath House John Coughlin's bizarre ballad, "Dear Midnight of Love," became the wife of a physician in Shanghai, China. After her start with "Dear Midnight" she was popular in musical comedies and comic operas. In 1905 she went to London, and whenever an old playgoer there speaks fondly of the galaxy of "Gaiety Girls" he always includes May De Sousa in "The Geisha" and "The Girls of Gottenburg." She occasionally returned to the American stage, and her last appearance in Chicago was probably as Yum-Yum in "The Mikado" in 1910 at the Auditorium.

In 1918 Miss De Sousa went to Australia with a comic opera company organized in New York. The influenza epidemic caused the troupe to disband. She then sailed for Shanghai, where she has lived for 22 years.

A BLOCKED STOMACH OUTLET IN INFANCY.

MOST of our babies come into the world well able to take nourishment and digest it with ease. In fact, a few may be so greedy that they will fall into the classification of "piggies." Now and then, however, something goes wrong with the machinery controling the outlet of the stomach. It just will not relax so that edibles can travel into the duodenum.

The condition [spasm or narrowing] has been understood for several centuries. More than 150 years ago, George Armstrong encountered an infant who possessed a well filled gastric pouch, altho the alimentary tube was empty. It was he who coined the word "pylorospasm."

The symptoms are too obvious to be mistaken. Food fails to move regularly into the intestine. In consequence, vomiting occurs perhaps after every meal. While the tot may be eager for the bottle, appetite is satisfied quickly. The reflex—nausea—means "stop!"

Unless something is done, the youngster will starve. Apparently the exit is neither entirely nor permanently closed, as tiny bits of milk may make their way onward. But the amount is so small that nutrition cannot be maintained. Nowadays, the mortality is slight and there is rarely an excuse for failure to recognize the disorder and apply appropriate treatment.

Good results have followed a common sense medical plan of giving minute quantities of a formula at frequent intervals. The mixture is rich, consisting of concentrated protein milk and dextrimaltose. It may be necessary at times to wash out the gastric pouch, if there is excessive distention. At the same time enemas may be employed for the purpose of flushing the colon.

In some of these infants, the injection of normal salt solution may be essential to preserve the balance of fluids. Occasionally, a slender rubber tube passed down the gullet can find its way thru the gate which is but partly open. In this manner liquid sustenance may be deposited beyond the point of blockage.

Furthermore, we have learned that in certain cases the ailment may be temporary, yielding to the stimulus of cone shaped plugs of food. After a while, the pylorus [which should act as a valve] may acquire the habit of opening and closing.

A recent successful operation which came to my attention reminded me that this is not an uncommon condition. While many of these victims will respond to careful feedings, others will fail to do so. In such instances, the rôle of surgery is lifesaving.

Some years ago Rammstedt devised a relatively simple procedure which consists in separating the thickened fibers at the stomach outlet. In this manner, relaxation is brought about, so that nutriment can pass thru with ease.

Certainly too much delay in attempting to conquer the situation must not be permitted. If the little patient is obviously losing ground there should be no hesitation whatsoever in resorting to this maneuver. The change in appearance from emaciation and wasting is so remarkable as to be almost unbelievable.

NOT ADVISED.

A. T. writes: Is an overdose of castor oil ever fatal?

REPLY.

No, but don't try it. An ounce is a full dose for an adult—children in proportion. This drug is extracted from the castor bean, which contains a poisonous substance called "ricin." Fatal cases have been reported after eating or chewing the seeds. When the oil is expressed, however, it contains no toxin.

SKIP IT.

I. P. writes: Will rope jumping help to improve my figure? I am 30 years old and overly fat.

REPLY.

It may aid the slimming process. We must recall that this type of exercise is quite strenuous. Make certain that the heart is normal before you begin to skip. Dancing or calisthenics should be equally effective. It all depends upon the amount of activity.

SCALP PSORIASIS.

T. B. writes: Is it safe to use an ultraviolet lamp on the scalp for psoriasis?

REPLY.

CONFLICT IN JUGO-SLAVIA.

Chicago, March 25.—The map of Jugo-Slavia published by THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, showing the different races involved, was worth studying. For several generations the Croats fought Vienna for their liberty and for the last generation they have been fighting Jugo-Slavia for the same reason. Archduke Ferdinand and King Alexander could testify to this if they were alive today. In 1930 while visiting Montenegro we talked to an old Montenegrin in Cetinje. With reference to their being thrown in with Jugo-Slavia he said: "O well, for generations we took pot shots at the Turks over these mountains, now we will take pot shots at the Serbs."

Who was responsible for the creation of such a monstrosity? Mr. Wilson was just the emotional sob sister who is pie in the hands of professional politicians with an ax to grind. Clemenceau and Lloyd George, since Austria-Hungary was no more, had to have a power to balance Italy in the Mediterranean sea. It was not a matter of democracy, because Italy was a democracy in those days, and Jugo-Slavia never was and to this day is not a democracy.

Let's get rid of Hitler and his gang, but above all, let's get rid of the system which creates his kind. J. M. V.

LOOSE QUARANTINE RULES.

Chicago, March 24.—In regard to the recent and still prevalent measles epidemic and as the mother of one child, who is just getting over this disease, I wish to protest against the Chicago board of health issuing a five day quarantine and issuing a slip of paper allowing the child to return to school within five days after the first visit of the doctor.

My child was stricken with measles on a Thursday, and on Friday she was running a temperature of over 104 degrees; yet the board of health would allow her to return to school tomorrow, Tuesday, when the pimples are still on her face and body.

At the school my child attends the teacher said that she wanted the children to come to school even if they sneezed or coughed providing they had no temperature. This is just the way an epidemic starts, and I think that it is about time something was done about it.

SYLVIA GOTTFRIED.

SAVE OUR REPUBLIC.

Chicago, March 26.—Congratulations on your new masthead, "Save Our Republic." It may be considered by some to be trite and simple and, therefore, not of any moment. But there is nothing in greater danger of being lost today than our republic. It has almost slipped out of the hands of the people. We have been democracy-ized to death with the definite propaganda plan of denationalizing our people, taking away their pride in the republican government that we have and thus making them prey to the attack which is and was "planned that way"—the ultimate purpose of which is to bring us back into the British empire.

The Cecil Rhodes purpose to recapture the United States for the British empire is the purpose of every great Britisher since Rhodes' time and of every Tory in America since the foundation of our republic. WILLIAM J. GRACE.

PULLMAN FARES.

Chicago, March 22.—Mr. David A. Crawford, president of the Pullman company, in his article of March 21, said in part: "An unfavorable rate situation stands as the major barrier against a complete recovery of first class rail-Pullman passenger business." He is absolutely right.

The railroads since 1920 have reduced their first class one way rail fares—they have also drastically reduced their round trip first class fares—trying to increase the first class passenger business. While the railroads reduced their class rail fares, we find we had to pay increased Pullman fares. Personally, the Pullman company is the only major business that now has higher rates than they had immediately following the first world war. They are now 5 per cent higher than they were at that time.

It is no wonder the railroads have been trying to improve their coach travel by reduction in coach fares [along with reduction in first class fares] and faster coach trains because apparently every reduction by the railroads in their first class fares was taken up with an increase in the Pullman fares.

SAN FRANCISCO HOSPITALITY TO THE ARMY.

San Francisco, Cal., March 24.—As a recent resident of Chicago until I became a house guest of Uncle Sam at Fort Scott of San Francisco, I should like to inform my home town people of the hospitality extended to the soldiers.

Saturday night Mayor Rossi and the committee of hospitality in San Francisco invited Uncle Sam's nephews to a dance. Various women's clubs acted as chaperones to the young ladies of San Francisco, who attended the affair by special pass only. A wonderful program was arranged, consisting of famous orchestra leaders, such as Glen Gray, Henry King, Richard Himber, and a group of specialties.

THE COUNTY HOSPITAL.

Chicago, March 26.—May I, as one just released from the hospital, say a good word for the institution? I was afraid of the hospital, based on articles I had read, but after a collapse and a sojourn of two weeks there, I can praise the work of the doctors, nurses, and general condition of same.

In my own case I could not have had better care in a private hospital.

MRS. MAIDA BROWNLEE.

TIME FOR A BROOM.

St. Charles, Ill., March 25.—S. R. Fitzgerald Baum advises us to give up our republic and be grateful that we live in America under a dictatorship. Not so fast. We still have the right to vote. Our ancestors fought for a free America and free it shall be. I have a strong hunch that our next party emblem will be neither the elephant nor the donkey, but a broom.

When American mothers, standing outside the White House gates, are told to "move on" and their American flags taken from them while communists have been served tea within the gates then it's time we did a little house cleaning in Washington. AMERICAN.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, March 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother-in-law passed away a few months ago. She had a home, one apartment of which is rented by her daughter with whom the mother made her home for nine years. Mother-in-law always said to the [1] sons the will reads that each son will share equally. The will was made some years ago.

2. Now it happens that three days before she passed away the daughter called a lawyer and two friends to witness a new will which was changed to read that the estate shall be shared by the four living children only. My husband passed away eight years ago. I never remarried.

3. My boy is 18 years old.

4. Would my son have a right to share in the estate?

5. Because my husband died, does that mean that his son is to be counted out?

M. N.

1. It is not clear whether you mean to her sons or to her sons-in-law.

2. Chances of setting aside the will by proof of undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity would depend upon your proof on those points. We suggest that you go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

3. It is not clear who is the son-in-law and who you are interested in. As we understand it your boy is a full grandson of the one you call a mother-in-law.

4. The wording of the will controls, unless it can be set aside on proof of undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

5. No. But see preceding answers.

5. In which of the following games are the moves made by the throw of dice?
BACKGAMMON CHESS CAMELOT CAROMS.
6. In the left hand column below are five historical or cultural landmarks of the United States. You deserve one point for each correct matching of these landmarks with the states wherein they are located.

[b] Fort McHenry. [w] Alabama.
[c] The Hermitage. [x] South Dakota.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—the last question counts five points.]

PROBE RECKLESS DRIVER'S RELEASE IN GREEN'S COURT

9 of 20 Freed Prisoners Returned to Jail.

The state's attorney's office was asked yesterday to investigate the dismissal of a reckless driving case before Judge Thomas A. Green in Jury court at a hearing in which police and prosecuting witnesses were not present.

Disclosure of the dismissal of this case was the latest development in the investigation into affairs in the court of Judge Green, who, it was disclosed earlier this week, has dismissed 20 county jail prisoners since Jan. 1 before their sentences expired. Yesterday nine of these prisoners were returned to jail. Others are being sought.

History of Case Traced.

The defendant freed in the reckless driving case is William Stanley, 30 years old, who gave police several addresses. He was arrested Jan. 21 after his car struck the machine of Eugene McGurty, 2912 Wilson avenue, at Webster avenue and Halsted streets. Three passengers in McGurty's car were injured, two severely. McGurty signed a complaint of reckless driving against Stanley.

After his arrest Stanley was charged with larceny by bailee in connection with the rented car he was driving. On Feb. 5 Judge Charles Dougherty ordered Stanley held to the grand jury on the larceny charge and set the hearing on the reckless driving case for yesterday in Jury court. Stanley was indicted on the larceny charge and on March 3 was placed on a year's probation by Judge John F. Bolton in Criminal court and ordered to pay $150 to the auto company.

Find It Dismissed.

Yesterday Assistant State's Attorney Roy McCarthy, police, McGurty, and other witnesses appeared before Judge Green ready for the trial. They then found that the Stanley case was not on the docket. It had been dismissed on March 21 by Judge Green for want of prosecution. McGurty and the others said they had not been notified of the change in the date of the trial.

They were certain that Judge Dougherty had set the case for hearing yesterday, and this was borne out by the judge's court sheet. The complaint record, however, bore the continuance date of March 21. Clerks Joseph Maher and George Omott could not be reached last night for explanation of the variance, tho attachés in the clerk's office said a mistake in marking the dates on the two records may have been made.

Judge Green could not be reached for comment. Prosecutor McCarthy said he would recommend that McGurty file a new complaint against Stanley. Stanley's latest address as given to probation officials is 4546 North Racine avenue.

As the prisoners illegally released by Judge Green were returned to jail yesterday the grand jury continued its investigation of the alleged bribery release scandal which brought the other releases to light. This is the case of Emmet Olin, 28, of 1509 North Lockwood avenue, who was released last Monday from a drunken driving sentence.

Olin's wife, Josephine, had told the grand jury that she paid $165 to Deputy Bailiff James Boyle in Safety court to effect the release. She asserted that Louis Coconate, 2634 Grand avenue, a sanitary district engineer, acted as go-between.

In court yesterday Judge Green expunged all the illegal release orders and said, "I tried to do the right thing, but I probably overstepped my authority." He said he released Olin because of his "good record of employment" after he had served five days of a 30 day sentence.

Questions a Second Prisoner.

Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin meanwhile questioned Charles Davis, 5648 Bishop street, who served one day of a 15 day sentence for drunken driving, and who was returned to jail yesterday. Austin said Davis told him he paid no money to be released but that his wife appealed to Alex G. Kumskis, former personal bailiff for Judge John T. Zuris, and that he interceded with Judge Green.

Prosecutor Austin also requested the sheriff of Kankakee county to pick up John Rogacz, of Kankakee, who said he was freed after serving 3 days of a 10 day sentence for drunken driving when his sister paid a "fine."

In addition to Olin and Davis, the following persons were returned to jail yesterday:

William Tishey, 7257 Calumet avenue, who served 11 days of a 60 day sentence for reckless driving.

Edward Conrad, 4314 Wells street, who served 10 days of a 20 day sentence for drunken driving.

Charles Thurston, arrested where he works at Homan avenue and Roosevelt road, who served 4 days of a 15 day sentence for drunken driving.

Joseph Gleas, 4700 South Ridgeway avenue, who served 23 days of a 90 day sentence for reckless driving.

Ray McKenna, 4325 Maypole avenue, who served one day of a 15 day sentence for drunken driving.

Virginia Malloy, formerly of 5022 Greenwood avenue, who served two days of a 10 day sentence for drunken driving. She has since moved.

George Schmidt, who said his address was 1935 North Pulaski road. He served three days of a 10 day sentence for reckless driving.

In addition to Rogacz, the others being sought are:

William McNamara, who gave his address as 1222 West 71st street. He served eight days of a 30 day sentence for malicious mischief.

Charles Donelson, 6104 Woodlawn avenue, who served one day of a 15 day sentence for reckless driving.

Charles Fulton, 4250 North avenue, who served four days of a 15 day sentence for drunken driving.

Norlin Ellingson, now in Moorhead, Minn., who served 15 days of a 60 day sentence for passing phony checks.

The six other prisoners freed, all alcoholics sentenced at their own request, will not be returned to jail.

Set Love Theft Slayer's Arraignment for Monday

An indictment charging Walter Appelt, 32 years old, with the murder of Joseph Lorenz, was returned yesterday by the grand jury. Appelt, held without bail in the county jail, will be arraigned Monday before Chief Justice James F. Fardy in Criminal court. Lorenz was shot to death by Appelt on March 10 near the former's home at 4521 Malden street. Appelt told police Lorenz had stolen the love of his wife, Waneta.

W-G-N PRESENTS 2 CHICAGOLAND HOUR SOLOISTS

Col. McCormick Speaks on Program Tonight.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Kathryn Witwer.

Kathryn Witwer, operatic and concert soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, violinist and concertmaster of the W-G-N orchestra, will be soloists on the Chicagoland hour tonight. It is broadcast from the main studio of W-G-N over the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9 to 10 p. m. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak on "The Annexation of Taxes." This will be the third of a series of talks on Texas by Col. McCormick.

Assisted by Chorus.

For her solos Miss Witwer will sing Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and the Scandinavian love song, "Last Night," by Halfdan Kjerulf. She will be supported in the latter song by the W-G-N chorus and the orchestra.

Mr. Wilkomirski, supported by the orchestra, will play the second and third movements of Mendelssohn's violin concerto.

Joseph Johnson will conduct the orchestra. The orchestra will open the program with Rimsky-Korsakoff's introduction to his ballet-opera, "Coq d'Or." Other orchestral presentations will include "Anitra's Dance," by Greig; "Morning Journals," by Strauss; "Tango," by Albeniz, and Rubenstein's Easter song, "Kamenoi Ostrow."

President Roosevelt's Jackson day address from 8:30 to 8:45 will be transmitted by loud speakers into W-G-N's No. 1 studio so that studio guests arriving early may hear part of it.

With W-G-N Since 1935.

Miss Witwer has been a W-G-N staff member since 1935. She appears on the Pageant of Melody program Monday evenings. She sang in "Don Giovanni," "Carmen," and "Die Walkuere" with the Chicago Opera company last season.

Mr. Wilkomirski began his musical career in Russia when he was 8 years old. He appeared with symphony orchestras in Europe and with the Chicago Symphony orchestra before joining W-G-N in 1938.

OLD WEST COMES TO CHICAGO FOR YOUNG CHICAGO

Chicago youngsters who have yearned to be full fledged cowboys will have an opportunity to do so during the 16 day engagement of the "Flying X" rodeo which opened last night in the Coliseum, 15th street and Wabash avenue. A contest to determine the city's best young cowhand will be open to boys between the ages of 4 and 12 years.

The "Flying X" rodeo, headed by Col. A. L. Gatewood, features 75 head of wild horses, 10 buffalo, and many new stars of the horse opera world.

Among performers who have never been seen in Chicago are Joe and Thelma Cody of Sterling, Colo.; Joe Evans of Fort Worth, Tex., and Patricia De Vore of Cheyenne, Wyo. Among those who appeared with the rodeo in Chicago last fall and who have returned are Earl and Janice Sutton, trick ropers; the Boehn Sisters of Fort Worth, Tex.; Si Perkins, cowboy clown; Red Ryder and Hazel McDonald, champion cowgirl.

Five pretty brunettes and one lone blonde—also pretty—will compete for queenly honors at the ninth annual Carnival of Champions at Loyola University next Wednesday night.

Three of the girls are from Mundelein college, and three are from Rosary college in River Forest. One queen from each group will be selected as queen of her school. The finalists were chosen by Loyola star athletes.

MOTHER CABRINI CANONIZATION IS A STEP NEARER

VATICAN CITY, March 28 (AP).—Canonization of Mother Francesca Saveria Cabrini drew a step nearer today when the Vatican City news service reported that a preparatory congregation of rites had, on March 18, examined the record of her miracles and found it satisfactory.

A new examination now will be carried out in conformity with canonical requirements after which the congregation of rites may be called to rule on the authenticity of the miracles.

Mother Cabrini, who died in Chicago in 1917, was buried in New York. She was beatified Nov. 13, 1938—the first American citizen ever thus honored.

Plan Hearings on Nonparty Municipal Judge Elections

The city council judiciary committee voted yesterday to hold public hearings soon on a legislative proposal to provide for the nonpartisan election of Municipal court judges. Ald. H. L. Brody [39th] said no definite date for the hearings has been set.

Lieut. Col. R. L. Renth, general supervisor and assistant professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago schools, is in charge of the competition, which will begin at 9 a. m. Tilden Technical High school has won the competition for the last two years.

Radio Changes

W-G-N continues to broadcast on a frequency of 720 kilocycles today, tho it is moving day for some 802 of the 893 standard broadcasting stations of the United States. W-G-N is one of the 25 clear channel stations in the nation on which 80 per cent of the listeners are said to rely mainly for their programs. Assignment to a clear channel means that no other station is permitted on the same frequency.

The reallocation of broadcasting stations' frequencies is being made under terms of the North American regional broadcasting agreement. The shifts are expected to minimize interference with stations in Cuba, Canada, and Mexico.

The effect on listeners will be that they will find most stations at slightly higher numbers on the dial. Push button sets will require adjustment.

PHILIP'S 14 NOW, SO HE'S ALLOWED TO LIVE WITH DAD

Thursday was Philip Covnot Jr.'s 14th birthday, the age of "reason and discretion" under Illinois law. So yesterday when the lad told Judge Rudolph Desort that he preferred to live with his father, his wish was granted.

Philip's mother, Lila, 5657 Race avenue, and his father, Philip Sr., 1725 Wilson avenue, were divorced April 29 and Mrs. Covnot was granted custody. The youth ran away from his mother and insisted that he wanted to live with his father. On March 13, Judge Desort ruled Philip Jr. didn't legally know what he wanted and continued the hearing until after the birthday.

DR. WM. H. WALSH IS DEAD; HOSPITAL PLANNING EXPERT

Dr. William Henry Walsh, one of the country's leading consulting experts on hospital planning and organization, died yesterday in Billings hospital, where he underwent a major operation early this week. He was 59 years old.

Since 1928 Dr. Walsh had specialized in studies and surveys to determine the hospital needs of communities in connection with hospital construction, a field in which he pioneered. Dr. W. P. Morrill of the American Hospital association estimated that Dr. Walsh had been associated with the planning of more than 250 million dollars' worth of hospital construction in this country and in Central and South America.

New Hospital Near Completion.

Dr. Walsh's death left near completion his plans for a $3,000,000 hospital in Hartford, Conn. He recently completed plans for a $1,000,000 hospital not yet under construction, at Springfield, Ill.

Dr. Walsh was born in Philadelphia, Pa., educated at Girard college there, and received his medical degree at the University of Pennsylvania. He served with the army hospital corps during the Philippine insurrection in 1899 and 1900.

Served in World War.

In 1911 he joined the United States Public Health service as surgeon, and from that time until the war was superintendent, chief surgeon, and medical director of various Philadelphia hospitals. During the world war he served as a major on the staff of the surgeon general of the army and as commandant of base hospital 58 at Camp Grant, Ill., and in France with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

He was twice appointed executive secretary of the American Hospital association and was special consultant to the Chicago health department at the time of his death.

Dr. Walsh leaves his widow, Mrs. Irene Schulz Walsh, and a son, William Frederic. The Walsh home is at 1106 Brummel street, Evanston.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 929 Belmont avenue.

GRANTED DIVORCE FROM ATTACHE OF U. S. CONSUL

Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday granted Mrs. Abbie Jaques Chiperfield, 30 years old, 3750 Lake Shore drive, an uncontested divorce from her husband, Claude B. Chiperfield, 30, a member of the American consulate in Athens, Greece.

Mrs. Chiperfield, who met her husband while on a world cruise in 1936 and married him in Arabia, testified that he struck her on Aug. 19 and 20 last year. She was represented by Attorney Leo Norville.

2 KILLED, 8 HURT IN STREET CAR AND AUTO CRASH

Collision Occurs on Far South Side.

A young man and a young woman, both about 20 years old, were killed and eight other young persons, including four girls, were seriously injured early today in a collision between a street car and an automobile at 118th street and Avenue O.

Firemen Remove Victims.

The automobile, owned by Pinkowsky, was driving north on Avenue O when it struck the street car, which was eastbound on 118th street, in the side center. The street car's side was smashed in and the small sedan was virtually demolished. Firemen removed three victims from the automobile with crowbars. All the injured were taken to South Chicago hospital.

Stephen Pawlk, 36 years old, 567 Madison street, a laborer, was found fatally injured yesterday at Adams and Aberdeen streets, apparently the victim of a hit-and-run automobile driver.

Joseph Jarvis, 54 years old, 4785 Archer avenue, was killed last night when an automobile he was driving left Archer road near 75th street, east of Willow Springs, and struck a cement post in a cemetery. Willow Springs county highway police found Peter Stube, 50, a meat packer living on Oak Lawn road near Willow Springs, standing near the wrecked car.

Forced from Car, He Says.

Stube told them he was the owner of the car, and that Jarvis, a casual acquaintance, had requested him to stop. When he did so, Jarvis pushed him out and drove off, wrecking the car a short distance away, Stube said.

An unidentified man about 50 years old was killed last night when he was struck by the automobile of a hit-run driver in front of 2640 North avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 192 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 144 were killed in Chicago, where 5,001 were injured in traffic in the same period.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

BRILL—Louis Brill. In memory of our dearly beloved husband and father, who suddenly passed away four years ago today.
DEVOTED MOM, DOLL, AND BUB.

DUNN—Robert R. Dunn. In loving memory.
The sun and moon are shining
Upon a lone and silent grave.
Beneath lies one we dearly loved,
But whom we could not save.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
Little do they know our heartaches
That our smiles hide all the while.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear Robert,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
WIFE, BROTHERS, AND SISTERS.

GREEN—Mary H. Green. In tender memory of my mother.
I have this knowledge and am glad,
Not even death can take what love has had.
MARSHALL GREEN.

LISS—Bertha Liss. In loving memory of our dear wife, mother, and sister, who passed away three years ago today.
HUSBAND, DAUGHTER, AND SISTERS.

LUTZ—Harold E. Lutz. In memory of our beloved husband, father, and son, who entered into rest one year ago today, March 29, 1940.
We miss the sunshine of your smile,
The voice we loved is still.
Your death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

Miss Patricia Wilson to Wed John Rhoades

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a family dinner at home at 209 Lake Shore drive last night Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wilson announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to John Harson Rhoades III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Rhoades of New York and Sharon, Conn. A second party to celebrate the engagement of the Wilsons' only daughter will be given next Wednesday night when Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will entertain at dinner at the Racquet club and at dancing in the Pump room for some of Miss Wilson's young friends.

No plans have been made for the wedding, for Mrs. Wilson has just returned home from St. Luke's hospital, having undergone a major operation, and she wants to be fully recovered before becoming involved in wedding details. Also, Mr. Rhoades, who is engaged in business in Chicago, expects to be called into military service, so his orders will have some bearing on the date.

Miss Wilson Devotes Much Time to Red Cross.

Since her graduation from Vassar last June Miss Wilson has been active on the executive board of the Chicago Vassar club and with the staff assistants corps of the American Red Cross. Four mornings a week she dons her uniform to devote the day to corps duties. She prepared at the Faulkner school and Ferry Hall and was introduced to society at the Wilsons' Lake Bluff summer home, Foss court, in 1937. The family will return to Lake Bluff later this spring.

Miss Wilson has two brothers, Robert, who will return to the Tome school tomorrow after his spring vacation, and Ted, who attends the Virginia Military institute and who is not having a spring vacation this year. Instead, he and the other students will have five day march and drill.

Mr. Rhoades has been making his home with seven other bachelors in the famous Log House in Sycamore place, Highland Park. He is a graduate of the Hotchkiss school and of Williams college, where he was a member of the Gargoyle society.

All Debut Plans Have Tag, "Conditions Permitting."

There always is talk about "conditions permitting" when plans for the next debut season are being made. Last year it was said that because of the war that debut season might possibly be the last. There will be another, however—and probably many more—for many families are discussing summer and fall dates.

One of the nicest of the summer parties is a dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow will give for their granddaughter, Miss Frances Reid Clow, on Friday night, July 11, in the gardens of their Lake Forest home. Miss Clow is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent S. Clow. The William Clows gave a dance for the debutante's elder sister, Mrs. Burke Williamson [Elise Hamill Clow], when she was a debutante.

Frances Clow, who attends the Foxcroft school, is in town on her Easter holiday. She will return east tomorrow.

Lawrence W. Scudders to Give Dance for Daughter.

The Lawrence W. Scudders are talking about giving a dance for their daughter, Miss Mary Stuart Scudder, following Miss Ann Carpenter's tea late in June. That would be the night of the horse show ball, the closing night of the annual Lake Forest horse show, scheduled for June 18-21, IF the show is held at all.

Miss Scudder it at home for the spring holiday from Sarah Lawrence college. Her elder sister, Miss Clarina Scudder, who was introduced to society last summer, is living in New York with four other young women who, like Miss Scudder, are hoping to find parts in Broadway plays.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forsythe Alexander are planning a dance to introduce their daughter, Miss Marjorie Roberts Alexander, some time during the season. Miss Alexander, a student at Bryn Mawr, is spending the spring holiday in Miami with her grandmother, Mrs. William H. Roberts. The Alexanders reside in East Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hutchins Observing Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins will be receiving congratulations on their 28th wedding anniversary in Boca Grande, Fla., today. They will remain at the southern resort, popular with many Chicago families, until April 7.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Gale Taylor III. [Eleanor Roberts] are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Samuel Gale Taylor IV., at the Henrotin hospital yesterday morning. The baby, a grandson of Mrs. Charles Roberts of Los Angeles, Cal., and of Samuel Gale Taylor Jr. of Chicago, has a brother and a sister, John Winthrop and Constance.

The 40th annual Chicago all-breed dog show, to be held today and tomorrow in the International amphitheater, will bring keen rivalry between Chicago's canine thorobreds and their aristocratic cousins from other cities. Among the 1,430 dogs on exhibition are many entered by local fanciers.

The Irish wolfhounds, which won honors for Charles H. Morse Jr. at the recent Westminster Kennel club show in New York, will be competing here. Mrs. Robert Cavanaugh is entering her Great Danes, and Albert W. Haris, his Chesapeake retrievers.

The Kellogg M. Pattersons' daughter, Barbara, at home for her spring vacation from National Park college, Forest Glen, Md., will be able to watch her springer, Green Valley Britannia, in action. Britannia has been best of breed in several recent shows, including the Greater St. Louis show. The class for springers also has attracted Mrs. Janet H. Henneberry's champions. Other Chicagoans who will exhibit dogs are the Conway H. Olmsteds, the Stuyvesant Peabodys, the Orrin H. Bakers, and the James B. Boyles.

Will Become Bride This Summer

Miss Angele Centlivre, who will be married sometime this summer to Waldo Logan. Miss Centlivre is the daughter of Louis Alfonse Centlivre of South Bend and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Downey. She was educated at St. Mary's in South Bend and at the Sacred Heart near there. Mr. Logan, son of Mrs. Frank Granger Logan, will depart within six weeks, depending on the war and the weather, on a scientific expedition to the West Indies. The wedding will take place upon his return.

Good Morning!

To amuse and interest is all "The Lady Eve" seeks to do and, in this twofold ambition, succeeds admirably.

The rather remarkable thing about the film is that the principal players run far from true to type. . . . Miss Barbara [Stella Dallas] Stanwyck does some slapstick vamping that will bowl you over, albeit with a suavely modern touch. Henry [Abraham Lincoln] Fonda resolves into a simple stooge before your eyes. Charles Coburn, the strong, the noble, turns his talents to card sharpery. Eric Blore eschews valeting and takes up lording. And so, you see, there are only Eugene Pallette and William Demarest following their usual custom—of doing just anything. The former is seen as a capitalist, floundering in strange waters. The latter plays bodyguard for the rich, the timid, the befuddled Mr. Fonda.

The story isn't so unusual. . . . It's about a pretty adventuress who, with her father and her father's friend, sails the seas on handsome liners, making a living off'n suckers who fall for her wiles and get into card games with pop and Gerald. It was not in the cards, however, for Jean to go gaga over a victim. . . . This she does. Object of her affections is the wealthy young reptile hunter and bring 'em back alive-er, Charles. Like all the others, he's a sucker for the tale advanced as to the background and financial standing of "Col." Harrington and his daughter. . . . When, thru the activities of his canny bodyguard who sees the captain, who produces a certain photograph, he learns THE AWFUL TRUTH, Charles takes to his heels with dispatch. . . .

Comes "Sir Alfred McGlennan Keith" [?????] into the picture. An old friend of the "colonel" and his daughter. . . . It is with his aid that Jean becomes the Lady Eve and wreaks sweet vengeance on Charles. . . . Incidentally my lady burns her own fingers. But—ze finale! Oo-la-la!

The piece is expertly acted and directed—tough, tender, and surprising. It is handsomely mounted and Miss Stanwyck, slim as a rapier, wears, with an air, some knockout clothes.

Ah-h yes, indeed! There's reason aplenty for that perpetually cocky look in Husband Robert Taylor's eyes.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., March 28—Jimmy Roosevelt's junket to Mexico City for the world première of "Pot o' Gold" may develop into a superduper of them all—a good will jamboree which the whole movie business will take over, during which there will be a solid week of world premières of whatever the studios have handy that looks important enough.

This development, which is now being seriously talked up, would involve the motion picture business, as represented by the Hays office, and Uncle Sam, as represented by Goodwillers Jock Whitney and Nelson Rockefeller. In one great, affectionate gesture to its sister republic the United States would send down an entire trainload of stars, publicity men, and reporters, and the Mexican government's tourist department would be the official and lavish host. Thus would Ann Sheridan and Joe E. Brown be used to improve relations south of the border.

In a way, Ann and Joe E. are responsible for this turning of another Hollywood picnic into a major effort of serious diplomacy. Jimmy had planned his affair for the April 10 week-end, had arranged for four Pan-American planes to take guests to and from. Mexico was enthusiastic about the idea. Jimmy said he would bring stars—not alone Paulette Goddard and Horace Heidt from his picture, but also others from other studios if he could get 'em. And whom would Mexico like?

Well, Mexico particularly would like Miss Sheridan and Mr. Brown. It would also like Hedy Lamarr and some others, but not quite so much. Annie and Joe seem to be the hot personalities down there.

Naturally the Warners aren't too keen to have their recently unsuspended oomph girl plugging another producer's product, and other studios feel the same way; yet they realize the value of good will. Out of this understandable disinclination has grown the present scheme—to plug all of Hollywood and make it one heck of a week. If the plan goes thru, Roosevelt's April 10 date will be canceled and a month devoted to whooping things up.

The film will be 60 per cent Goldwyn, 40 per cent Disney—a combination of "live action" and cartoon such as Walt began to develop in the forthcoming Robert Benchley comedy, "The Reluctant Dragon." Sam will make his end of it—the life story of Andersen—in his studios; Disney's cartoons of the Andersen fairy tales will, of course, be made in Walt's plant. Work on the production begins Monday; shooting of Goldwyn's live action will start in December. The entire picture will be in color, and will cost $1,500,000 or $2,000,000. The release could be late spring of 1942.

The combination of Disney and Goldwyn came about because Sam has for three years been working on an Andersen biography and Disney for even longer has planned to use the fairy tales for cartoons. Each heard of the other's property and they were finally brought together by a lawyer. Says Goldwyn: "This will be just as great a stride as sound was."

Rita Hayworth, who has been off her home lot, Columbia, since Ben Hecht's "Angels Over Broadway," returns to play opposite — and to dance with—Fred Astaire in the musical, "He's My Uncle." She's just finished being Ty Power's dancing siren in "Blood and Sand," over at Fox. . . . Clark Gable and Carole Lombard are figuring to buy Winfield Sheehan's ranch in Hidden Valley. . . . Deanna Durbin's parents have sent out the invitations to her wedding to Vaughn Paul, April 18, at the Wilshire M. E. church.

Winner in Music Festival Pleases in Song Recital

Jane Nelson, the comely contralto who was adjudged best woman singer in the Chicagoland Music festival contests of 1939, gave a program of songs in Italian, German, French, and English in Kimball hall last night.

She won her audience by her sincerity, by the grace and charm of her manner, by the richness of her basic voice quality, and by the obvious soundness of her musical instincts. Even though her technical equipment often proved inadequate, a listener could never doubt her taste. Whether the planned voice coloring or phrase contour or other effect came off smoothly or not, the intention behind it was always on to command respect.

Miss Nelson will be an even more interesting artist when she has brought her voice fully under control —when that occasional wavering and sense of strain, and that tentative, unsupported quality in the softer tones of her top half octave have become no more than memories of a difficult transitional period.

John W. Baird Being Married in East Today

In historic First Parish church in Brookline, Mass., this afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Marion Wood, daughter of the Orrin Grant Woods of Brookline, will become the bride of John Wyllys Baird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Green Baird of Scott street, Chicago. The Rev. Abbot Peterson will officiate at the ceremony, which will be followed by a reception at the Wood home. After their return from a two weeks' wedding trip, Mr. Baird and his bride will be at home in Chicago.

Miss Alice Wood will be maid of honor for her sister, and two sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Katherine and Miss Olive Baird, will be among the bridesmaids. Other bridesmaids will be Miss Polly Faulkner of Cambridge, Mass., cousin of the bride; Mrs. H. Holton Wood of Brookline, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Mary Holt of Portland, Me.; Miss Mary Laverack of Brookline; Miss Julie Camp of Washington, D. C., and Miss Jeanann Gray of Richmond, Va.

Warner Green Baird Jr. will be his brother's best man. Four brothers of the bride, H. Holton, Arthur T., Orrin G. Jr., and Harcourt Wood, all of Brookline, will be among the ushers. Others who will usher are Gordon Ewen of Evanston, John Macy of Winnetka, and H. William Croxton of Evanston.

For her marriage yesterday in Williamsburg, Va., to John Marshall Kernochan, Miss Adelaide Chatfield Taylor wore a graceful old fashioned gown of ivory satin and lace, particularly appropriate to the historic surroundings of the Bruton Parish church, in which the wedding took place. The bride is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor of Washington, D. C., formerly of Lake Forest.

The bride's gown combined satin and lace from the wedding gowns worn by her mother and her grandmother, the late Mrs. George Preston Blow. Her lace edged tulle veil was held in place by orange blossoms and she carried a prayer book edged in white camellias and a shower bouquet of white freesia and camellias.

Miss Rose Chatfield Taylor, who was her sister's only attendant, wore an aqua crêpe gown and a wide brimmed leghorn hat trimmed with pink roses which matched those in her bouquet. The bride's mother wore a gray wool crêpe gown with a matching hat trimmed with pink flowers, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Marshall R. Kernochan of New York, chose a gown of beige wool with hat to match.

Following their wedding at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the First Baptist church, Evanston, Miss Betty Lingle and Richard K. West will take off in a little two-seater plane for a wedding trip thru the south. The bride is the daughter of the Samuel E. Lingles of Evanston, and Mr. West's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William C. West of Evanston.

Mrs. Robert H. West of Detroit will be matron of honor. Miss Mary Louise Arnold of Freeport, Me., formerly of Evanston, Miss Betty Brewer of Philadelphia, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Marjorie West of Boston, will be bridesmaids.

The bride's cousin, the Rev. Arthur E. Holt, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Charles H. Heimsath. A small reception will follow in Scott hall of Northwestern university.

From faraway India comes news of a marriage of interest here, that of Miss Frances Holmes Halsted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moore Halsted Jr. of Bombay, formerly of Englewood, N. J., to Robert Parry Rye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Rye of Montclair, N. J., formerly of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Olsen, 3505 Janssen avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their niece, Miss Iolene Oakes, to Elmer H. Stonehouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stonehouse of 9553 South Hamilton avenue. The ceremony will take place April 5 in St. Chrysostom's church, and will be followed by a reception at the Chicago Towers club. Miss Oakes is a former student at De Pauw university, while Mr. Stonehouse is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Fierce Ghost.

An oriental pupil in the Parker elementary school handed in the following composition entitled What I Hope to Be to his teacher, Miss Catherine Kiernan:

I hope to be a soldier, cause I love to be. and I love to get kill to, be a soldier is a good gentleman. Me get killed, I will be fierce ghost. Go kill the enemy's general, then I is very happy, this all did I like.

Mid War's Alarums.

A letter dated Feb. 9, 1941, from Darlington, England, received by the Chicago Symphony orchestra the other day read:

"Dear Sir: I should very much like to have a photograph of the Chicago Symphony orchestra conducted by Dr. Frederick Stock. I prize records made by them very much and it is one of the few means of hearing music at present over here.

I am, your faithfully,

In the Morning Mail.

Dear Miss Provines:

Yes, the day of the Morse telegraph operator is ending, and in the sunset of his era we pause to salute him. But why not finish the picture?

The printers and teletypes displaced him and their clickety-click drowns out the sound of his brass key as they come foward to meet the demands of this hectic world for more speed. Sixty—seventy—seventy-five words per minute; tearing out the hearts of a younger generation of printer operators as their nimble fingers strain to clear the channels of traffic.

And as they falter, above their din we hear the screaming pitch of high speed radio signals—200 words per minute and more—modulated lightning — spawned thru the efforts of science to mock the cries of a pel-mel civilization for speed—speed—speed!

No longer does one man work a circuit alone. Three and four combine their efforts to prepare the tape that feeds a single automatic radio circuit.

New York or 'Frisco, Honolulu or the Vatican; the world has shrunk and the human element is lessened. The romance of telegraphy has given way to mechanized perfection and, while the old Morse operator shakes his head in bewilderment, the lad who dreams of pounding brass must think of other fields.

Sees America Growing Into Nation of Aged

Within a generation the population of the United States will have reached a peak of approximately 140 millions, but it will be a population with fewer children and more old people.

This was the prophecy of Samuel A. Stouffer, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, at a session of the three day midwest conference on tomorrow's children in the Palmer House yesterday. Prof. Stouffer spoke on "We, the People, What is Happening to Us?" before 400 delegates attending from eight states.

The fourth of its kind to be held in the United States, the conference is concerned with the development of a population policy for America. It opened Thursday and will close today.

"While I am speaking there will be about 150 babies born in the United States," Prof. Stouffer explained. "But in 1920 in the same time the stork delivered 225 babies. Also while I am speaking today there will be about 100 deaths. In 1920 the rate would have been 125. In other words, at the 1920 rate, the net increase would have been 100, but today the net increase is only 50. Moreover, we know that the number of births will be fewer 20 years from now even than it is at present."

Prof. Stouffer pointed out that after such an analysis of trends in birth and death rates it is possible to forecast that the population will reach its peak of around 140 millions within 20 years, with a decline thereafter. He said the number of persons who are 60 to 64 years old 40 years from now will be practically double what it is today.

Interlocking were two papers given by Dr. Margaret Gerard of the Institute for Psychanalysis and Dr. Melville J. Herskovits, noted Northwestern university authority on anthropology, during the afternoon session.

In speaking on "Emotional Development of Tomorrow's Children" Dr. Gerard pleaded for greater social and family planning to avoid the grossest injuries to the developing child, which, she contended, were deprivation and suffering. "One may hope for adjusted, contented parents who have children only if and when they can love them, give them economic security, and arrange for proper placing between children," she said.

Dr. Herskovits traced the influence of culture on heredity and asserted that it is a factor of tremendous importance in behavior. "It is our duty to see that every child shall have those social, educational, and economic opportunities that will develop his potentialities to the fullest," he declared.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

Women who used to buy their beauty preparations in Europe had a great fancy for a French bath cream. It's an unusual product, and a lovely one. It's rubbed into the skin before you pop into the tub, and it's something of a miracle worker at keeping tender skin soft and smooth. The cream is again sold in Chicago and its users are tickled to death at rediscovering it. It's not inexpensive, but it rates awfully high as a bath luxury. One woman we know has used it for years as a foot cream. She's understandingly vain of her feet, which are beautiful, and she gives this cream all the credit for keeping the skin white, soft, and smooth.

The white hyacinth family is a good one to know in the spring. There are a delectable cologne, a bath oil, dusting powder, and a few other items, all in the same fragrance. This scent was something of a sneaker. It came in quietly and women went absolutely mad about it. The line has grown and grown, without much fanfare, but for the good reason that women like the scent and the preparations that carry it. It's a grand fragrance, very cool and springlike—and the things are not expensive.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

LENGTHENED STAY.

"We should try Herr Darmal's plan. It's always the bold stroke that wins," Twysden cried, beaming at Hertha.

"It quadruples the risk," Don Barron said. "I don't think you'll be able to slip back into Germany so simply. That's just wishful thinking. They'll be just as alert as ever. And once you're in Germany, you'll have a whole nation as enemies."

"But the fact that we are Germans enables us to pass more easily among them," Darmal said.

"That is true, Don," Hertha nodded. "We'll feel more at home, won't be so conspicuous."

It was logical, of course, as a theory, but Don Barron was too old in experience to allow theories to override hard, human fact. The nearest line of escape was always the safest, because it meant the shortest risk. He had to clamp down his patience as Twysden, elated at the thought that he had Hertha on his side, cried:

"What's more, I can work the trick at the Dutch border. I've good friends there. I know I can manage it. . . ."

"You didn't manage it in the months Herr Darmal was actually inside Germany and just as eager to escape," Sigi said sweetly.

"There were obstacles," Twysden mumbled flushing.

"Plenty," Sigi shrugged. "And none of us could overcome them. Do we have to go back and go thru them all again?"

"But, Sigi, dear, conditions have changed. I mean, if they think grandfather's here they won't expect him . . ."

"How can we be sure?" Sigi drawled, looking at her crimson nails. "They've always been able to trace grandfather in Germany. They trailed him here. Who's to be certain they won't trail him back again?"

"O!" Hertha shuddered and went white. "It's—it's not possible. . . . And we've got Mr. Barron to help us now."

"Then why stop him doing it?" Sigi asked.

Embarrased silence settled down on the room. Don Barron knew that Darmal and Twysden were against him, while Hertha, naturally, sided with her grandfather. Sigi alone supported him, but that was more likely to antagonize than to win the others. Darmal seemed to be gathering himself for a final statement when there was a knock at the door and Knust came in.

"There is fresh news," he said. "Norway also has been invaded."

They stared, unable to believe their ears.

"It is true," he went on. "The Nazis are in Oslo. There is fighting in the Kattegat, all up the coast as far as Narvik. There have been landings everywhere."

Hertha stared as tho dazed: "But how—Why?" she cried.

"To save them from the British," Knust leered. "They come under the protection of bombs, too."

"But they're fighting, you say?" Don Barron put in.

"All over the Kattegat. The forts have sunk Nazi warships. Troopships have been torpedoed. The British navy is there fighting, too. But the Nazis have landed with the help of the Fifth Column, of course. And their air force has taken over the flying fields."

"Sweden?" Don Barron asked shortly.

"Not Sweden—not yet," Knust said.

Twysden said almost with a touch of triumph: "That settles it."

Don Barron knew what he meant, but did not answer. He left that to Hertha, who asked breathlessly: "You mean grandfather's escape?"

"Of course! Sweden's out. Sheer madness to try and cross the channel with fighting going on, ships pouring in and out of the Baltic and all that. It'll be lousy with mines, too."

"And," Darmal said flatly. "It would be into a trap, anyhow. If Germany's got Norway then they block that road to the sea."

"There's Finland and the port of Petsamo," Sigi said maliciously.

"This is no time for joking," Darmal said icily. "The situation is grave. My judgment is borne out."

Don Barron, thinking hard, agreed he was right about Sweden. It was a cul-de-sac—with danger in it if Germany followed up by invading her.

"It leaves us only the Jutland coast," he sighed. It was not going to be easy, but nothing would be easy now.

"I'm not at all in favor of that," Darmal said frigidly. "More than ever I favor Germany again and the land frontiers."

Knust's eyes widened as he listened: "That will mean Dachau, Herr Darmal, if we live to see it."

"You don't think there's a chance thru Germany?" Don Barron asked.

"Haven't we tried hard enough?" Knust shrugged.

"Not with Herr Barron's help?" Hertha pleaded with the innocent subtlety of the naif.

"I would not undertake it," the man frowned. "Look, the whole Baltic coast is German patrolled. It will be more on the alert than ever. Every port will be doubly watched. They will take you as you land, Herr Darmal."

"Can we get to the Jutland coast? Could we get a boat of any sort for England?" Barron asked.

"If we are quick, I think, yes. The guards will not yet be sure of themselves. I can get a car; that is easy, it is my trade. Military signs for the car, permits—they ought to be managed, too."

"You suggest nothing else?"

"There is nothing else that I can see—but staying here in Odense, and that will be only waiting for arrest. It is the best way."

Hertha looked from one to the other with pale, scared glances. As her eyes rested on him, Twysden said stiffly:

"I don't altogether agree——"

"I altogether agree," Don Barron said quietly. "It is our only chance."

"But I say——" began Twysden ruffling like a fighting cock.

"I've said it," Don Barron's voice had a note that made Twysden gulp and go silent.

Into that silence Darmal's voice came icily:

"I cannot approve. It is my safety that is at stake."

"And my responsibility, Herr Darmal," Don Barron said, evenly. "I do not feel justified in taking any other way."

"Don—Tony. What does it mean?" Hertha glanced from Twysden staring sullenly at the floor to Barron. "Don, you're not insisting?"

"Why not," Sigi said impatiently. "He's the man who has to do the job. He has a right to choose his own way."

Hertha winced and dropped her eyes. There was a silence that was both tense and inimical. Darmal sitting frigidly, unable to grasp that his decision had been challenged, said grimly:

"Do I understand, young man, that my considered judgment——?"

Don Barron braced himself for a blow up. Startlingly Hertha lifted her head. With a steady smile at him she said:

"Herr Barron is right, grandfather. It is he who has to carry this thru, and he sees best what must be done—he would not have been sent to us if he were not absolutely to be relied on. We can help him best by trusting him. I do. We are in your hands, Don—completely."

Rhubarb pie is one of the best, good rhubarb pie, that is. The filling should be neither too "soupy" nor too stiff; the rhubarb should retain its shape and bright color, and the pie should be sweet enough, but with a little tartness nevertheless. This recipe is simple and makes a pie of the kind I've been talking about.

Rhubarb Pie.

Pastry for double crust
4 cups diced rhubarb, unpeeled
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons flour
2 eggs
3 tablespoons butter

Mix sugar, salt and flour together and add to rhubarb. Beat eggs and mix them in. Fill unbaked pastry, dot butter over the top of the filling, and top with lattice strips or a well pricked upper crust. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and make half an hour longer.

THINGS AREN'T WHAT THEY SEEM DEPARTMENT: Pears belong to the rose family, onions are lilies. The peanut is not a nut but a legume vegetable; neither is the cashew a nut, but the seed of the cashew apple. Tomatoes are a fruit, not a vegetable; globe artichokes are flowers of the thistle family; asparagus is a lily of the valley.

KITCHEN SCRAPS: Ever hear of a "topepo"? It's a cross between a tomato and a bell pepper. . . . Know that it's weevils that make Mexican "jumping beans" jump? . . . That a "finnan haddie" is a Findon haddock? The term originally applied to haddock cured at the fishing village of Findon, Scotland. . . . Apple juice and apple cider start out to be the same thing, but apple juice isn't allowed to ferment, even the least little. . . . Marrons are preserved chestnuts. . . . Fig trees grow male and female, and it takes wasp-borne pollen from the male fig to enable the female fig to ripen and grow edible.

One of the most interesting letters the cooking department has received recently was this one [quoted in part]: "I have read THE TRIBUNE for over 75 years, so feel free to ask for some precise information, and hope you can supply me with a recipe for making oatmeal crackers without any sweetening of any sort. Fifty years ago the bakeries made crackers in this way, but the tendency of moderns is to use more and more sugar in all their recipes. My doctor forbids me to eat sweet stuff. I am a very old man and have difficulty getting food which I like and which is good for me, and I am very fond of oatmeal crackers. I am nearly blind, but hope you can decipher this."

George M. Cohan's Film Biography Authorized

New York, March 28 [N. Y. News].—George M. Cohan's life and songs, the film rights to which long have been sought by Hollywood, finally will go on the screen as a Warner Bros. special production entitled "Yankee Doodle Dandy," it was learned today. In granting the Warners permission to film his life and songs Cohan also indicated his choice of James Cagney as the actor who, on the basis of his personal and professional life, was best suited to portray him. Many of the songs written and made famous by the dean of American actors will be heard in the film story of his life, among them: "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Over There," "You're a Grand Old Flag," "Mary's a Grand Old Name," and "Give My Regards to Broadway."

Universal Day—Beware of irritation. Use patience in working out details.

April—Those going thru the disintegration of a nine year will find that this month of April stresses law and order in the process. You can't just break up things this month without remembering the practical issues that a four brings. You may have begun to feel things falling away from you, but there is still some constructive work to be done, so hold to an orderly retreat right now. It is a good time to systematize your work by clearing out unnecessary items and cutting down schedules to the barest essentials. Do a practical job in whatever department this nine year seems to be working. Don't dump everything in the waste basket until you have been assured it no longer has any practical use.

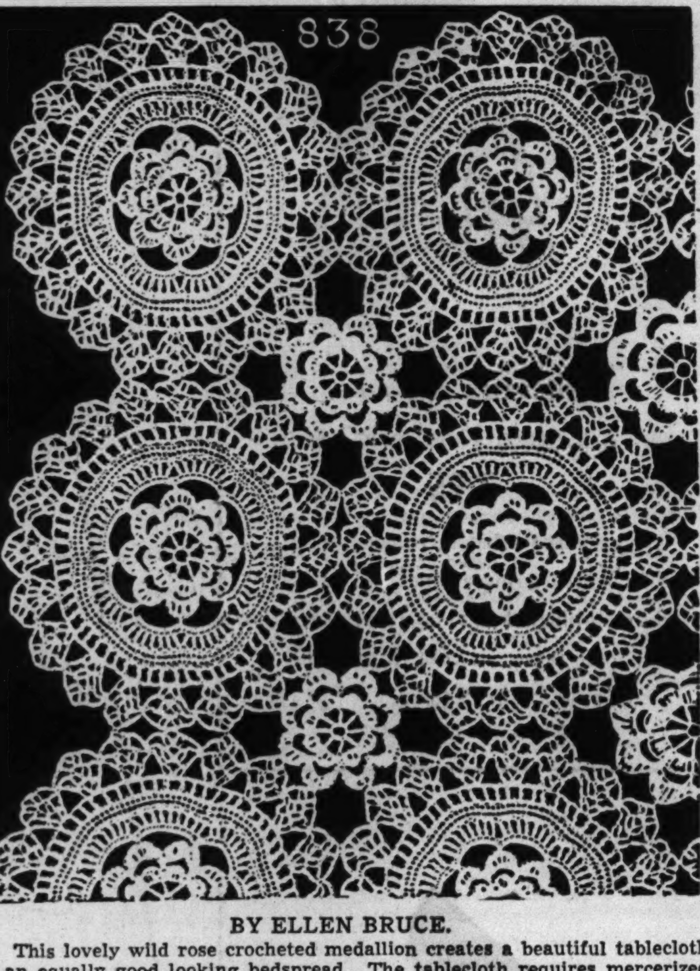
Crocheted Rose Medallion



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

This lovely wild rose crocheted medallion creates a beautiful tablecloth or an equally good looking bedspread. The tablecloth requires mercerized crochet cotton, while the weight of the thread for a bedspread is slightly heavier, with no sheen. Extremely fine thread may be used to create a dresser scarf.

For instruction in crocheting the wild rose medallion, No. 838, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Average players don't mind admitting that they still have something to learn about the technique of squeeze plays and other difficult coups, but if any one were to suggest that they were deficient in so simple a department of the game as mere trump drawing, they probably would be highly insulted. The fact remains, however, that even in that department there is the opportunity for expert play. Note today's hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

NORTH
♠ Q J 6 2
♦ A Q
♣ A 6 4

WEST
♠ None

♣ J 9 8 2

SOUTH
♦ 10 8
♣ K Q 10 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the heart king and continued for two more rounds, declarer ruffing the third. The trump ace then was laid down, and altho declarer immediately discovered that all four of the missing trumps were in East's hand, he was not perturbed and went right ahead drawing trumps. He then led to the club ace, back to the king, and cashed the queen. He was thoroly disgusted when the jack failed to drop. With a grim expression on his face, a sort of "Well, this finesse has just got to work," declarer tried the diamond finesse. But East, with no visible sign of sympathy, gobbled up the trick with the king and returned a diamond to dummy's blank ace. The remaining heart in dummy had to be given to the defenders for the setting trick.

Declarer called on his partner to witness that he had been the victim of atrocious breaks, but North was no more inclined to sympathize than were the gleeful opponents. North pointed out, in no uncertain terms, that South had played the hand like a blacksmith, that victory had been assured if South had only had the vision to realize it.

Of course, North was correct. After ruffing the third heart, it was all right for declarer to lay down one high trump from his own hand, but then he should have led to dummy's trump jack and deliberately ruffed dummy's fourth heart. Whether East chose to ruff would make no difference. In that event declarer would merely overruff and draw East's last trump by leading to the queen. East probably would choose to discard on the fourth heart and, in that case, declarer would ruff low, cash his remaining trump honor, and then enter dummy with the club ace, to draw East's last trump with the spade queen while he himself discarded a diamond.

With this supremely simple line of play, declarer would have assured himself of two heart ruffs in his own hand, four spade tricks, one diamond, and three clubs, a total of ten tricks for his contract.

Cites Failure to Teach Youth How to Work

Young America has been permitted to grow up without learning how to work. Aubrey Williams, administrator of the National Youth administration, yesterday told some 3,000 school officials at the 46th annual meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in the Stevens hotel. The meeting ends today.

Mr. Williams' talk dealt with the problem of fitting 21,700,000 young people between the ages of 16 and 24 into America's defense plans. Of this number, he said, there are 13,000,000 in the labor market with 4,700,000 unemployed. In addition to the 13 millions, he reported, there are 8,700,000 in schools and colleges.

"A sad commentary on American civilization in a time of crisis today," declared Mr. Williams, "is the fact that during the last 25 years, manual work has been taken out of the lives of most young people altho more than 85 per cent of all Americans make their living by manual work."

He urged educators to seek a new balance between cultural studies and manual training but to make the training fit the student for earning a living.

Of the national defense program and its opportunities for youth, Mr. Williams said: "They are needed for the ship building industry and the airplane factories. In November of 1940, there were 126,000 persons employed in ship building. A minimum of 500,000 will be needed to build the ships required under present defense plans."

In the airplane industry, he added, there were 203,000 persons employed in October of 1940. By October, 1941, more than 700,000 workers will be needed.

At an afternoon session, Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college, and of the association, urged a balanced diet of cultural and vocational work.

"During times of national stress," he said, "too much emphasis should not be placed on the training of young men and women for 'practical living' to the exclusion of cultural interest."

At a dinner last night, which was the third general session of the association meeting, former Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri spoke on "Education and Democracy." He told of the growing tendency to restrict the free flow of goods across state lines and the need for better trade relations with Latin America.

Your Stars Today

By WYNN

Saturday, March 29.

Don't let a rough start spoil anything today—better still, don't let a rough start get started. Routine the morning; stick to the tried and true. Afternoon and early evening are good for social developments. Late evening: avoid the blues.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from this to next birthday tests ideals, standards, especially in relations with others, secrets, law. Emotions high; slow down July-December. Mind keener, study, train. Don't force money issues. Danger: June 29-July 18; Oct. 7-30.

Tomorrow.

Afternoon excellent for planning ahead; preserve new ideas for later use.

Spring Suits Start a Rush for Petticoats

BY REA SEEGER.

When spring suits take over the shopping interest there is also a rush for sleekly fitted petticoats to wear under the slim suit skirts. While costume slips are likewise designed and cut for suit underlayers, petticoats are more popular because they are short and do not extend above the belt line to appear under the blouse. Half and half costume slips is one answer to that problem, the upper half white or flesh color, the lower half a dark tone.

Brand new petticoats are just about the most frivolous affairs ever unpacked. Knife pleated flounces or bonbon pink in candy stripes, with tive hemline to show when the skirt is in action. Some exceptionally clever satin models are available in navy, black, white, and shell pink. Each has a gathered two inch ruffle of blending net as hem. For a few extra nickels you can have your name embroidered in the area around the knee on the right side. The petticoats themselves are modestly priced, looking like twice the amount asked.

Nice swishy taffeta finds exploit such new colors as baby blue and bon bon pink in candy stripes, with pleated ruffles for a hem. These pastels are new and achieve a flattering spring contrast under street suits of navy or other dark colors.

Precise checked taffeta in small red and white combines, so small in outline that the petticoat looks like a vivid pink from a distance, slide easily and smartly under all dark suit skirts.

These all fit smoothly from waistline to hemline, every one of them short enough not to sag or show under the outside skirt limit.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Leo, Chicago's champion; Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind., defending title holder; Milwaukee's Messmer High; three eastern quintets, and two Indian squads from the plains of South Dakota, advanced to the quarter-final round of the National Catholic basketball tournament following victories in another turbulent round of 10 games in Loyola university gymnasium yesterday. The quarter-final and semi-final games will be played this afternoon and tonight.

Leo, the Catholic league's hope to win the national title for the first time since 1937, when Fenwick of Oak Park accomplished the triumph, eliminated St. John's Cathedral of Paterson, N. J., 43 to 25. Fort Wayne, seeking to become the first quintet to win three consecutive championships, moved another step toward its goal by eliminating St. George of Evanston, 34 to 25. Messmer, runner-up for the Milwaukee city title, won in the final minutes from Cretin of St. Paul, Minn., 30 to 29.

Louisiana Champions Fall.

The other survivors include St. Francis Mission and Holy Rosary Mission of South Dakota, and Power Memorial of New York City. Holy Rosary removed Abbey of Canon City, Colo., from the meet, 55 to 24, while St. Francis scalped New York City's St. Simon Stock, 43 to 25. Power Memorial defeated Louisiana's champion, St. Aloysius of New Orleans, 37, to 34; St. Mary's won from St. Joseph of Oil City, Pa., 39 to 37, and St. Michael's ended the night's activity by whipping Campion academy of Prairie du Chien, Wis., 31 to 22.

Leo's opponent in the quarter finals this afternoon will be Lynn, Mass., which rallied to win in the final quarter against Oil City, Pa. Fort Wayne is paired with Holy Rosary Mission; Power Memorial faces Messmer and the St. Francis Mission team will oppose Union City, N. J. If Leo and Fort Wayne survive their quarter-final round contests they will meet in the opening semi-final game at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

O'Halloran, Dunne Show 'Em.

The long day's activities produced several outstanding young men, but two young Irishmen, Jim O'Halloran and Jack Dunne, headed the list. O'Halloran and Dunne spent the season as members of Leo's junior squad, which was undefeated in 37 games, but they were moved onto the tournament team. The pair wasted no time impressing their bigger teammates, O'Halloran scoring five baskets and one free throw, while Dunne contributed four field goals and one free throw to lead the Chicagoans to their 36th victory in 38 games.

Leo had a little difficulty against the tall Paterson team in the opening quarter, but it soon afterward started a whirlwind offensive drive. The Chicagoans were in front 8 to 4 at the conclusion of the first quarter, 21 to 10 at the half and 32 to 13 in the third period.

Fort Wayne Rallies.

St. George, for two periods, appeared to have conquered its Indiana jinx, but Fort Wayne began to find the range and handed St. George another defeat. St. George held a 10 to 4 advantage at the end of the first quarter. At the intermission the North Shore quintet still was in front, 17 to 14.

Central Catholic went into the lead in the third quarter, 24 to 23, on a short shot by Bob Walker. In the

MICHIGAN LEADS IN NCAA SWIM BY THREE POINTS

Yale in Second Place with Total of 33.

East Lansing, Mich., March 28 [Special].—University of Michigan swimmers gained a three point lead over Yale tonight with six events in the National Collegiate Athletic association swimming meet completed. The Wolverines, seeking their 12th victory in 15 years in this event were in front with 36 points against Yale's 33.

Other point winners were: Ohio State and Wayne university, nine each; Princeton, six; Minnesota, five; Williams, three; Occidental, Villanova, Springfield, two each; Stanford, Dartmouth, Brown, one each.

Barker Ties Record.

No records fell in the first half of the two days, but Charley Barker, Michigan's sprint star, equaled the record time of :23 flat in the finals of the 50 yard free style. He displaced Bill Prew of Wayne as the champion at the distance. Prew was second.

Michigan gained nine points in the 150 yard back stroke which Francis Heydt won. Yale equaled this performance in the 220 yard free style when Howard Johnson successfully defended his title. Earl Clark of Ohio State also kept his one meter diving crown with a comfortable margin of nearly nine points. The Buckeyes' points all came in this event, Frank Dempsey placing third behind Cook of Yale.

Prew Fails to Place.

There was only one real surprise in today's events. Wayne's Prew failed to place in the 220, in which he was figured a first place contender. Five events are on tomorrow's program.

1,500 METERS FREE STYLE—Won by Chouteau, Yale; Welsh, Michigan, second; Maclay, Williams, third; Clark, Wayne, fourth; Eichlepp, Minnesota, fifth; Bacon, Williams, sixth. Time, 19:43.4.

50 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Charles Barker, Michigan; William Prew, Wayne, second; Guy Lumsden, Wayne, third; Walter Kelley, Villanova, fourth; Robert Schaper, Brown, fifth. Time, 23 seconds. [Equals NCAA record held by Charles Flachman, Illinois, 1935; Edward Kirar, Michigan, 1938, and Waldemar Tomski, Michigan, 1938.]

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Francis Heydt, Michigan; Dan Dannebaum, Yale, second; William Beebe, Michigan, third; R. E. White, Yale, fourth; A. J. O'Mara, Dartmouth, fifth. Time, 1:37.7.

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Howard Johnson, Yale; James Welsh, Michigan, second; Jack Patton, Michigan, third; Rene Chouteau, Yale, fourth; Richard Kelly, Yale, fifth. Time, 2:12.5.

DIVING [ONE METER]—Won by Clark, Ohio State, 144.9; Cook, Yale, second 135.93; Dempsey, Ohio State, third, 133.92; Lee, Occidental, fourth, 131.32; Adams, Stanford, fifth, 120.4.

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Michigan [Heydt, Skinner, Morse]; Yale, second; Princeton, third; Minnesota, fourth; Springfield College, fifth. Time, 2.58.

GULDAHL AND A 39 CHASE BULLA OUT OF GOLF TOURNEY

Asheville, N. C., March 28 (AP).—"If they ever pair me with that guy again, I won't even start a tournament," said Johnny Bulla, the big Greensboro, N. C., golfer, as he dropped out of the $5,000 Land of the Sky golf tournament today after playing only nine holes.

"That guy" was Ralph Guldahl runner-up to Ben Hogan here last year. Bulla said he didn't mind playing with a man who took his time but that Guldahl's conception of how much he could take exceeded all reasonable bounds.

"I don't care what you write about me," Johnny explained, "because probably I've got it coming. Picking up is a terrible thing. But I knew there wasn't any use playing with him any longer when I felt I might get into a fight at any minute. Even if I should be leading in a tournament by 10 shots at 36 holes some time, and they paired me with him for the last 36, I'd drop out right there."

BRING OUT THE OATS—9 QUARTS; MAN O' WAR'S 24

Man o' War.

"He's fine and he looks as well as he has for years," reported Harrie B. Scott, who has had charge of the great horse at Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway farm near here for 10 years.

Scott said today nothing was planned by way of celebration, and that the famed stallion would follow normal routine—nine quarts of oats, a few miles' gallop, a rubdown, and rest.

There'll be the usual visitors, of course—Scott said he believed more than 50,000 had called to see Man o' War during the last 12 months.

Born March 29, 1917, Man o' War is still active in the stud, altho his matings have been cut to 15 a year.

Big Red won 20 out of 21 races and $249,465 in the two years he raced, 1919 and 1920, and his 300-odd sons and daughters have won more than 1,000 races and more than $2,750,000.

Whirlaway's Finish Wins Florida Race

Miami, Fla., March 28 (AP).—Whirlaway, one of the winter book Kentucky Derby favorites, scored his second victory as a 3 year old at Tropical Park today.

The crowd made the Warren Wright colt second choice in the betting, with Blue Lily the favorite, but Whirlaway won in convincing style over the short five and one-half furlong distance that he wasn't supposed to relish.

Whirlaway Finishes Fast.

Off slowly in the $1,200 Silver Springs purse, Whirlaway overhauled the leaders in the stretch and beat Zacatine by half a length, with Blue Lily a head farther back.

The 1940 juvenile champion, apparently fully recovered from a leg ailment, stepped the course in 1:04 3-5 and paid $7, $4.10, and $2.80 across the board.

Whirlaway broke from the barrier last in the six horse field, as Blue Lily set the early pace. Jockey R. Vedder took Whirlaway to the outside coming out of the stretch turn, and the colt moved past Zacatine, then Blue Lily. Zacatine nipped the tiring Blue Lily in the final strides but Whirlaway was going away fast.

Keeneland's Next Stop.

Trainer Ben Jones said he was pleased with the result but would not start Whirlaway again this season at Tropical Park. He planned to ship him to Keeneland for his next Derby tuneup.

"Apparently Whirlaway needs racing to keep at his best," Jones said, "and we'll see that he gets it."

GIANTS RELEASE CASTLEMAN; HE'D PITCH FOR CUBS

Miami, Fla., March 28 (AP).—The New York Giants today optioned Third Baseman Lou Chiozza to Memphis of the Southern association and gave Pitcher Clydell [Slick] Castleman permission to make a deal for himself. Memphis is Chiozza's home and he is in business there with his father.

Castleman, whose home is near Nashville, Tenn., has been bothered by a lame back since winning 15 games as a rookie in 1936. He thinks he has recovered and hopes to make a connection with a major league club—possibly the Chicago Cubs.

1,433 PUREBREDS COMPETE TODAY IN KENNEL SHOW

International Meet Opens in Amphitheater.

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago's largest dog show, the International Kennel club classic, opens this morning in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. A total of 1,433 purebred canines of 77 breeds will be on the benches at 10 a. m., when the doors open and the judges begin their two day task of picking the winners. The competition continues thru tomorrow evening, when the best dog in the show will be picked.

Altho the experienced dog fanciers and show followers will be primarily interested in the breed awards, the ordinary dog owner who knows little about technical show judging will concentrate on the many feature attractions. Several of the regular dog show trimmings will be staged and a number of new features have been added.

Big Spaniel Entry.

The cocker spaniel, America's most popular breed, leads the entry lists for bench competition with 102 dogs listed. Judging of this breed starts at 10 o'clock this morning and will be continued this afternoon. English type cockers will be judged at 8 o'clock this evening. Paul Moser and Doris Fagg, owners of the Gonfalon kennels at Northbrook, will have six cocker champions on the benches, including a brace of English type champions.

Among the other Chicagoland kennel owners who will have a number of entries in the show are Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard Yates of Des Plaines, who have listed 10 Schipperkes for competition. Champion Top-Marc La Puce of Ochsnerhof, winner of 17 best of breed awards, and Little Black Joe o' Marward, another winning Skip, head the Yates entries.

Mrs. Janet Henneberry of Chicago has entered her international champion, Dunoon Donald Dhu, for exhibition on the benches and for competition in the field trials. She also has listed Dunoon Lady Macbeth and Dunoon Donnella in the show classes. Mr. and Mrs. Orrin H. Baker, Chicago, have entered three Kerry Blue terriers, including International Champion Blackwatch of Longview.

Dalmatians, Too.

Staffordshire terriers have drawn an unusually high entry of 19 dogs, and one of the leading contenders for best of breed honors will be Champion Kirby of Indiana, owned by J. F. Lane of Chicago. Robert Cavenaugh, Chicago lawyer and breeder of Great Danes, recently sold his Champion Vagabond von Lindenhof, but two of his other champions will represent him in the Dane judging to take place this morning. They are Champion Honey and International Champion Dina von der Rhon of Canidom, both entered for specials only.

Mrs. Ruthe Lane, Leland, Ill., one of the leading breeders of Dalmatians in the middle west, will have two of her dogs in the limit classes. John P. Sweeney of Midlothian has entered three chows, two of which are champions entered in the specials class. These are Champion Unblended and Champion Cassia of Wauchow. He also has listed Moosilauke Pao Su-O in the open competition.

WISCONSIN FIVE PLAYS FOR NCAA CROWN TONIGHT

Kansas City, Mo., March 28 [Special]. — Wisconsin and Washington State university will clash here tomorrow night for the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball championship.

Wisconsin, Big Ten champion, qualified for the finals by defeating Pitt and Dartmouth in the Eastern regional playoffs. Washington State, Pacific Coast conference champion, won in the western regional competition, beating Arkansas in the finals.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

TRAVELING Secretary Bob Lewis of the Cubs recently offered to buy any one of a group of friends an automobile if he could guess the given name of Pitcher Tot Pressnell's sister in a thousand tries. . . . The lady's name is Yulabella. . . . No one won the automobile. . . . Frankie Frisch, Pittsburgh manager, has penalized heavily some of his athletes who go sightseeing after dark, but the fines apparently have had little effect on the club's performance. . . . Newspaper writers agree that the Pirates have looked the worst of the four major league teams training in California. . . . Alex Fidler, fight referee who has charge of concessions at the Cedar Rapids, Ia., baseball park, says Lou Novikoff still owes for every bottle of pop he drank there while playing with Moline. . . . The Cub outfielder offers to pay off by sending Fidler a ticket to the world series games at Wrigley field next October. . . . Marty Brill, football coach at Loyola of Los Angeles, is mulling over his draft questionnaire. . . . Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's new gridiron leader, has shifted Walter Ziemba, a tackle from Hammond, to center as a spring training experiment. . . . Prediction: Michigan will have its best tennis team in years this spring. . . . Among the income tax deductions listed by Pitcher Claude Passeau of the Cubs was the price of two deceased mules. . . . Claude says that the late lamented beasts have been buried in shallow graves, if any one is skeptical about their passing. . . . George Zaharias, Los Angeles wrestling promoter who is the husband of Babe Didriksen, is very indignant at Ali Baba becauses Ali recently shaved off his handlebar mustachios. . . . Zaharias considered equipping Ali with a set of phonies, but decided that would be beneath the dignity of the wrestling art. . . .

The Grubaugh twins, Alvin and Marvin, of the Nebraska football squad look so much alike that coaches have to look for a slight scar beneath Marvin's eye before they can tell which is which. . . . St. Mary's of Texas is contemplating garbing its ends and backs in white, its tackles and guards in blue and its center in scarlet for the coming football season. . . . Sheridan, Wyo., has a wrestler whose name, appropriately, no doubt, is Ole Holde. . . . Joe Barry, traveling secretary of the White Sox, was a detective on La Salle street in his younger days and altho hardened by that lengthy experience, he repeatedly refers to baseball as "a tough racket." . . . Spike Webb, who trained the New York Golden Gloves squad for its Intercity match at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night, has been boxing coach at the United States Naval academy for 22 years. . . . Rip Collins, former Cardinal and Cub first baseman, urged President Bill Benswanger of the Pirates to buy him from the Los Angeles Angels, telling the Pittsburgh magnate that "He'd get more than his money's worth in publicity alone," if he snapped up Rip at a bargain price of $5,000. . . . It took Mr. Benswanger several days to get the idea.

Impressions.

Ah! Sleepy candles that have served, give way
Before the genuflecting day.
Let sunbeams worship at your shrine
And blend their prayers with mine.
Mary, long my wond'ring eyes embrace
The pallid beauty of your face,
Then seek the author of all good—
Arms outflung on his cross of wood.
There's a hope, a promise in the morn
And a new love in my heart reborn.
As I kneel in the scented silence here
My Lord seems wonderfully near.

BRYANT FAILS TO DON UNIFORM; WILSON SILENT

If He's Going to Tulsa It's News to Clay.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—Clay Bryant, one of the Cubs' perennial cripples, suddenly developed into a camp mystery man today, either because he suspected something is about to happen or is just plain angry.

Bryant was seen in the hotel lobby long after he should have been attired in one of the club's trick uniforms. When asked for an explanation Bryant remarked that it looked like rain. He claimed to have no knowledge of a report he was to be shipped to the Tulsa club, to which two Cub rookies were released today. Jim Wilson, Cub manager, who should know the whereabouts of his charges, had nothing to say except that he hadn't even seen Bryant.

Bryant has been a Cub problem since the season of 1938 when he and Bill Lee pitched themselves ragged in the successful National league pennant race. Last midseason Bryant was put on the suspended list and told to get his arm into condition at his own expense. This spring he has done nothing that would indicate even a trace of improvement. The Cubs are reported to have asked for waivers but have been balked by one club, presumably Brooklyn.

John Rigney, who was confined by a head cold yesterday, was a full fledged flu victim today. The Sox pitcher developed a high fever during the night and was ordered to remain in bed indefinitely. Rigney is the 12th member of the Sox party floored by the flu. Ted Lyons was in uniform today after two days of treatment for sinus infection.

The two Cubs sent to Tulsa today were Pitchers Ray Campbell and Louis [Chick] Stefani, who formerly pitched for Crane High. Campbell won four and lost six for Tulsa last season. Stefani wasn't on the official Cub roster, but was taken along to camp to determine whether he had recovered from a sore arm.

Bill Knickerbocker, the Sox' second baseman, had to take it easy today because of the bruise suffered on his right forearm yesterday from a pitched ball. He was able to practice at his position, but it pained him to grip a bat.

The Sox must arise early tomorrow to catch a bus which will deposit them, they hope, four hours later in San Diego, where they play a two day stand. Orval Grove and Walter [Lefty] Navie will face the San Diego Coast leaguers tomorrow.

The Cubs will be here tomorrow, playing the first half of a two game series with the Pirates. Diz Dean, who was to have finished today's game, will start for the Cubs. Ken Raffensberger or Paul Errickson will be the second pitcher.

* * *

Larry MacPhail, president of the Dodgers, who apparently has been unable to soften the Cubs up on player deals the last two days, will have the opportunity of talking to Bill Benswanger, the Pirates' president, here tomorrow. MacPhail is not one to return empty-handed when he goes after ball players. Something may happen before Larry flies back east.

Plan $40,000 Addition to Davenport's City Stadium

Davenport, Ia., March 28 [Special]. —The Tunnicliffe Construction company of Davenport was awarded the contract for the erection of a new football stand in Municipal stadium, where St. Ambrose college plays its home games, today. The cost will be $40,000. The additional stand, seating 3,434, will increase the capacity to 12,000.

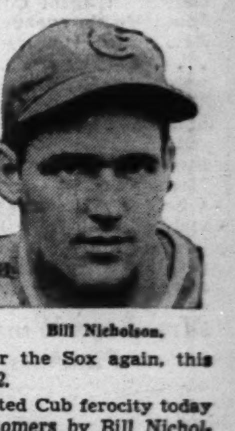
BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—The first rain the Cubs have seen since they left their storm-swept Catalina training base on March 14 today halted a brutal attack on the White Sox after five innings of play. But it was a legal game and the north siders had time to stagger the Sox again, this time by 11 to 2.



Bill Nicholson.

Take Lead in Series.

Thus the Cubs took a 3 to 2 lead in the spring series and were feeling pretty chesty with a grand total of 29 runs and 35 hits off the Sox in the last 14 innings of the competition with their Chicago rivals. The Cubs, by the way, have totaled 86 hits in their last four full games and the bobtailed affair today.

Claude Passeau, who pitched the five innings for the Cubs, yielded six hits, three of which were knocked in the first inning by George Dickey, Luke Appling, and Taft Wright for the pair of Sox runs which proved to be their total for the day. Three of the half dozen hits off Claude were made by Dickey in three times at bat.

Even the Pitcher Hits.

The eleven Cub runs were made in a four run cluster in the first inning, a singleton in the second, another cluster of four in Dietrich's fourth and last inning, and two homers in the fifth. The runs in the first were made on a walk, a single by Russell, Nicholson's first homer, and doubles by Augie Galan and Bill Herman.

Singles by Passeau and Stan Hack, Russell's sacrifice, and an infield out by Novikoff netted the second inning loner. The four runs in the fourth were accomplished on Passeau's second single, a double by Russell, a single by Novikoff, and Nicholson's second homer.

Smith took over at the start of the Cub fifth and had no trouble disposing of Al Todd, batting for Passeau, and Hack. Then Russell and Novikoff drove the ball out of the park.

Gregory Re-elected by Walton League

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Tappan Gregory of Chicago was reelected president of the Izaak Walton League of America today as Waltonians meeting at their 19th annual convention, assailed proposals for utilizing national parks for military purposes. William D. Cox, also of Chicago, was elected secretary; Harry F. Harper, Lansing, Mich., treasurer; and William L. Finley, Portland, Ore., P. G. Platt, Wallingford, Pa.; Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, Washington; J. H. Frenchick, Sioux City, Ia., and J. C. Gregory, Fullerton, Cal., were elected vice presidents.

CONN-BARLUND BATTLE IS SET FOR 12 ROUNDS

Managers Compromise at Meeting with Promoter.

A bout between Billy Conn, Pittsburgh heavyweight, and Gunnar Barlund of Finland in Chicago Stadium next Friday was set for 12 rounds after a conference between managers of the fighters and Promoter Bill Rand yesterday.

The match originally was scheduled for 10 rounds, but was increased to 15 at the instance of Johnny Ray, manager of Conn, who is matched with Champion Joe Louis in June. However, Paul Damski, representative of Barlund, had balked at the longer distance. The compromise was reached when Ray threatened to call off the match if Barlund's backer insisted that the encounter be scheduled for less than 12 rounds.

Sign New Contracts Monday.

New contracts will be signed Monday when the new Illinois boxing commission, composed of Chairman Sheldon Clark, Commissioners Harry Scranton and Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, and Secretary Jack Elder, is inducted into office.

Several former boxing headliners, including Jackie Fields, George Gardner, and Johnny Coulon, attended Conn's workout in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday. They were not impressed by Conn's showing in a six round drill, three each against Settimo Terracina and Eddie Camp. Perhaps the fact that Bill coasted against Terracina and failed to open up against Camp until the second and third rounds was responsible for their failure to become excited.

Barlund Goes Four Rounds.

After Conn concluded training, Barlund appeared for three rounds against Altus Allen and one against Mike Edwards. Gunnar, who appeared in good form, will spar six rounds this afternoon. If Sparmate Henry Wacker puts in an appearance Conn will box eight rounds today.

Promoter Irving Schoenwald yesterday completed his supporting card for a 10 round event between Ossie Harris, Pittsburgh middleweight, and Nate Bolden in Marigold Gardens Monday. Four round matches will bring together Jimmy Pierce, Milwaukee 160 pounder, and Frank Jamieson; Johnny O'Hara, local middleweight, and George Feltes, and Al Reese, Detroit, light heavyweight, and Johnny Trotter. Bob Berry, Cleveland 160 pounder, is paired with Frank McBride in an eight round semi-windup.

Eleven amateur boxing matches will be presented under the auspices of Holy Name society, St. Roman's church, in Sokol Chicago hall, 2337 South Kedzie avenue, Thursday, the Rev. Jerome Kolberg said last night. . . . Tommy Cello, the old lightweight challenger, will second Pat Valentino, his heavyweight protege of San Francisco, against Bob Nestell in a semi-windup to an event involving Max Baer and Lou Nova in Madison Square Garden Friday. . . . Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer is matched with Rudy Kay in a wrestling show in White City Monday. The program is topped by Bronko Nagurski and Oki Shikina.

Mrs. Page Wins Third Pinehurst Golf Title

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28 (AP).—For the third consecutive year Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill defeated Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., today in the final round of the north and south women's golf meet. Her margin was 5 and 4.

2 Champions Gain College Boxing Finals

State College, Pa., March 28 (AP).—Two of three defending champions advanced to the championship round of the national collegiate boxing tournament tonight in a program of 16 semi-final bouts.

The 1940 champions who moved to within a step of a successful title defense were 120 pound Ted Kara and 165 pound Laune Erickson of Idaho. The third champion, Johnny Joca, Florida 135 pounder, was eliminated by Gene Rankin of Wisconsin, who was national champion in 1939, but left his title undefended last year.

A Second Kara Wins.

Idaho also had a third finalist in 127 pound Frank Kara, a brother of Ted, to share the lead in the fight for unofficial team honors with Southwestern Louisiana institute of Lafayette, La., which also sent three men into the finals. Wisconsin, Washington State, Penn State and North Carolina qualified two finalists each, while California Aggies and Louisiana State university had one each.

One other pre-tournament favorite was erased from the running when Herbert Kendrick, giant Louisiana State heavyweight, dropped a close decision to Gates Kimball of North Carolina.

Only one technical knockout marked the bouts. It went to Elton Tobiasson, California Aggies' Pacific coast 145 pound champion from Nevada City, Cal., who halted Bill Skerpon of Lock Haven [Pa.] Teachers after 1:15 of the second round. Tobiasson floored Skerpon with a crushing right to the jaw.

Rankin Wins Two Rounds.

Rankin, a bobbing puncher, carried the fight to Joca. His aggressiveness was a big factor in his victory. Joca, a Cleveland, O., boy, won only the third round.

Ted Kara, also of Cleveland and captain of the 1936 American Olympic boxing team, had far too much experience for Clyde Harger of Louisiana State. He gave Harger a neat three round boxing lesson to win easily.

HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS—Gates Kimball, North Carolina, beat Herbert Kendrick, Louisiana State; Louis Campbell, Southwestern Louisiana, beat Edward Cameron, Miami.

PESKIND, MURPHY WIN IN NATIONAL BADMINTON PLAY

Seymour Peskind and Robert Murphy of Chicago gained the final round in the men's doubles and Joseph Tiberi and Olga Grant, also of Chicago, reached the finals in the mixed doubles of the National YMCA badminton tournament at the Hyde Park "Y" last night.

Peskind and Murphy advanced on a default, while Tiberi and Miss Grant defeated Tom Corbett and Martha Christenson of Madison, Wis., 15-7, 15-3.

Out for Laurels

Robert A. Cavenaugh, Chicago attorney, will show Dina von der Rhon, international champion, one of his two great Danes in the International Kennel club's show in the International amphitheater today and tomorrow.

Here's Today's Program for Kennel Show

Many of the most popular breeds as well as a number of rare types of dogs will be judged today at the International Kennel club dog show in the International Ampitheater. Today's judging program is as follows:

10 a. m.—All retrievers, American water spaniels, Clumber spaniels, Irish water spaniels, Pomeranians, pugs, Bedlington terriers, Dandie Dinmont terriers, Irish terriers, Lhasa terriers, Manchester terriers, Skye terriers, Staffordshire terriers, Welsh terriers, Afghan hounds, bassethounds, bloodhounds, greyhounds, otterhounds, wire haired pointing griffons, cocker spaniels, Great Danes, German short haired pointers, Gordon setters, bull terriers, West Highland white terriers, dachshunde, novice A obedience.

1:30 p. m.—Willy Necker's trained Doberman pinschers.

7:30 p. m.—Willy Necker's trained Doberman pinschers.

Tropical Park Stewards Ask Trainer Be Barred

Miami, Fla., March 28 (AP).—Tropical Park stewards today ordered the trainer's license of Gene Collins canceled because of conduct detrimental to racing, and recommended to the Florida state racing commission that his license be revoked. Jockey Don Meade was fined $200 for failure to fill his riding engagements on Wednesday. He will resume riding tomorrow.

122 Dogs Vie for Trophies in Obedience

More trained dogs will compete in the obedience classes at the International Kennel club show in the International amphitheater today and tomorrow than ever before in the history of American dog shows.

This is the second straight year that the obedience classes at the International show have set national records for number of contestants. Last year 70 dogs took part in this event sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. This year's International show has a new record total of 122.

They're in Five Classes.

These canine graduates of training schools and clubs are divided into the following competitive classes: Novice A, 39; Novice B, 18; Open A, 15; Open B, 31, and Utility, 19.

Because of the number of dogs competing the judging will be continuous all day today and tomorrow. Miss Katherine Wellman, well known eastern authority on obedience training, will judge all of the classes.

Dog fanciers are freely predicting that one of the hits of the show [for the average spectator] will be the four dog team event which will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

Winners Get Trophies.

Each member of the team that wins tonight will receive a sterling silver trophy. Training clubs which were invited to take part in this team event and members who will make up the teams are as follows:

War Boosts Canadian Kennel Show Entries

There are more Canadian owned dogs in the International Kennel club show this year than for many years past. This has been generally true of all the dog shows held in the northern tier of states for the last year, due to the fact that many Canadian shows have been canceled because of the war. In order to get their dogs into competition many Canadians are crossing the border to enter American shows.

YES, BLUE BLOODS OF DOGDOM VISIT BEAUTICIAN, TOO

Need Months' Treatment Before Shows.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

When the trim little wire-haired terriers, beautiful Kerry blues, Airedales, collies, and other well groomed dogs step into the judging ring at the International Kennel club dog show they are demonstrating what the canine beauty shops can do to make swanky show dogs look their best.

Some of the dogs that show visitors will see in the rings today and tomorrow have had a three months course of beauty treatments, physical exercise, training, and dieting, because many a handsome purebred isn't put into top show condition by one bath and a 10 minute combing. It not only takes several months of work by handlers and canine "beauty specialists" to get dogs of certain breeds to look like a million dollars, but also a knowledge of grooming tools and cosmetics.

Professional handlers who make their living by grooming, conditioning, and training show dogs have cabinets filled with combs, brushes, stripping knives, various kinds of soaps and liquids for dressing coats, olive oil, brilliantine, chalk, scissors, towels, nail files, and other items which are needed to take care of the coats of certain breeds.

Here's How It's Done.

A good example of the work required to get a terrier ready for the International Kennel club dog show is the schedule followed by Owen Craighead, professional handler of Northbrook, in preparing an Airedale, Oakhaven Banner Girl, owned by Neil S. MacKay of Deerfield. In the case of an Airedale, wire-haired terrier, and other terrier breeds the objective is to bring the dog into the show with a dense wiry coat that lays neatly and smoothly. To get that type of coat Banner Girl was stripped down very close in January, leaving only her whiskers and leg furnishings intact.

During the first six weeks after stripping a soft undercoat developed and this was plucked out daily. Then the wiry coat started to come thru, and Craighead helped it along by rubbing an oily coat preparation or plain olive oil into the dog's skin once a week.

—And the Final Touches.

Twice a week Banner Girl's nails have been filed. Nails that are too long may make a dog spread its toe pads, a fault that a judge would notice. Two days ago Banner Girl was given her semi-final grooming, including a neck clip, a trimming of the hair around the ears and on the head, and a combing of the whiskers and leg furnishings. An hour before she goes into the ring to be judged she will be rubbed down with brilliantine, loose hairs will be plucked from her coat, and the dog will be combed again.

Chalk is a valuable grooming item in the handler's kit. Dogs that are all white or mostly white are chalked before they go into the ring.

Chicago Owner to Get Country Life Trophy

One of the features of tomorrow's schedule at the International Kennel club show will be the presentation of the Country Life challenge trophy to Foreman M. Lebold of Chicago. Lebold's Labrador retriever, Laddie of Rockingell, won the trophy.

REDS LIMITED TO 4 HITS AND RED SOX WIN, 9-2

Boston Scores 4 Runs on 5 Safeties in 5th.

Exhibition Baseball

At San Fernando, Cal.—Pittsburgh vs. Seattle, rain.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 28 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox romped to a 9 to 2 victory over the world champion Cincinnati Reds today with Rookie Earl Johnson and Emerson Dickman holding Cincinnati to four hits. All of the Reds' hits were against Johnson, who pitched the first six innings.

Boston sewed up the game in the fifth with four runs on a single by Pete Fox, a triple by Jimmy Foxx, a single by Manager Joe Cronin, a double by Bobby Doerr and a single by Johnson. Score:

Cincinnati	000 010 010—2	4	0

DODGER B'S WHIP TIGERS.

Clearwater, Fla., March 28 [Special].—The Brooklyn "B" team forgot all about Detroit's being American league champion and whipped the Tigers, 8 to 5, in the Dodgers' last spring exhibition game here today.

Over at Port Arthur, Tex., the Dodger first stringers crushed the Port Arthur Tarpons, 17 to 0. Scores:

Detroit	300 020 000—5	9	2
Brooklyn	001 313 00*—8	8	1

Batteries—Uhle, Benton, McKain and Tebbetts; Wyatt, Mills and Franks.

Brooklyn	117 050 210—17	17	1
Port Arthur	000 000 000— 0	2	4

Batteries—Sherer, Fitzsimmons, Lavagetto, Reese and Owen, Lewis; Hardouin, Smith, Brumbaugh and Birchfield.

BROWNS WHIP SAN ANTONIO.

San Benito, Tex., March 28 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns defeated San Antonio, their Texas league farm club, 7 to 3, today, the Missions helping generously with 11 bases on balls and five errors. Elden Auker pitched four hitless innings for the major leaguers, but his successor, Emil Bildilli, was not so effective, yielding seven hits, including a home run by Lou Witte. Score:

St. Louis [A.L.]	200 021 002—7	7	2

CARDS WIN TWO.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 28 (AP).—The divided St. Louis Cardinals enjoyed a field day today at the expense of their minor league cousins, the "A" team defeating Rochester here, 6 to 3, and the "B" squad manhandling Columbus, 18 to 6, at Hollywood, Fla. Score:

St. Louis [N. L.]	000 105 000—6	9	1
Rochester [I. L.]	000 000 030—3	9	3

Batteries—Nahem, Hutchinson and Mancuso; Drieswerd, Brumbeloe and Mueller, Beal.

St. Louis [N.L.]	13 10 101 002—18	15	4

Batteries—Lanier, Krist and Padgett, Wilbur; Horn, Creel, Wynford and Poland.

SENATORS, 7; PHILLIES, 6.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 28 (AP).—The Phillies scored 3 runs in the ninth inning today but the Washington Senators already had enough to win, 7 to 6. Bobby Bragan started the National leaguers off by hitting a home run in the first inning, in which the Phils racked up two runs. John Welaj duplicated it for the American leaguers in the fifth. Score:

YANKEES CRUSH REBELS.

Montgomery, Ala., March 28 [Special].—Drowning out the continual roar of training planes from nearby Maxwell field, the New York Yankees who are doing a little training of their own gave their most impressive 1941 display of power before 3,500 patrons here this afternoon. The full weight fell on the hapless Montgomery Rebels, who were exploded, 17 to 1. Charley Ruffing not only pitched five good innings, but also hit a homer, matching hits by Gerry Priddy and Charley Keller. Score:

New York [A.L.]	204 032 060—17	18	1

MILLERS, 5; BEES, 3.

San Antonio, Tex., March 28 (AP).—The Minneapolis Millers bunched three hits against Alva Javery for two runs during a ninth inning rally today to defeat the Boston Bees, 5 to 3. Score:

HAWKS PREPARE FOR GAME WHICH TELLS THE TALE

The Blackhawks came home from Detroit yesterday, jolted out of the confidence they had acquired in winning their Stanley cup series with Montreal's Canadiens. A 3 to 1 beating by the Red Wings Thursday night in the first game of another best out of three series convinced the Chicago players they'll have to hustle to stay in the battle for the trophy. They'll renew their struggle with the Detroit team tomorrow night in the Stadium.

The Hawks must now take two in a row to earn the right to meet the winner of the Boston-Toronto series in the Stanley cup finals. The Leafs and the Bruins, who are tied 2 to 2, will resume their best out of seven contest this evening in Boston.

They Hope to Keep Going.

The Hawks have come out on top the last two times they have engaged the Wings in Chicago so they are hopeful that they can keep up their success tomorrow. If a third game is necessary, it will be played in Detroit on Tuesday.

Two more Blackhawk players encountered mishaps in Detroit. Joe Cooper suffered a torn ligament in his right knee and Max Bentley came down with the flu. Bentley was developing it during Thursday night's game and he was sent to the hospital with a fever of 103 immediately upon the team's return yesterday.

Two Bills May Play.

Manager Paul Thompson will have another look at Bill Carse and Bill Thoms in action during today's practice session and will decide whether they are in shape to be used tomorrow night. Both have been out of the four cup games which have been played to date. They came back to Chicago last night after a three-day session of practice on the University of Illinois rink.

The Red Wings also came to town yesterday. They will work out this afternoon in the Stadium.

JUDY GARNER, 14, WINS 1ST PLACE IN DOG JUDGING

Judy Garner, 850 Lake Shore drive, yesterday afternoon won the first event of the International Kennel club show by scoring 645 of a possible 800 points in the amateur judging contest. By her ability to judge collies, Pekingese, dachshunde, and Scottish terriers Miss Garner, who is 14 years old, won the C. Groverman Ellis trophy and a cash prize of $30.

Howard Littlejohn, 16, of De Kalb, was second with a score of 640. Third award went to Betty Smith, 18, Orland Park, Ill., who won the same event last year. Eleanor Lundberg, 17, Winnetka, was fourth; Harold Littlejohn, twin of Howard Littlejohn, was fifth, and Paul A. Schmidt, 15, Tinley Park, sixth.

David Reed of 6635 University avenue won first prize in a contest on the care and training of dogs for Chicago Boy Scouts last night. Carl Lucken of 852 Buckingham place was second and Jack Funk of 2040 Lincoln avenue was third. Seventy-four scouts competed.

Gophers Win Team Honors in Rifle Meet

Table of Points

Minnesota	1,388	Indiana	1,294
Iowa	1,366	Rose Poly	1,251
Washington U.	1,346	Ohio State	1,243
Wisconsin	1,340	Chicago	1,241
Illinois	1,332	Lawrence Tech	1,236
U. of Cincin.	1,319	H. Pk. [Det.]	1,070

Minnesota's team piled up 1,388 points to win the championship in the collegiate division of the sixth annual rifle tournament sponsored by the University of Chicago in Bartlett gymnasium yesterday.

The Gophers defeated Ohio State, which won the title last year, and Iowa, altho the Hawkeyes, champions in 1939, took both the individual title and runner-up honors. Minnesota's team was made up of John Wynne, who scored 282 points; Bob Linse, 281; Capt. Edward Becker, 279; Bill Huch, 277, and Bob Rice, 269.

Iowa Places Second.

Iowa's team was second with 1,366 points; Washington university of St. Louis was third with 1,346; Wisconsin, fourth with 1,340, and Illinois fifth with 1,332.

Virgil Pettit, Iowa veteran, led the individual shooting with 286 points, and his teammate, Bob Kadgihn, was second with 285. Bob Rice of Minnesota scored 284 for third and Craig Lewis, of Illinois, was fourth with 283.

Woodring Defends Title.

As the three days of open firing began William Woodring of Alton, Ill., defended his championship against marksmen from all parts of the east and middle west.

Today also will see completion of shooting in the junior division, in which competition is limited to marksmen under 19 years old who have not completed high school.

Pulaski Park, Grand Cross Clippers Win in Park Final

Pulaski Park, Grand Crossing, and the Pulaski Clippers won the senior, intermediate, and junior titles, respectively, in finals of the Chicago park district basketball tournament, played at Franklin park last night. Pulaski Park beat Gage Park, 58 to 56; Grand Crossing defeated Portage Park, 29 to 19, and the Clippers dropped the Ogden Park Comets, 26 to 16.

Million Dollar Football a Myth at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., March 28 [Special].—The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C. vice president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, today punctured the popular idea that Notre Dame makes a million dollars a year on football and is a wealthy school, when he announced the estimated net athletic revenues of approximately $211,915.45 for the current school year.

Football grossed $524,483.75 for 1940, Father Cavanaugh said. There will be an additional income from other sports of from $40,000 to $50,000 by June. Budgeted expenses for the conduct of the athletic program for the year will cut the gross by some $312,568.30.

Football supports basketball, track, baseball, cross-country, golf, tennis, fencing, swimming, handball, hockey, and squash. Major expenses included in the announced total include those for traveling, equipment, salaries, and stadium maintenance.

ICE FOLLIES TO SHOW TODAY FOR CHILDREN ONLY

A special matinée performance of the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies of 1941, now showing in the Chicago arena, will be given this afternoon for 12 children's organizations. In addition to the complete cast, which includes Shipstad and Johnson, Frick and Frack, and Bess Ehrhardt, junior members of the Chicago Figure Skating club will appear.

An unusual feature will be the solo and team exhibitions of the Eddie VanderBosch family of nine members. Mr. and Mrs. VanderBosch and their seven children, have appeared in many of the club's shows. The VanderBoschs live at 5614 North Campbell avenue.

Missourians Place High in ABC Standing

St. Paul, Minn., March 28 [Special].—The Hermann Undertaker team of St. Louis, national match champion, continued its brilliant bowling in the American Bowling Congress tournament today. Following up their 3,019 total which gave them first place in the five-man event last night, the St. Louis men placed high in the singles, doubles, and all-events this afternoon.

Cone Hermann, sponsor and ace leadoff man for the Missourians, rolled into fifth place in all-events with 1,898. Lowell Jackson, a teammate, gained seventh place in all-events with 1,882.

In the doubles, Chuck O'Donnell and Sam Garofalo of the Hermanns rolled into second place with 1,296 as O'Donnell contributed 638 and Garofalo 658. This was 11 pins behind the doubles lead of 1,307 held by Ned Day and Elmer Koch of Milwaukee.

Hermann missed a chance to take the all-events lead because he fell to 584 in his singles after having 657 in both, the doubles and five-man event.

All five of the Hermanns went over the 1,800 mark. Garofalo had 1,839, Joe Pallardy 1,818, and O'Donnell 1,816. The Hermanns shot a game of 1,131 while piling up their five man total of 3,019.

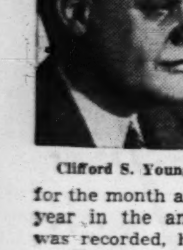
CHICAGO AREA'S EMPLOYMENT UP DURING FEBRUARY

Reserve Bank Reports 7th District Gains.

Employment in 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district manufacturing industries at mid-February was 0.9 per cent higher than a month earlier and 16 per cent higher than a year earlier, Clifford S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, reported yesterday. An increase of 4.3 per cent for the month and 26 per cent for the year in the amount of wages paid was recorded, he said.



Clifford S. Young.

"The sharp expansion evident in the district's manufacturing industries since midsummer, 1940, continued from mid-January to mid-February," Young said in the bank's monthly survey of business conditions.

"Both durable and nondurable goods contributed to the rise, but increases in durable goods production exceeded substantially the gains in the nondurable group.

Strikes Curtail Gains.

"Industrial disputes in several important plants would have caused a net decline in total employment and pay roll figures had it not been for unusual expansion in many other plants. The metals industries group, the component companies of which are contributing substantially to the armament program, has shown an expansion of about 40 per cent in pay rolls since the low point reached last April.

"The food products and paper and printing groups showed month to month losses which were mainly of a seasonal nature."

Nonmanufacturing Lines Dip.

In the nonmanufacturing industries, a better than seasonal showing was made, the net changes for the month being barely perceptible declines of 0.4 per cent in employment and 0.3 per cent in pay rolls, the report stated. The nonmanufacturing industries include merchandising, public utilities, coal mining, and construction.

For all manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries combined, a month to month increase of 0.7 per cent in employment and a gain of 3.7 per cent in wage payments were recorded.

Appraisal Firm Moving Its Offices to Chicago

National Service and Appraisal company, which makes insurance, credit, and investment reports, is moving its headquarters to Chicago from New Orleans, Theodore M. Simmons, president, announced yesterday. The company has a subsidiary, Hill's Reports, Inc., in Chicago.

Game Makes News

March 28, 1941.

PREDATORY animals and several species of birds are in the news this week on the Wheaton farm. An inquisitive crow which answered the calls of a peacock enlivened the routine of farm life, a raccoon came out of the woods and visited the porch of a farm home, and, judging by the evidence around one of the ponds, a mink killed a Canada goose.

One of the farm workers reconstructed the goose killing and made it pretty certain that a mink was guilty. The scene was one of the farm ponds, which was covered by a sheet of ice in the center, with open water all around the edge. The mink is a night hunter, so apparently the animal got the goose after it had settled down on the shore for the night. The goose immediately went into the open water. Still struggling and fighting, it managed to get up on the ice. Here the mink sank its sharp teeth into the bird's neck. Blood and feathers splattered over a 6 foot circle at the edge of the ice tell the story.

Coon Pays Visit.

One of the farm women saw the inquisitive raccoon approaching the house. She said it came out of the woods and walked leisurely across an open field. Then it looked thru the kitchen window to see what was going on inside. Possibly the odors of cooking appealed to it. Finding the porch door closed it turned around, walked back across the lawn, and decided to visit the pheasant pen. It looked into the pen where silver pheasants, golden pheasants, and other beautiful birds are housed, but made no attempt to get in. After taking a long look at the birds, the raccoon went back to the woods.

Find Own Feed.

Both the Fox river farm and the Du Page county farm have maintained bird feeding stations during the winter, but there is evidence that the pheasants on the Du Page county place are a little more self-reliant than those on the other farm. Since the weather has moderated, the pheasants have scratched around and found their own feed. The men haven't needed to put grain and sunflower seeds in the shelters.

It's a different story on the Fox river farm, however. The men there said the other day that a whole flock of ringnecks still comes in near one of the houses for handouts. There were two handsome male birds and seven hens in this party of panhandlers the other morning, all dipping into the breakfast that had been spread on the ground near one of the farm homes.

LOOSE-WILES.

Is there any way I could learn where the different bakeries of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company are located? Any details you can give me about the company will be appreciated.—J. S.

Answer: The Loose-Wiles Biscuit company has plants in Long Island City, N. Y.; Kansas City, and St. Louis, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, Ill.; San Francisco, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Seattle and Spokane, Wash.; Saginaw, Mich.; Dayton, O.; Dallas, Tex.; New Orleans, La., and Boston, Mass. The main office is in Kansas City.

The plants are scattered over the country to afford rapid deliveries of freshly baked goods to the company's numerous distributing branches. The company is a leading maker of biscuits, crackers, and cookies.

Capitalization of the company consists of 40,710 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value and 512,200 shares of $25 par common stock.

Improved consumer purchasing power last year benefitted the company's business but heavier taxes and wage costs kept profits below pre-1937 levels. The earnings and dividend record in recent years follow:

	Net income.	Earned per com.	Dividends per com.
1936	$1,337,080	$2.16	$2.00
1937	733,593	1.01	1.60
1938	988,074	1.51	1.05
1939	1,084,066	1.69	1.00

Loose-Wiles has paid dividends on its common stock in each year since 1927. A quarterly payment of 25 cents a share was made Feb. 1. Regular dividends are being disbursed on the preferred shares.

CAPITAL INFLUX IN 1940 PLACED AT 2.8 BILLIONS

Foreign Funds Shifted to United States.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Vast fortunes in foreign funds sought refuge in the United States during 1940, reports issued tonight by the treasury and department of commerce indicated.

Estimates by the department of commerce placed the net capital inflow during the year at approximately 2 billion 800 million dollars, as both private and official foreign resources were shipped to the United States. The treasury's compilation, which was not as all-inclusive as the department of commerce report, placed the net capital inflow at $804,200,000.

The treasury's report was based merely upon banking statistics, while the department of commerce included other funds, such as advance payments on contracts or for expansion of industrial plants. In the case of the British these amounted to 720 million dollars in 1940.

Italy Speeds Liquidation.

The reports also showed only a small liquidation of American securities by the British in December. The United Kingdom sold only $3,148,000 of such securities. Italy liquidated $14,290,000 in securities during the month. The Netherlands increased holdings by $2,271,000, Canada by $1,845,000, and Switzerland by $1,300,000. Gross purchases totaled $33,112,000 and gross sales $43,930,000.

There was a considerable reduction in short term foreign funds in December, however, reversing the trend of short term banking accounts for the year and producing a net outflow of $34,560,000, compared with a net inflow of $65,957,000 in November.

The United Kingdom bought $38,980,000 in American securities during the year and sold $105,817,000, resulting in a net liquidation of only $66,837,000 to help pay for 3½ billion dollars in war orders.

Sales Exceed Purchases.

In trading by foreigners in American stocks and bonds there were total purchases of $506,022,000 and sales of $646,990,000, resulting in net sales of $140,968,000. In addition, foreign countries repatriated $78,459,000 in securities held in the United States.

Net imports of gold in 1940 totaled 4 billion, 744 million dollars, compared with 3 billion, 574 million in 1939 and nearly 2 billions in 1938. A total of $3,627,917,000, or 76 per cent of all gold received from abroad in 1940 was shipped from British empire countries.

NASH SALES INCREASE.

Nash Motors division of Nash-Kelvinator corporation reported its new car sales for the first 20 days of March numbered 4,331, compared with 3,471 in the comparable period a year ago.

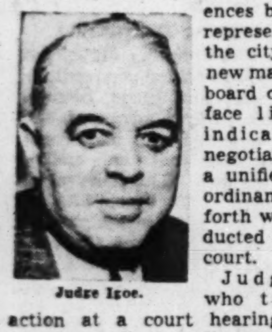
IGOE PUTS END TO PARLEYS ON TRACTION UNITY

Hits Delay; Indicates Court Hearing.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe put an end yesterday to further conferences between representatives of the city and the new management board of the surface lines and indicated that negotiations for a unified traction ordinance henceforth will be conducted before the court.



Judge Igoe.

Judge Igoe, who took this action at a court hearing on the transit unification dispute said further parleys at this time would be useless. He said the previous transit lines' board, which was replaced by the court last month, had conferred futilely with city officials for a year and a half.

"After all these conferences," he said, "the city submitted a franchise ordinance that was rejected unanimously by the transit board. The city has not submitted any other plan, so there's nothing to talk about."

Court Would Rule on Issues.

The court hearings which Judge Igoe indicated would be held would determine the basic legal questions in the negotiations. The questions would be argued by both the city and representatives of the companies, and Judge Igoe would rule on the points at issue.

Judge Igoe's declaration was made after William H. Sexton, special traction counsel for the city, reported in court that the new transit board twice had been invited to meetings of the council transportation committee but had failed to attend. He said the board has been asked to attend another meeting Monday.

"I can tell you right now what will happen Monday," Judge Igoe said. "There will be no more conferences if I can prevent it."

Sexton suggested that the city would be negotiating with the court instead of the traction lines' board under such a program as Judge Igoe proposed.

Responsibility Held City's.

"Not at all," Judge Igoe replied. "You and your associates at the city hall have been trying for a long time to put this traction problem into the lap of the court, but it doesn't belong there. The responsibility for settling this dispute rests squarely with the city of Chicago. The men at the city hall are big enough to hold it.

"The city refused to make changes in the franchise ordinance, as requested by the former transit board, but made revisions quickly at the request of federal loan officials. Apparently city officials listen more to Washington than to citizens of Chicago in dealing with the traction problem."

The discussion followed a motion by Jacob I. Grossman, counsel for the new transit board, that court hearings be held on the report filed Wednesday by the board. The report said that six fundamental changes were necessary to make the city's franchise draft acceptable. Grossman said the proposed changes followed instructions by Judge James H. Wilkerson in a memorandum in December, 1939, when he had jurisdiction over the transit lines. Sexton said the city's plan already conforms to Judge Wilkerson's memorandum.

Judge Igoe said the situation apparently calls for the court's interpretation of the memorandum. At Sexton's request the hearing was continued to Wednesday.

In an order entered yesterday Judge Igoe appointed Charles H. Albers a member of the surface lines' new management board and receiver for the Chicago City railways, which operates the south side lines. Albers has been general receiver for closed state banks since 1932 and is being replaced by Otto H. Woerter, who was appointed to the post last week by Gov. Green.

HERESY? SAYS BROKER COULD EARN MORE IF EXCHANGE DIDN'T EXIST

New York, March 28 [Special].—Brokers would be able to derive much more benefit if there were no New York Stock exchange, Glenn G. Munn, economist of Paine, Webber & Co., told startled members of the Association of Customers' Brokers at their meeting today in the stock exchange institute. Without the organized market, he said, they would not be limited to "the tiny commissions" allowed, but could make more on each transaction, as does the over the counter trade.

Munn said, however, that the stock exchange performs a function valuable to the country, because it provides an auction market for the valuation of securities, allows holders to buy and sell when they wish and contributes a substantial amount to the government budget.

Unless trade volume on the exchange improves, he indicated, only three things can happen: [1] the exchange can close; [2] it can continue operation under government subsidy; [3] restrictions can be relaxed.

Shippers Call U. S. Merchant Marine a Mess

New York, March 28 (AP).—The United States merchant marine, relied upon by the government for delivery to this country of raw materials needed for the armament program, was described today by shipping men as "in the biggest mess in our history."

Rubber, tin, and other required materials are reported piled up in the far east, magnesium ore in South Africa, and deliveries of United States exports to other nations are said to have been delayed.

British Needs a Factor.

The maritime commission in Washington, which is seeking to expedite imports of basic goods, was said by shipping men to be faced with four conflicting interests:

1. The British need for increased supplies.
2. United States army and navy ship requirements.
3. Operators of American flag lines who are hiring independently owned steamships to handle record shipping demands.
4. Independent owners of steamships, now in demand for the first time in 20 years.

The British are conceded to have been losing ships at the rate of about 64,000 tons—a rough average of about eight ships—a week.

"Ferryboat" Service Hit.

This is not a large percentage of the 24,000,000 tons of British merchant ships believed afloat, but the sinkings are largely concentrated on the British lifeline—the "ferryboat" service across the North Atlantic.

As a result, London has been compelled to withdraw many ships from her traditional trade routes, and the Americans have gone into those routes vigorously.

This development has been all the more rapid because of the administration's efforts to keep United States industry well stocked with the imported raw materials which are needed to manufacture munitions of war.

With these new demands on American flag ships and the sale of many American vessels to the British, the supply of American bottoms is occasioning concern among shippers and importers.

Rates Rising Steadily.

Rates, both of cargo and ships themselves, have steadily risen.

The operator of an American flag line, which owns several ships and charters many more from independent owners, tells of paying $2,200 a day for a vessel, now headed westward across the Pacific, which was rotting in a gulf coast harbor two years ago.

Vessels which could be chartered six weeks ago for $6 to $6.50 a deadweight ton per month now are bringing $7.25 to $8 a ton. Some owners are known to have demanded $9 a ton within the last three days.

They point out that they pay for the crews, insurance, and maintenance on charter trips and say they are able to make about $3 more a ton, in some instances, by operating the ships themselves as "tramps"—that is, carrying cargoes on assignment wherever and whenever the best opportunities are presented rather than on the fixed schedules of the flag liners.

FORD GETS CCC ORDER FOR 1,786 1½ TON TRUCKS

An order for 1,786 motor trucks costing a total of $1,417,000 and to be used by the Civilian Conservation corps, has been let to Ford Motor company, the war department announced yesterday.

The trucks will be of the 1½ ton type. The order was not classified as a military contract, and the trucks will be paid for from regular CCC appropriations.

Among contracts let by the department under the armament program was one for $2,000 let to Alonzo J. Hammond of Chicago for engineering consulting services at various army posts and stations.

A $293,011 contract for construction of water and sewer systems and gas mains for the air corps cantonment at Fort Wayne airport, Indiana, was let by the army to a Detroit contracting firm, Couse & Saunders.

SCIENTISTS SEEK SUBSTITUTES FOR ARMING METALS

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—A group of scientists was given the task today of saving metals vital to the arms program, and finding substitutes for them.

The Office of Production Management announced that it had asked a special committee of the National Academy of Sciences to determine what relatively plentiful materials could be substituted, in common uses, for aluminum, magnesium, nickel, chrome, tin, tungsten, zinc, graphite, lead, and beryllium.

The committee was asked also to determine how strategic metals could be used in smaller quantities in essential arms operations. Zay Jeffries of Cleveland is chairman of the committee.

5 STORY GOETHE SHORE HOTEL IS SOLD AT $167,000

The five story Goethe Shore apartment hotel, at 61 East Goethe street, was sold yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to an undisclosed buyer. Title was taken by B. Z. Gould. According to revenue stamps on the deed the price was $167,000. The building, which stands on an 87 by 131 foot lot, contains 100 one and two room furnished apartments, all of them occupied.

Air Line Faces New Problems in Arms Plans

United Air Lines Transport corporation will be confronted with many serious problems created by the armament program, including the possibility that a crisis may require key men to enter active military service, W. A. Patterson, president, said yesterday in the annual report to stockholders.

W. A. Patterson.

"The large number of young men employed by the company also makes it subject to losses of personnel thru operation of the draft," he said. "The difficulty of obtaining additional flying equipment may interfere with the company's ability to meet an increasing demand for its services, and the slowness of deliveries of certain parts and materials will require maintenance of larger stocks of airplane and engine parts and supplies."

Many Are Reserve Officers.

Patterson explained that more than 60 per cent of the company's flight officers hold commissions in the aircraft reserve of the army and navy and that many of the ground employés are also reserve officers. Since July, 1940, United has been unable to employ any army or navy reserve officers to become members of flight crews, but has undertaken an extensive training program.

Ninety young men are now enrolled as student pilots at the Tracy, Cal., branch of the Boeing School of Aeronautics, the company's training school division, he said. The school enlarged its facilities also at a cost of $111,000 to accommodate 500 regular army privates who are assigned there at government expense for a six months' mechanics course.

Net income for 1940, as announced previously, amounted to $775,463, equal to 51.7 cents a share, compared with $776,534, or 51.8 cents a share, in 1939.

Carried Strategic Materials.

Discussing other phases of the armament program, Patterson said that air lines are available and have been used recently for plane load transcontinental shipments of strategic materials and manufactured products.

"In a time of crisis all air line transport planes and crews could be used for short intervals for the transportation of military forces and equipment," he said. "Altho the combined fleet operated by all of the domestic air lines is only 365 aircraft, an emergency mobilization on 24 hours' notice would provide transportation over distances of a thousand miles at the rate of 6,000 men per day."

REPORT BROKERS WANT NATIONAL EXCHANGE RULE

Alfred W. Mansfield, chairman of the National Committee of Stock Exchange Partners, said yesterday that Chicago brokerage firm members of the New York Stock exchange voted approval of a plan for "national rule" of the exchange.

Mansfield heads a group which has formulated a plan to choose a majority of governors of the exchange by equal representation from each of the 11 federal reserve districts outside of New York. A minority of the board of governors would be chosen from the New York district.

He explained the plan before representatives of a majority of Chicago firms who have memberships on the New York exchange. He said after the meeting that all of these representatives voted approval. The plan has been submitted to the board of governors of the exchange, he said.

EXPORTS OF FATS AND OILS PLACED UNDER LICENSE

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—The state department announced tonight the placing of fats and oils under the export licensing control, as ordered by President Roosevelt. The proclamation extends the export licensing control, after April 15 to 51 new items, including animal, fish, and mineral oils, fats and grease, vegetable oil seeds, and other oil bearing raw materials, cork, and certain explosives and chemicals.

John B. Gordon, secretary of the bureau of raw materials for the American vegetable oils and fats industries, said that the executive order "has long been anticipated by the trade and its effect largely discounted."

MIKE & IKE GETS OUT OF RED, FIRST THRU OIL AND NOW BY LEAD

St. Louis, Mo., March 28 (AP).—Oil wells, and now lead, have put $500,000 in cash in Mike & Ike's treasury. Wealthy Mike & Ike are [is?] the Missouri-Illinois railroad, once a run-down unit of the Missouri Pacific system.

Oil, discovered along Mike & Ike's right-of-way a year or so ago, lifted the little 133 mile railroad out of the red. Now additional profits are coming from lead, transported in increasing volume from the Missouri lead belt because of armament requirements.

Guy A. Thompson, trustee of the Missouri Pacific, reported to the federal court today that Mike & Ike needed only about $200,000 in ready cash of the $500,000 on hand. He obtained permission to use $150,000 to retire outstanding bonds.

MORGAN STANLEY ASSAILS SEC FOR LOAN FEE RULING

New York, March 28 (AP).—The big investment underwriting firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. asserted tonight the Securities and Exchange commission was influenced by "inferences" rather than facts in its decision denying the firm $100,562 impounded fees in connection with the sale of a $25,000,000 bond issue of Dayton Power & Light company in February, 1940.

In its ruling yesterday the SEC contended there was an absence of "arm's length bargaining" between Morgan Stanley and Dayton Power & Light, or, in effect, that they were "affiliates."

The SEC's conclusions, said the firm's statement, "disregard the sworn testimony of the officers of the Dayton company and ourselves. . . . This testimony was to the effect that the terms of the issue were determined by independent arm's length bargaining, and that no one other than the officers of the Dayton company influenced or took any part in its decision to select us as the managing underwriter. No evidence to the contrary was submitted."

WOOD ASKS NO. AMERICAN CAR BOARD CHANGES

Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company, yesterday appealed to stockholders of the North American Car corporation for proxies to make two changes in the board of directors of the car company. Acting in a private capacity as a stockholder of North American Car, Wood is seeking to have elected to the board, William M. Spencer, Chicago, and Ernest L. Nye, New York, in place of L. H. S. Roblee, present president of the company, and R. M. Jenkins.

The annual meeting of North American Car will be held in the company's offices at 327 South La Salle street on April 8. Wood, who is a director of North American, proposes the reëlection of five present members, including himself.

Spencer is a former president of Inland Carlines, Inc. Wood said he believes the changes are for the best interests of the company.

Theater Owner Wins Fight to Get First Run Films

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures was directed yesterday, in an arbitration proceeding, to make its 1940 and 1941 films available to E. F. Van Derveer, owner of the State theater at Morris, Ill. Van Derveer had complained M-G-M was offering him only third run films. The arbitrator upheld Van Derveer and ordered M-G-M to supply him with first run pictures.

Plan New Risk Policy 'Rider' if U.S. Joins War

American insurance companies will follow the precedent of the last war in adopting some form of "rider" in new life insurance policies if the United States becomes a belligerent and sends troops abroad, insurance men predicted yesterday.

Canadian insurance companies are including such a provision in new policies [policies sold to American citizens by Canadian companies are not affected].

Some of the smaller American companies are inserting war risk clauses in policies sold to persons entering military service. However, it has not been adopted as a general policy and none of the major companies has adopted the plan. Policies already outstanding would not be affected by a change in present practice, insurance men emphasized.

Provide Extra War Premiums.

The war risk clauses usually provide that the insured must pay an extra premium to obtain full coverage against war perils. The additional premium ranges up to $100 for each $1,000 of insurance. The customary form provides that when a policy holder paying only the ordinary premiums dies in military service outside his country, his beneficiary will receive only the total of premiums paid, plus interest, or the cash surrender value of the policy.

During the world war, life insurance companies generally adopted war clauses in April, 1917, after war was declared. The extra premium assessed on new policies to men of military age ranged from $37.50 to $100 for each $1,000 of insurance, depending on the war zone to which the policy holder was sent.

Not Fully Decided.

The American Life convention, of which 159 American and Canadian companies are members, reported that no general conclusions as to war risk riders have been reached by companies in this country. Various proposals are before insurance departments of the states for study.

Any action by the companies along this line would be subject to approval by the insurance departments of the states in which the companies operate.

FIND WAY TO RUN POTATO STARCH PLANTS STEADILY

Chemurgical progress toward year round operation of sweet potato starch plants, which would help raise the standard of living in southern states, was reported yesterday. Sweet potato starch, it was said, could replace large imports of cassava and tapioca.

Gilbert C. Wilson, farm industrial chemist at North Texas State Teachers college, said dehydration processes would permit sweet potatoes to be stored for indsutrial use, enabling plants that now operate 90 to 110 days a season to stay open thruout the year.

In an address before the seventh annual chemurgic conference of agriculture, industry and science, Prof. Wilson termed the sweet potato the "aristocrat of starches," for textile and cooking uses, and said the residue from the dehydrated product would compete with corn as a feed for beef and dairy cattle.

HALSEY, STUART TAKES MORE OF ARKANSAS BONDS

The Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday sold to Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago, an additional $27,804,557 par value state of Arkansas highway refunding bonds at 102.5 and accrued interest, a premium to the RFC of $695,114.

The bonds, part of an issue of $136,330,557 recently purchased by the RFC, are the balance of $90,804,557 to be taken up by the RFC on April 1, of which $63,000,000 previously was sold at a premium of $850,000. Halsey, Stuart acquired $15,000,000 of the $63,000,000 bonds in the sale on March 18.

Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart, said yesterday that plans would probably be completed next week for reoffering the bonds. Whether the two blocks will be marketed together is undecided, he said.

Minneapolis Retail Bread Price Cut 2 Cents a Loaf

Minneapolis, Minn., March 28 (AP).—Bread prices dropped here today. One wholesale baker cut prices yesterday and others followed today. The retail price of one pound loaves dropped as much as two cents, from 10 to eight cents.

9 MONTH ZENITH SHIPMENTS TOP ANY FULL YEAR

Profit Before U. S. Taxes Mounts.

Unit shipments of the Zenith Radio corporation during the nine months ended Jan. 31 exceeded total volume of any complete year in the company's history, Hugh Robertson, executive vice president and treasurer, announced yesterday.

Net earnings of this Chicago manufacturer for the nine month period totaled $1,465,377 before federal income taxes, compared with $598,852 on the same basis in the corresponding period a year ago. Indicated profit before federal taxes for the quarter ended Jan. 31 was $306,505, against $221,156 in the comparable quarter a year earlier.

Postholiday Sales Up.

"Unit shipments during the nine month period exceeded those of any previous full year in the company's history," Robertson said. "Postholiday business is the largest that the company has ever experienced and, in view of the substantial unfilled orders now on the company's books, it is forecast that the total dollar volume of business for the fiscal year will exceed by more than 16 per cent that of the previous year, which was the highest on record."

He reported that the company's new patented foot control feature was a major factor in an increase of more than 80 per cent in unit sale of automobile radios to automobile manufacturers doing business with the company.

Expects Further Gains

"It is expected that this increase will continue at a much higher rate during the coming year since the company's patent position should insure it 50 per cent of the total automotive radio business," Robertson said.

He termed the company's financial status as "excellent." Its fiscal year ends April 30.

Net income of Horder's, Inc., Chicago distributor and retailer of office equipment, furniture, and supplies, was $218,090, equal to $1.74 a share, in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, compared with $201,594, or $1.61 a share, in the preceding year, Edward Y. Horder, president, announced. This was the largest net income since 1938.

Horder Sales Rise.

Net sales rose 9.41 per cent to $4,010,846 from $3,666,053 reported in the previous year. The total tax bill amounting to $189,435, was up 20.55 per cent.

Domestic consumers took more sulphur during 1940 than in any previous year in the history of the American sulphur industry, Langbourne M. Williams Jr., president of the Freeport Sulphur company, told stockholders in his annual report.

He reported that the industry supplied domestic users with a total of 1,795,000 tons of sulphur, in addition to exporting 760,000 tons. The demand for suphuric acid, principal commodity made from sulphur, rose to new high levels in the steel, chemical, paint, rayon, and film industries, Williams said.

As previously reported, the company earned $3.81 a share on common stock in 1940, compared with $2.76 a share in 1939. Main offices of the company are in New York City.

Faster Trains Boost Florida Winter Travel

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

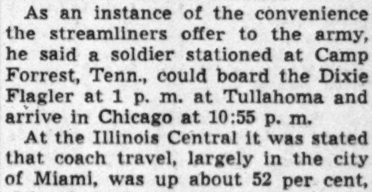
Thanks in a large measure to the trio of new streamliners, railroad travel between Chicago and Florida in the season just drawing to a close was the best in years, Chicago railroad officials said yesterday. Traffic increases were reported by all the roads taking part in the streamlined service, with one boasting of a 78 per cent increase over 1940 in the number of passengers carried between Chicago and Florida.

Because of the success of the three streamliners, which are de luxe all-coach trains, they are to be kept in service thru May 31, altho the winter season for the railroads ends early in April. And at a meeting of passenger traffic officials on May 6 a proposal to keep them in operation the year around will be discussed.

Three Roads Coöperate.

The three originating railroads operating streamliners are the Chicago and Eastern Illinois with the Dixie Flagler, the Illinois Central with the City of Miami, and the Pennsylvania with the South Wind. All three trains made their first runs in the middle of December.

H. R. Sampson, general passenger agent for the C. & E. I. stated that the gross earnings for the Dixie Flagler have averaged about $3 a mile, with operating costs a little over a dollar a mile. That train alone carried 3,277 passengers from Chicago to Florida in the period thru March 1, exclusive of intermediate passengers.



H. R. Sampson (left) and J. V. Lanigan tell of traffic gains.

Sampson said March travel has been especially good, with passenger volume running about 35 per cent ahead of March, 1940.

Many Hotels to Stay Open.

Miami is making plans to lure midwesterners to its region for summer vacations, Sampson said. This year about 190 Miami Beach hotels, about 60 per cent of the total, are planning to keep open the year around. Sampson stated that the large number of Chicago and midwestern troops in army camps in the south should produce much railroad business.

As an instance of the convenience the streamliners offer to the army, he said a soldier stationed at Camp Forrest, Tenn., could board the Dixie Flagler at 1 p. m. at Tullahoma and arrive in Chicago at 10:55 p. m.

At the Illinois Central it was stated that coach travel, largely in the city of Miami, was up about 52 per cent, altho first class travel in the standard trains was off somewhat. However, the decline in first class travel was attributed largely to the fact that many business men were kept at their desks in the north by arms making activity.

Need Only 62 Passengers.

J. V. Lanigan, passenger traffic manager of the I. C., is hopeful of keeping the City of Miami in service the year around. He said that only 62 passengers traveling from Chicago to Florida are needed to pay the operating expenses of the train which has a capacity of 254.

The Pennsylvania said its South Wind has been averaging 250 persons on the southbound trip to Florida and 260 on the northbound. It reported a 78 per cent increase in coach volume over last year.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois recently gave passengers on the Dixie Flagler a questionnaire covering a number of subjects. Asked what type of transportation they would have used if they had not taken that train, 236 said they would have gone by automobile, 64 by bus, 110 by airplane, 16 by other trains, 2 would not have gone, and 162 did not answer.

If other train service had been used 197 said they would have gone in coaches, 312 by Pullman, 71 indicated no choice. Of the group answering, 203 said they were attracted to the train by the combination of price, speed, comfort, and cleanliness.

COAL CONTRACT NEGOTIATORS NO NEARER ACCORD

New York, March 27 (AP).—Whether work would continue next week in almost three-fourths of the nation's soft coal mines became a predominant question today as joint labor-management negotiators for the Appalachian bituminous industry made little progress toward a new contract to replace the one expiring at midnight Monday.

Having announced earlier this week that the 330,000 miners in the eight-state Appalachian area would not work without a contract, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America [CIO], today summoned union leaders to a Monday afternoon conference to receive reports on negotiations and "act accordingly."

The miners' demand for a $1 a day wage increase is the principal "snag" in efforts to reach a contractual agreement.

Carrier Corp. Pays Wage Bonus of 9.4 Per Cent

Syracuse, N. Y., March 27 [Special].—The highest monthly cash bonus paid to salaried employés of the Carrier corporation under its profit sharing plan was announced today by J. I. Lyle, president. Pay increases amounting to 9.4 per cent of salaries will be included in the March pay envelopes of every regular salaried employé.

MIDWEST RAIL CAR NEED TO BE 13.6 PCT. HIGHER

Put Second Quarter Total at 782,365.

Reflecting the nation's arms activity, the Mid-West Shippers Advisory board yesterday estimated that 13.6 per cent more freight cars will be needed in the second quarter of this year to handle shipments than were actually loaded in the second quarter of 1940. Its estimate places the number of freight cars that will be used at 782,365 whereas 688,666 cars were actually loaded in the second quarter of 1940.

The board is one of 13 similar boards set up in various parts of the country to bring about coöperation between shippers and railroads. The purpose is to provide railroads with advance information as to car requirements of shippers so that car shortages may be avoided.

Iron and Steel to Rise.

Iron and steel shipments are expected to show a gain of 45 per cent over last year. Other increases reflecting arms activity include: coal and coke, 3 per cent; ore and concentrates, 50 per cent; lumber and forest products, 20 per cent; machinery and boilers, 22 per cent; cement, 5 per cent; automobiles, trucks, and parts, 20 per cent.

Only two declines are expected, in live stock, down 5 per cent, and in petroleum and products, down 8 per cent.

F. A. Schleifer, chairman of the board, said that a meeting will be held at Evansville, Ind., next Thursday to discuss the outlook in transportation. Speedy loading and unloading of cars by shippers is to be urged as a help toward maintenance of an adequate supply of cars to serve armament needs.

Serves Parts of 5 States.

RAIL BONDS LOSE SOME STEAM, BUT REACH NEW HIGHS

New York, March 28 (AP).—Railroad bonds lost some of their steam today but nevertheless a sizable number attracted enough support to push into new high ground for the year.

The general market was mixed, with industrials leaning slightly to the offside, utilities a shade ahead, foreign loans attaining a new 1941 high, and the low yield group dropping to a new low for the year.

Brokers described the leveling off in the rail group as a profit taking operation. Some of the medium priced bonds in this group were up 5 to 8 points on the week at the height of the move.

United States government loans developed slight easiness in the closing minutes of trading over the counter. There was little activity in this group on the exchange. Denmark 4½s and Belgium 6½s were among gainers in the foreign department.

MANUFACTURERS LIST APRIL TAX DATES FOR CONCERNS IN ILLINOIS

APRIL 15—Illinois retailers' occupation tax return and payment for March.

APRIL 30—Illinois unemployment compensation report and payment for the first quarter of 1941.

APRIL 30—Federal old age benefit return and payment for the first quarter.

APRIL 30—Second installment of 1940 federal unemployment compensation tax due and payable.

From April 1 to June 1 the state personal property tax returns for 1941 are to be filed in the counties in which the property is located within [usually] five days after receipt of the schedule. Failure to receive schedule does not relieve the taxpayer from responsibility.

During this period the state capital stock tax returns also are due. Some corporations are assessed by local assessors and others by the state tax commission.

STOCKS GIVE UP THURSDAY GAINS IN LIGHTER TRADE

Feeble Attempt to Extend Rally Bogs Down.

New York, March 28 (AP).—The stock market today gave up all of its gains of the preceding session without any particularly adverse news to account for the backslide.

Slightly lower tendencies developed after an early attempt to extend Thursday's upturn met with half-hearted response. Motors and steels weakened in the third hour and closing losses ranged from fractions to nearly two points. There were a few wider dips.

The one encouraging note in the retreat was the slackening of volume. Transfers totaled 442,610 shares against 551,190 Thursday.

Fear Nazi Retaliation.

Some of the day's selling was attributed to fears of retaliation by the Nazis against Yugo-Slavia. Expectations the government would take a firmer stand in labor disputes still were bolstering to sentiment.

Motors were timid, in view of warnings that a drop in output was likely if factories were crippled thru shortage of materials from strike-bound accessory concerns. Chrysler reached a new 1941 low.

Universal Pictures preferred rose 3 points and Paramount Pictures was up ⅛ after posting a new top for the year.

CHICAGO PRICES DIP.

Prices dipped slightly on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, but volume climbed to 19,000 shares from 14,000 Thursday. Of the 91 issues traded, 39 declined, 22 advanced, and 30 were unchanged. Commonwealth Edison, the trading favorite in turnover of 1,550 shares, was off ⅛ point at 28½.

Two dually listed issues traded from 2 to 3 o'clock gained ⅛ point over the New York close, Swift closing at 22 and United States Steel at 56¾. Others were unchanged.

AMERICANS OWN CARBORUNDUM STOCK, SAYS TONE

Frank J. Tone, president of the Carborundum company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., said yesterday that more than 99 per cent of the company's stock is owned by American citizens.

Inclusion of the company in a list of American concerns that are partly or wholly British owned was an error, Mr. Tone said. The company was included in such a list published in THE TRIBUNE March 18: "The list was prepared by a national statistical organization.

"The company is not in the remotest sense controled by Great Britain or British citizens and never has been since its incorporation in 1891," Mr. Tone said.

The company manufacturers abrasive and refractory materials.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Lighter receipts and a steadier tone in wholesale markets for fresh pork bolstered hog prices at the stockyards yesterday. Most offerings cleared readily at strong to 10 cents higher prices, recovering most of the preceding day's losses. Top loads at $8.15 showed 5 cents advance.

The scant supply of 800 cattle offered for sale yesterday changed hands quickly at fully steady prices.

RENEWED BUYING LIFTS COMMODITY FUTURES PRICES

Rubber and Cottonseed Oil Set New Peaks.

Commodities for future delivery were mostly higher yesterday with renewed buying following quiet markets and declining prices of earlier in the week.

Rubber and cottonseed oil went to new highs for the year, Santos coffee rose over ¼ cent a pound and lead, hides, silk, and cocoa posted more moderate gains. Domestic sugar continued to recede, while copper and wool tops were uneven.

Fear Shipping Difficulty.

Trade fears of shipping difficulties supported such imported commodities as rubber, silk, and cocoa, brokers said. Rubber futures advanced 0.05 to .10 cent a pound, the May delivery reaching 22.88 cents and ending at 22.78 cents bid. The cash price added 0.13 cent at 23 cents. Silk futures were 1½ to 4½ cents higher at $2.89 a pound for May and the cash staple jumped 3 cents to $2.88½.

Santos coffee futures, which had been subjected to profit selling, advanced 0.23 to 0.35 cent a pound to 9.32 cents in the May position.

Metal Market Firm.

Copper futures were 0.05 cent higher to 0.02 cent lower at 11.92 cents a pound for May. Lead inched forward 0.01 cent a pound to 5.82 cents in the same position. There were no tin futures sales. Cash metals were firm.

Wool tops were supported chiefly by short covering and finished 0.1 cent higher to 0.5 cent lower at $1.25 7-10 a pound in May contracts. Hides advanced 0.07 to 0.11 cent to 13.82 cents a pound in June futures.

VAST FARM AID BILL PASSED BY SENATE GROUP

Washington, D. C., March 28 (AP).—Acting with the same speed used on armament billions the senate appropriations committee today stamped approval on a $1,340,610,744 farm bill, largest in history. Senator Richard B. Russell [D., Ga], who will act as floor manager for the appropriation in the senate Monday, said there was "not any question" about senate passage.

He and other farm minded senators agreed that a fight, if any, would come when the measure was sent back to the house, which previously had voted only $890,000,000 for the administration's agricultural program.

Exceeds Earlier Plans.

As reported to the senate the annual bill supplying funds for millions of farmers and their families was $449,786,707 above the house total, $444,858,773 higher than President Roosevelt's budget recommendations, and $303,651,822 above last year's appropriations.

"At least we didn't hit the $7,000,000,000 mark," said Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], member of the senate "farm bloc," and a critic of the British aid program. Every one of the increases voted yesterday by the agricultural subcommittee won approval from the full committee.

As usual the bulk of funds will be used for benefit payments to farmers coöperating in the administration's attempts to balance production with demand.

Raise Parity Item.

The house had provided $500,000,000 for "soil conserving payments," and $212,000,000 for "parity payments." Senators approved the $500,000,000 but raised the "parity" item to $450,000,000, and then directed that $150,000,000 of it be paid out this year to cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, and rice growers complying with the farm acts. [Parity is farm buying power based on prices during pre-world war years.]

This $150,000,000, however, would be conditioned upon farmer approval of marketing quotas for the major crops. Quotas already have been approved by tobacco and cotton farmers and will be submitted to wheat growers May 31, because of the huge surplus of bread grain.

Other major increases by the senate group included $35,000,000 for surplus removal operations including the stamp plan; $7,000,000 cash and $25,000,000 loaning power for the Farm Security administration, which handles rural relief, and $4,000,000 additional for forest roads and trails.

Propose Penalty Boost.

The house agricultural committee, meanwhile, recommended passage of legislation to increase penalties for wheat and corn produced on nonquota acreage from 15 to 50 cents a bushel. The penalties would apply only if two-thirds of the producers of a commodity voted for the establishment of quotas.

The committee also approved the setting of the 1941 crop loan rate on corn, cotton, tobacco, and wheat at 75 per cent of parity. This would make the rate for cotton approximately 12 cents a pound and for wheat about 85 cents a bushel. Current rates for both commodities are about 56 per cent of parity. The rate for corn would be about 62 cents a bushel.

COTTON

General buying of cotton futures by mills, cash firms and speculators developed yesterday following an announcement that the house of representatives agricultural committee had approved a bill to give farmers a 75 per cent parity price loan equal to 11.85 cents a pound. Prices advanced as much as $1.50 a bale before profit taking and hedging sales checked the upturn. All deliveries sold at new seasonal highs. The close was somewhat under the top prices with gains of .15 to .19 cent a pound.

Cash cotton closed .15 to .19 cent higher, with New York, 11.35 cents; New Orleans, 11.12 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 10.75 cents a pound. Futures prices follow:

WHEAT, CORN, LARD REACH PEAK PRICES OF YEAR OR LONGER

Wheat prices advanced 2½ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade at one time yesterday as speculators and mills bought heavily following introduction in congress of a bill to give producers a farm loan of 85 cents a bushel on the 1941 crop. This would be 21 cents more than was loaned last year.

All deliveries of wheat and corn sold at the best prices since May, 1940. Lard futures rose highest since September, 1939, reflecting the higher price of corn and the purchase of about 26,000,000 pounds of lard by the government.

Profit taking and selling induced by the late easiness in securities trimmed wheat futures gains to 1¼ to 1⅜ cents, the latter on September. Corn gained 1 to 1⅛ cents and oats finished ¼ to ⅜ cent higher. Soy beans closed 1¼ cents higher.

Mills were persistent buyers of wheat futures in small lots, reflecting a better demand for flour.

AIR CONDITIONING BUSINESS SETS PEAK IN MONTH

Contracts for the installing of three giant 1,250 horsepower refrigeration machines to supply controlled temperature and humidity at the airplane engine parts plant being erected by Studebaker corporation at Archer and Cicero avenues, gave Chicago a new record last month in air conditioning business.

Aggregate capacity of the 21 central plant air conditioning installations contracted for in February was 5,392 horsepower, compared with 20 systems with 1,608 horsepower in the same month last year.

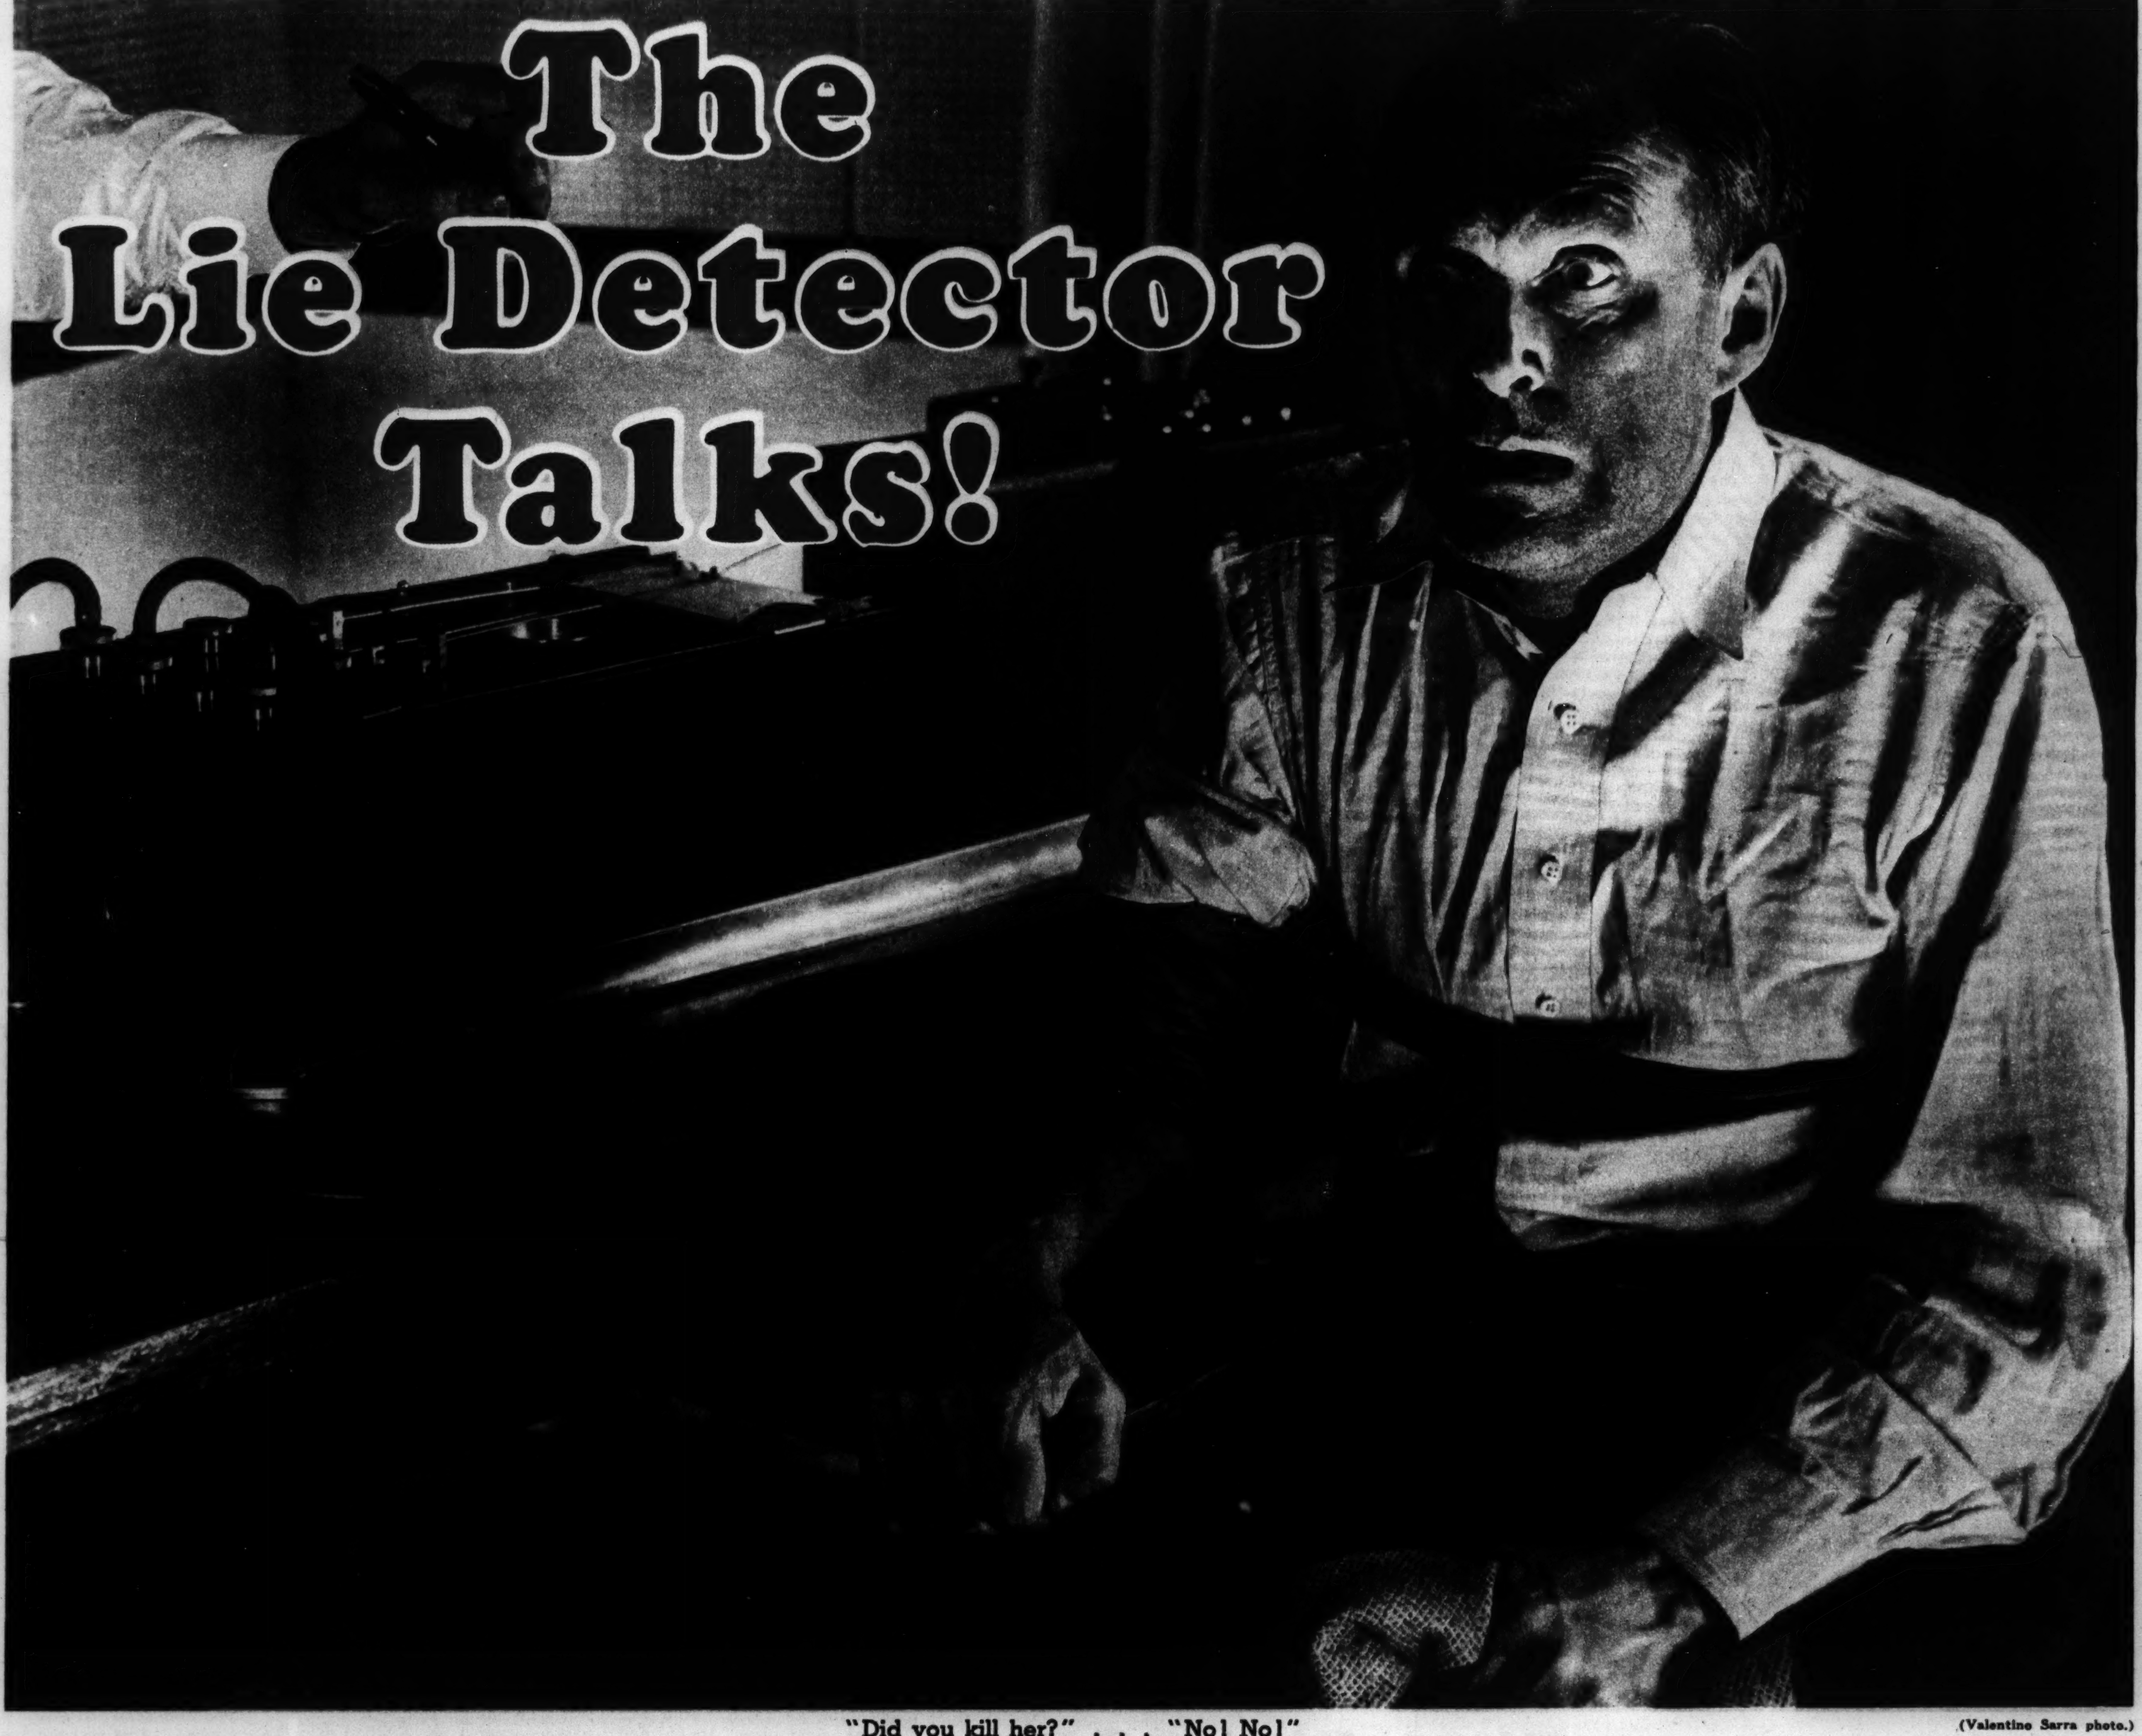
The Lie Detector Talks!



"Did you kill her?" . . . "No! No!"

How It Reveals Crime's Secrets

By LLOYD WENDT

"WHAT IS your name?"—"Charlie Garcia." "Do you live in Chicago?"—"Yes."

"Were you born in Chicago?"—"No."

"Do you know who murdered Mrs. Shoberg?"—"No!"

"Did you kill her?"—"No! No!"

"Were you ever inside her apartment or room?"—"No."

"Did you have breakfast today?"—"Yes."

"Coffee with your breakfast?"—"Yes."

"Did you kill Mrs. Shoberg?"—"No!"

"Were you in Mrs. Shoberg's apartment the night of the murder?"—"No! I know nothing about it."

The inquisitors removed a cylinder of paper from the polygraph (lie detector). It was ruled into tiny squares and contained two inky tracks, one a series of peaks, spread wide at the bottom; the other a mass of tight black lines looking somewhat like a tightly coiled spring. Garcia's eyes followed the paper as it was taken from the room. Then they fell on the lie detector beside him. Would it talk?

Outside the soundproofed interrogation room the two men examined the chart. "Garcia's lying," they agreed. The chart was exhibited to police officers.

"There's no doubt Garcia is lying. He has guilty knowledge of the crime. Look at this respiration line. See how the peaks drop here? At the same point the blood pressure goes up. That's where he was asked, 'Did you kill her?' and he answered, 'No.'"

An hour later, after he had inspected the damaging record of the lie detector, Garcia was ready to confess.

Q.—You are telling the truth and making this statement of your own free will and accord? No one has made any threats or promises to you—is that right? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where do you live? A.—3029 North Clark street.

Q.—Early on Feb. 2 were you in the vicinity of 3262 North Clark street? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time was that? A.—About 2 o'clock.

Q.—What were you doing? A.—I had been drinking.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I walked down a passageway near Clark and School streets. I broke the window by the door. That would be on the right side as you face the building.

Q.—Then what did you do? A.—I stood there and looked in. Then a woman came. She saw me and screamed. I walked away from the window, and she thought I had gone. Then I crawled in the window. I walked in the other room, and she saw me. She let out a yell, and I hit her with something. I don't remember what it was. When I hit her she went down . . .

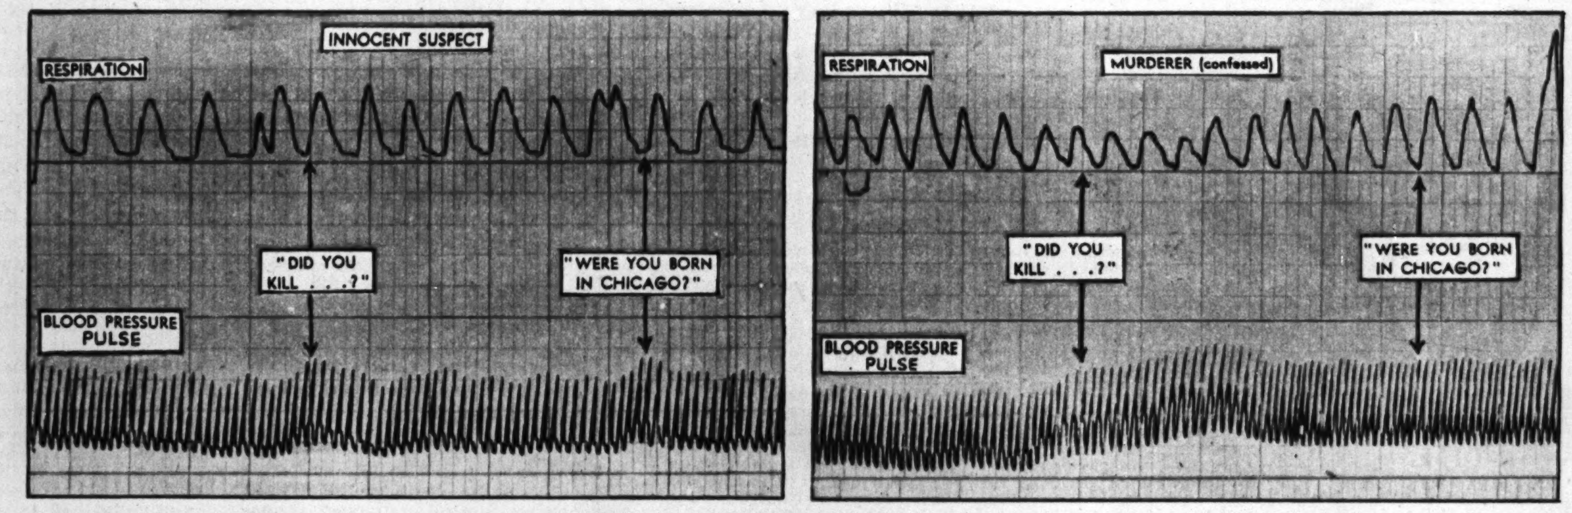
The body of Mrs. Johanna Shoberg was found on the bed in her flat at 3262 North Clark street Feb. 2, 1939. On the floor was a blood-stained broomstick which had been used as a weapon. Medical examination showed that Mrs. Shoberg, a widow, had been the victim of a sex maniac.

Suspicious characters in the neighborhood were rounded up. Among them was Charles Garcia, 30 years old, an unemployed laborer. He was found to have a prison record. Garcia said he could provide an alibi, but the police determined to submit him to a lie detector test.

They took him to the quarters of the Chicago police crime detection laboratory on the 12th floor of the central police building, 1121 South State street. There Garcia was taken to the interrogation room, a pneumograph tube put about his chest to record the pattern of his respiration under questioning; another tube, leading from an arm band, carried the record of his (Continued on page thirteen.)



Respiration and blood pressure patterns of innocent and guilty suspects as recorded by the lie detector. The question "Did you kill her?" produces only slight reaction from the innocent suspect. The murderer (who later confessed) shows greatly restricted respiration and increased blood pressure.

Tyrone Power—Nice, Average Guy

TYRONE POWER III.

Tyrone's father and mother, taken about 1910.

Looking at Hollywood

Hollywood.

IN THE FIRST article of this series on top box office stars your correspondent had a guess that Tyrone Power, who was among the big ten last year and the year before, might run into some stiff competition from one Jimmy Stewart. The guess wasn't a bad one, for Jimmy annexed the best actor Oscar (try saying that over quick)—but is now out of the running on account of army business. And there is no telling how long Ty will remain on his pictureland battlefield, for he is young and healthy as well as handsome, and eminently draftable. True, he has a wife, a foster daughter, and a mother who could be classed as dependents—but he made a couple of bucks last year, and nobody is exactly dependent on his current income. The wife, one Annabella, is not unknown in the movies and is about to resume her career as a wage earner in one thing or another. One thing might be the Maria rôle in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," for which she has already been tested. So Ty looks good for the army before the year is out, and it's O.K. by him.

Meanwhile he will continue being a man of action. His first picture after a five months' holiday was "The Mark of Zorro." He is now engaged upon "Blood and Sand," and this will be followed by a portrayal of a happy-go-lucky aviator who flies bombers to Britain—"A Yank in the R. A. F." After that, just for a change of pace, he'd like to do a comedy; but the studio has bought so many stories for him including "Benjamin Blake" and another on a foreign news bureau, that he doesn't know what's in store.

In a way Power's career has been the very tough one of following footsteps. To begin with, he's from a good old theatrical family, his father, grandfather, and mother having been noted players. With such a background he had a veritable hell of a time getting started in the acting business. Once, for instance, he nearly landed a $10 bit in a picture, but the casting director asked him what his name was, and when he said, "Tyrone Power," the great man said, "And I'm Napoleon Bonaparte," and gave the job to another guy.

This season Ty has been following two notable actors in notable performances. He was assigned to the remake of the late Douglas Fairbanks' "The Mark of Zorro"—and you are sticking your neck out when you take on a job like that. Next Boss Zanuck handed him an immortal rôle of another of Hollywood's few real immortals—the Rudolph Valentino part in "Blood and Sand." So out goes the Power neck again.

But Ty will make out all right. He did fine in "Zorro," cutting Z's with a right good will and not having a lot of nasty comparative cracks made. One reason for this is that he does his best not to imitate.

"Naturally," he says, "you do the same things the others did if you're in the same story, but you shouldn't do them the same way. I'm not the athlete Fairbanks was, and I'm not the great lover Valentino was. All I can do is pray that my personality will fit somehow. And the difference in technique between silents and talkies helps, too.

"I've seen Valentino's performance in 'Blood and Sand'—and even now it's a great job and enough to scare a guy. He must have acted in slow motion, and I don't see how he did it. Film speeds were different then, with everybody jerking and twitching around, but Valentino always moved as smoothly and naturally as the camera makes anybody do now.

"That old one is still a great picture—but some of it wouldn't go now. There's a lot of passionate breast heaving that's out of date—and a little too hot. The funniest thing in it was a scene where Valentino bit Nita Naldi's hand, and she held it out again, and there was a caption, 'Bite me again—I love it!'"

Reverting for a moment to "Zorro": Power knew that the rôle was Fairbanks' favorite. When the star died, long before Power knew that he'd be playing the same part, Ty's floral offering at the funeral was a white blanket with a red "Z" on it.

Tyrone Power belongs in the large group of male movie stars of whom it is always said, "He's a nice guy." With the women it is different. Some of them, like Rosalind Russell and Myrna Loy, are nice guys who get along well with bosses, crews, publicity men, and newspaper folk. Others are difficult and come in for much reviling. But most of the top-bracket men are easygoing, friendly, and popular in the trade. And gosh, are they popular outside it!

At the recent première of "Meet John Doe" a great mob of fans filled the sidewalk bleachers and the lobby and aisles of the Hollywood theater. When the show broke the fans were still there, despite the rain, and there was a subway crush in the lobby. A teen-age lass near me began to quiver and squealed to her teen-age female companion:

"There's Tyrone Power coming out! O dear God"—and this quite devoutly—"please make him come this way!"

Which to a sour-puss like me is more than slightly feebleminded, for no actor is worth standing hours in the rain for, let alone a prayer. And Mr. Power would agree. He has had some tough times with fans; once in London they even ripped the door off his car, and in a small South American town they literally tore him to shreds and scared the life out of him. He says that fan demonstrations always make him feel foolish. He's a nice guy.

Tyrone Power III., to give him all of his name, was born 27 years ago next May at the home of his maternal grandmother in Cincinnati. Until 27 years ago last month his mother, Patia Power, had been appearing with the late great Tyrone Power II. in Shakespearean rôles. So young Ty, altho he was not born in the traditional dressing room and cradled in the drawer of a wardrobe trunk, was born in the Shakespearean theater. Seventeen years later his first professional acting job was a bit—that of an old man—in his father's "Merchant of Venice" company in Chicago.

Chicago has done its part in nurturing future Hollywoodians. Didn't Dorothy Lamour run an elevator in a department store there? Didn't Gene Autry croon there on the radio? Didn't Don Ameche sing on the air there for six years? And didn't Ty Power act on a religious hour, and later read the funny papers to the children? Ty is doubtless Twentieth Century-Fox's biggest box office draw, but working right alongside and not so far behind is Don Ameche. These two became close friends in the old Chicago days before either of them made his way in the movies. Don calls Ty "Mug"; Ty calls Don "Meechee."

When Ty was three months old his parents were engaged by Famous Players to make pictures in New York. Nine months later they signed on with Selig in Hollywood for a picture, and this was Ty's first visit. Then the Powers went back to New York, where Tyrone Sr. was to be in "Chu Chin Chow," but the infant son couldn't stand the climate. Back he came to California with his mother, to stay in San Diego. This was wartime, and Mrs. Power formed a volunteer stock company and put on vaudeville shows and concerts for the soldiers under the auspices of the Stage Women's War Relief.

Ty, the ailing infant, gained in health. After the war Patia Power moved with her son and her daughter—17 months younger than Ty—to Alhambra to appear in John Stevens McGroarty's famous mission play. She was in it for five seasons, and her children practically lived in her dressing room. When Ty was 7 he had his first—but nonpaying—stage rôle—a bit in the mission play.

McGroarty liked the youngster and gave him a more important rôle in another California drama, "La Golondrina," which won Ty his first press notice. Edwin Schallert, now writing movies for the Los Angeles Times, opined:

'You'd think that a chap like Power would walk thru Broadway and on—if "on" is the right word—to Hollywood without let or hindrance. But he didn't. His mother went back to Cincinnati in 1923 to teach acting in a drama school; Ty was educated in parochial schools in Cincinnati and Dayton. At 17 he was graduated from Purcell High, a Brothers of St. Mary institution in Cincinnati, and then came the question of college. He said he'd rather go on the stage, and thus came about his first professional appearance in "The Merchant of Venice."

Power Sr. became engaged for a short season in Shakespeare at Chicago's Auditorium theater in 1931. The company included Fritz Leiber, William Faversham, and Helen Menken. Young Ty got small rôles, starting with "The Merchant of Venice."

Ty's movie career very nearly began right after this. His father had been engaged to star in a talkie version of "The Miracle Man" at Paramount, and he also wangled a small part for his son. The two of them came west together—but the venture ended in tragedy. Soon after shooting began Power Sr. died, and young Ty's rôle never materialized. The lad began to hunt for work but got nowhere. Big shots who consented to see him did so only because they wanted to reminisce about his father. For two years Ty tried to crash Hollywood, but failed. So he set New York and the real theater as his goal.

On the way to New York he stopped off in Chicago, where the Century of Progress exposition was on. Here he got radio work, and later a rôle in the Eugenie Leontovich revival of "Romance." Then on to New York and a discouraging tour of the Broadway casting offices. His final good break came when Helen Menken, who had known him from the Chicago Shakespeare days, fixed it for him to see Guthrie McClintic, who signed him as understudy to Burgess Meredith in Katharine Cornell's "The Flowers of the Forest."

Ty never got to act on Broadway, because Buzz Meredith was and is a healthy guy. (Another of Meredith's frustrated understudies is Garson Kanin, the film director.) But Ty did learn a lot of theater, and the following summer he developed his knowledge in stock in Falmouth, Mass. The next winter he played Benvolio in Miss Cornell's "Romeo and Juliet." (In that company he was one season ahead of Orson Welles.) He was slated to go into Miss Cornell's "St. Joan," but by now movie scouts had made a test of him and Darryl Zanuck signed him up.

"Blood and Sand" is Power's 20th picture, 19 of which have been made on the Fox lot. The other one was "Marie Antoinette," at M-G-M. His pastime now is collecting 16-millimeter sound prints of these films, because he got a half-size sound projection outfit for Christmas. He'd get other pictures, too, but this is hard to wangle. Hollywood doesn't approve of home size sound pictures. However, other stars are also getting their own stuff, and if you want to show a good picture at home you can call up Clark Gable or somebody else and borrow his.

Power married Annabella in the spring of 1939. He swims, plays tennis, rides horseback. He has what looks like a good outdoor tan, but it's a natural olive complexion. His home is a colonial place in Brentwood. He's six feet tall, weighs 155, and doesn't have to diet or exercise. While making "Blood and Sand," however, he has been eating avocado and bacon sandwiches and no more for lunch, because his bullfighter's costume is tight and if he puts in a good meal it just lies there.

His tastes seem to be average. The regular publicity department obituary says his favorite classical orchestration is "Tales from the Vienna Woods," if you can call that classical; his favorite illustrator is Petty; his favorite modern painter is Grant Wood, and his favorite modern author is the late Thorne ("Topper") Smith. Which makes for an average guy—and a nice one.

COCONUT CUSTARD PIE! BOY, AM I IN LUCK!

Make this Spry FULL FLAVOR Pie and hear the family cheer!

See how the tender, nut-sweet Spry-crust lets you get the FULL flavory goodness of the spicy, delicate custard

WATCH folks start smiling at the very first bite! Watch their smiles broaden with each enticing mouthful. Hear the compliments start coming! For this custard pie has everything! Lusciously smooth filling, golden-brown topping of delicately spiced coconut. Tender, flaky, mouth-melting crust. There won't be a crumb left.

But here's something very important to remember, not only for this but for every pie you make: If you want to get the FULL FLAVOR, be sure to make the crust with Spry!

Ordinary shortenings may give off-flavor crust that "smothers" the taste of the filling

Play safe and use purer Spry. Spry's not only purer but it stays fresh longer, too—mixes so easily. Three big extra advantages and only Spry gives all three! Change to Spry today for all your baking and frying.

You'll love COCONUT CUSTARD PIE made this Spry FULL FLAVOR way

3 eggs and 2 egg yolks, or 4 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup shredded coconut
1 unbaked Spry Pie Shell
Grated nutmeg

Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Add milk and vanilla. Strain custard. Add coconut to custard mixture, pour into unbaked pie shell and sprinkle generously with nutmeg.

Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 25 to 35 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean.

SPRY PIE SHELL—"Sweet as a nut" and so tender, flaky!

1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
7 tablespoons Spry
3 tablespoons cold water (about)

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅓ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a large pea. (Use this mixing method and Spry for every pie you make. It's a sure-fire way to get tender, flaky crust, and Spry mixes so easily!) Sprinkle water gradually over mixture. With a fork, work lightly together until a dough is formed. Roll ⅛-inch thick. Place dough in 9-inch pan and let relax 5 minutes. Pat with ball of dough to fit pastry into pan. Trim pastry 1 inch larger than pan and turn back edge. Flute rim.

It Was General Monk Who Gave England Charles II.

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

WHEN THE European war is ended one of the problems of peace will be the fate of royalty in several countries. Will the little kings and queens whose territories are now overrun, or ruled by German threats, be discarded as outworn symbols of a bygone age? Or will the victors and their own peoples set them back upon their thrones?

No man knows. Most of them have been worthy persons, working at their jobs and careful to claim little or nothing more of royal prerogative than their subjects wish to grant them. There is the shadow of a parallel in their situation and that of Charles II. of England, the wandering Stuart whom Gen. George Monk with calculated self-interest recalled to the sovereignty of his nation in 1660.

This Charles had been an exile for most of the 11 years since his father, Charles I., had mounted the scaffold and in a mood of righteous self-justification made a brief speech preceding the lopping off of his head. Thru that kingless period England had been ruled by an able dictator, Oliver Cromwell, and a fumbling parliament.

France and Spain had entertained the ousted heir. He was broke, and their kings gave him handouts on which he and his pitiful little court subsisted. There were reasons for this meager hospitality; the English had set a precedent in the killing of the first Charles that frightened every crowned head in Europe; they had delivered a blow at the divine rights of kingship, and some time a restored Charles might be a paying investment.

Now the fugitive royalty of Holland, of Norway, of Albania, and of Luxemburg are visiting in England, in the British dominions, and in the United States. In person two princesses and a duchess of the three countries have been entertained recently at the White House. And, not to forget the not-so-estimable Carol of Rumania, he is in Portugal, hoping fate will let him get to the United States.

The world has changed greatly since the two Charleses lived some 300 years ago. The traveling kings and queens no longer represent the tyranny of divine right (except perhaps in the case of Carol), and their restoration may be desired by their countries. If it is, the General Monks to bring them back will not be wanting if the Germans are soundly whipped.

Charles I. was a bad king, and Charles II. was no bargain, altho Monk was handsomely rewarded in the restoration.

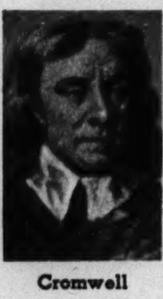
The first Charles engaged, to the disapproval of his people, in spirited foreign entanglements and ran England into debt. The commons sought to bargain with him for things they wanted, and withheld funds to enforce their demands.

"Remember," retorted the king, "that parliaments are altogether in my power for their calling, sitting, and dissolution; therefore, as I find the fruits of them good or evil, they are to continue or not to be."

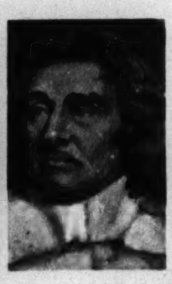
That was the true dictatorial approach, but the king didn't succeed in making good his words. Neither did he keep promises he made. He moved farther away from parliamentary government. His third parliament formulated the famous petition of right, forbidding any taxation without parliament's consent, as well as arbitrary and illegal imprisonment by the crown.

The whole story is too long to tell here, but the king adjourned the legislators and for 11 years ruled as absolutist lord, levying taxes and finding them hard to collect, and keeping up his foreign wars in desultory fashion. By 1640, however, he came to an impasse and summoned a parliament. Among its members were several men who had been imprisoned by the king for opposition in previous sessions and were naturally bitter against him. There was little of the spirit of compromise, and eventually the king and parliament engaged in civil war.

Cromwell and an army that sang hymns and made a crusade of their fight were the winners, and Charles I., who had much slippery conduct to account for, was brought to trial as a traitor after long legal formalities and sentenced to beheading. He met death with kingly courage, maintaining to the last the thesis that the people had no control over a divinely appointed ruler. On the scaffold he averred that "their liberty and freedom consists in having government . . . it is not their having a share in the government; that is nothing appertaining to them."



Cromwell

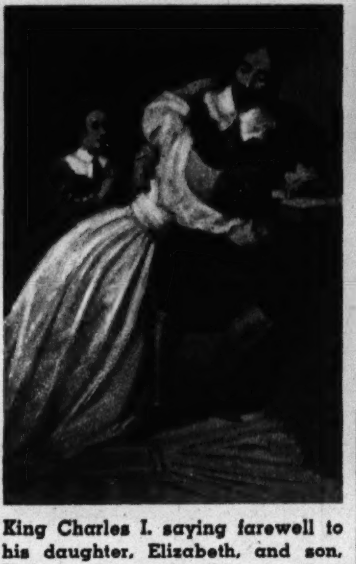


General Monk

Charles II., then 19, after many adventures escaped to the continent (1649). England scraped along under Cromwell's protectorate while the king across the water kept his claims alive and lived a life of pleasure financed by the magnificent Louis XIV. of France. Thru the formative years of his young manhood he was completely divorced from English ways and politics.

When Cromwell died in 1658 and his son Richard (Tumbledown Dick) took over and failed as a leader, royalist sentiment began to develop. The virtues of the Stuarts were remembered, their sins forgotten. England became ashamed of the crime of killing a king.

Closely watching the change in opinion was George Monk, a cold, hard-bitten soldier of fortune and perhaps the ablest of Cromwell's generals. An astute politician, he gave subtle advice to Richard Cromwell. He suggested that the parliament's army be cut in half and taxes reduced, while he kept his own army in Edinburgh to watch the always dissatisfied Scots. His troops were loyal to him and a strong factor in whatever he was minded to attempt.

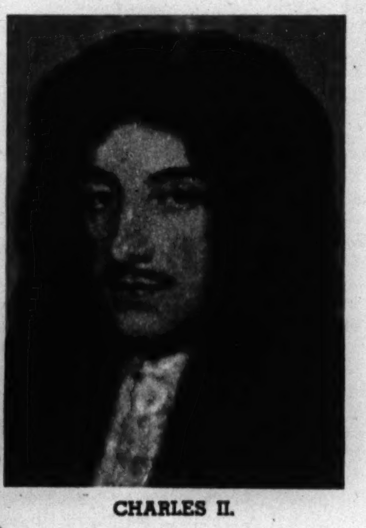


King Charles I. saying farewell to his daughter, Elizabeth, and son, Henry, on day before his execution.

In 1659 he was in correspondence with Charles, but not committed to his cause. He had, in fact, been appointed the parliament's commander in chief, commissioned to defend the body against other dissident generals. As such he marched his men into London early in 1660 and, by carefully playing enemy factions against each other, accomplished what he wished while clothing himself in modest righteousness.

"Obedience is my great principle," he asserted, "and I shall ever reverence the parliament's resolutions in civil things as infallible."

Only a few months earlier he had emphatically declared against the return of the Stuarts. Now by devious methods, shrewd advice, and half threats he persuaded the old "rump" parliament to dissolve itself and make way for a new one of royalist leanings. At the same time he kept in touch with Charles and virtually dictated the pronouncements of policy the claimant to the throne sent cross the channel. General pardons, pay for soldiers, and liberty of conscience—these he urged and these the hungry Charles granted.



CHARLES II.

The return of Charles II. to London after General Monk's coup.

So it was that on his 30th birthday (May 29, 1660) King Charles rode into London with General Monk "thru a lane of happy faces." The army that had been formed to kill Charles I. and end his dynasty had made possible the restoration of the son—an odd development, but quite in keeping with the traditions of government by armed force.

Monk was heaped with honors. He was made a gentleman of the bedchamber, a knight of the garter, master of the horse, commander in chief; was given the titles Baron Monk, earl of Torrington, and duke of Albemarle and a pension of $35,000 a year. The restoration was a gain for this clever soldier.

For England it was not so fortunate. Charles proved himself indolent and immoral. He accepted a pension from France. He let the armed forces fall into dilapidation. His navy was so contemptible that the Dutch sailed in and burned Chatham a few years after his installation. The people regretted the recall.

"A lazy prince," wrote Samuel Pepys; "no council, no money, no reputation at home or abroad. It is strange how . . . everybody do nowadays reflect upon Oliver and commend him, what brave things he did and made all the neighbor princes fear him; while here a prince, come in with all the love and prayers and good liking of his people . . . hath lost all so soon."

Kings like Charles II. are out of date now. Men like General Monk, when they achieve power for themselves, keep it.

"Accept a bride's thanks, dear Camay, for helping her to a lovely skin"

—Says Mrs. Joseph M. Sinnott

You, too, can benefit from Camay's greater mildness—as have many women, even with dry or delicate skin!

Many women with sensitive skin prefer Camay!

Mrs. Sinnott cares for her skin with Camay. She pays tribute to Camay's wonderful mildness—its gentle, creamy lather. "My complexion needs extra care," she says. "Camay is so mild, it's just right for skins like mine."

Lovely women everywhere feel that way about Camay—especially women with a somewhat delicate skin, or a dry skin.

For now a great new improvement has made Camay milder than six of the best-selling beauty soaps we could find—as we proved by tests in our own laboratories. And many skin specialists we talked to say that regular cleansing with a fine, mild toilet soap can help your skin look lovelier.

Get 3 cakes of Camay from your dealer. Let this milder Camay help you in your search for loveliness.

Jamaica—Challenge to Our Defense Ingenuity

THE WEST INDIAN island chain, in which America has obtained defense bases, extends from off the coast of Florida to the northeast shores of South America. It lies astride the trade routes to the Panama canal, which is as important to American defense as it is to commerce.

- Under the deal which sent 50 American World war destroyers to Britain the United States was given permission to lease a chain of bases from Newfoundland to British Guiana in order to round out this line of defense. A Tribune correspondent spent five weeks visiting the British West Indies and British Guiana to gather first-hand information on the base sites, the progress of base construction, and life in the base colonies. On this page is the second story in the series recounting his observations.
- The strategic value of the West Indies Islands to defense of the canal and southeastern United States is readily apparent upon even a casual study of this map. A voyager from the north in visiting the defense bases passes thru the same gateway and makes the same first landfall as did Christopher Columbus in 1492—San Salvador, now Watling's Island. It lies east of the first gateway to the Caribbean—the Straits of Florida. The United States has secured a base site at Nassau, less than an hour's flight from Miami, and may develop seaplane bases at various keys to the east of the capital of the Bahamas.
- A more important gateway to the canal is the Windward passage, between Cuba and Haiti. This is adequately guarded by the admirable naval base at Guantanamo bay, under lease from Cuba. Haiti is prepared to lease a supporting base for the guarding of this passage if it is needed.
- Jamaica lies southwest of this passage on a line with the Panama canal. A third gateway is Mona passage, between Santo Domingo and Puerto Rico, which is being transformed into one vast air and naval base. Santo Domingo is prepared to lease land on this passage if it is needed by this country.
- Jamaica, Cuba, Haiti, and Puerto Rico comprise the Greater Antilles, and the semicircle of smaller islands which extends southward in a 1,600-mile curve between the two new world continents, the Lesser Antilles. In the latter group are many passages to the Caribbean, until now huge chinks in America's defensive armor.
- Before acquisition of the bases the last American outpost in the West Indies was the Virgin Islands, where bases are being built to guard Anegada pasage, to the southeast of these possessions.
- The United States is acquiring three bases in the hitherto vulnerable area—at Antigua in the Leeward Islands, St. Lucia in the Windward Islands, and Trinidad off Venezuela. It is also acquiring a listening post to the south of the island chain in British Guiana.

What America Is Doing with Her New Bases

By WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C.

A GIGANTIC task lies before the United States in the construction of the army and navy bases at Jamaica, the largest of the British West Indies and the nearest to the strategically vital Panama canal.

The island, discovered by Columbus May 3, 1494, was named by him after St. Iago, the patron saint of Spain, but reverted to its native name of Xaymaca, which means well wooded and watered, after its capture by the disorderly rabble of troops sent out by Oliver Cromwell in 1655 under Sir William Penn, father of the founder of Pennsylvania.

It is 144 miles long and has an extreme width of 49 miles, containing 4,200 square miles of land, of which some 50 have been reserved for the construction of American bases. It has a population of 1,200,000—120,000 in its capital, Kingston, the largest city in the British West Indies.

The island is very mountainous. It is related that Columbus described it to Queen Isabella of Spain by crumbling a piece of paper in his hands—a device almost as ingenious as his trick of standing an egg on end. Jamaica's principal products are sugar, rum, and fruits.

The most important American defenses are to be created at a beautiful, semicircular bay, almost 10 miles each way, which is fringed with mangrove swamps. These rise to low wooded and inhabited hills, which in turn rise to a majestic rampart of rugged mountains, the tallest of which towers above 7,000 feet.

The Portland bight area, where the defenses are to be located, lies 25 miles west of Kingston, and its principal settlement, Old Harbor, is on the government railroad, which links Kingston and Montego bay, the island's resort community. A good road also connects the area with the rest of the island.

Plans call for an anchorage in the bay, which will necessitate considerable dredging, altho there is deep water in the center of the bight. The fringes of the bay are to be taken over for the construction of plane ramps, docks, barracks, stores, and the like. The navy has reserved 33⅓ square miles on the northeastern shore of the bay, including Goat Island, in a plot which extends inland to a depth of four miles. It also has another 16⅓ square miles on Portland Ridge.

In addition to the development at the bight, American plans call for an army air field near Maypen, 10 miles north of Old Harbor; a hospital and recreation center near Williamsfield, south of the center of the island, and joint development with British authorities of defense possibilities of Port Royal.

Port Royal was once the wickedest spot in the world, in the days when pirates spent their blood-tainted pieces of eight in its taverns and brothels. Sir Henry Morgan, one of the most famous of the brotherhood of the coast, who rose to be governor of Jamaica, often swaggered thru its streets. His descendants, American tourists will agree, now run taxicabs in Kingston.

The city was demolished by an earthquake in 1692. Kingston came into existence as a result of this destruction. The visitor can see the ruins of the old city lying under several fathoms of clear blue water, and are told that on certain days the church bells of the sunken city can be heard in Kingston.

A few time worn buildings of the old city still look down on the sunken ruins from the tip of the seven mile spit of land known as the Palisadoes, which forms a natural breakwater for the spacious Kingston harbor. The tip is occupied by a naval dockyard, a coal dock, a coast artillery unit, warehouses, repair docks, and similar structures.

This post, once under the command of the great Admiral Nelson, has fallen into decay. The present war has revived interest in its defense, but it is doubtful that a first class naval base will be built here unless American dollars are made available for such development.

A mile or so inland from the tip of the spit the British are building an airfield, which may be used for training R. A. F. pilots in the new world. The United States has been given permission to use this port on its completion. Also available for American use is the Pan-American Airways seaplane base, to the east of Kingston.

The United States has reserved a total of 22,000 acres on the island, all privately owned. When the base deal was announced, a local syndicate optioned some 30 square miles of an area it thought would be sought by this country. To its disappointment only seven miles of the optioned area was chosen by the Americans.

Island officials, who are negotiating the purchase of the land, predict that it will be procured for about $1,000,000, or an average of $45 an acre, a good price for pasture land. Seventy-five per cent of the 22,000 acres is in pasture. Property owners are not satisfied with this price and may appeal to the courts in an effort to obtain more money.

The United States is to reimburse the colonies, under the terms of the leases, for sums expended in the acquisition of the base lands by the British crown. Nonetheless, its status is to be that of a tenant for 99 years, and it may be called upon to pay "a pepper corn rental" on the purchased land.

The Port Royal area is restricted area. A barbed wire fence bars the casual visitor. A grinning Negro halted me at the barrier when I attempted to visit the sunken city with Lieut. James E. Reid, an American naval reservist summoned to active duty at Panama, and Mrs. Reid, who were fellow ship passengers.

The guardian of the gate was without a defensive weapon and without shoes. Asked what he would do if I ordered the chauffeur to drive on, he said with embarrassment that he hoped I wouldn't, because I could get a pass from the inspector of police.

Jamaican authorities are on the alert in the protection of island secrets.

The night before the S. S. Talamanca of the United Fruit Lines, on which this correspondent was a passenger, put into Kingston, cameras were collected and passengers were warned against taking letters, maps, or British money in or out of the colony.

Fifty miles out of Kingston's harbor, one of the most picturesque in the West Indies, the radio room was sealed in accordance with regulations designed to prevent transmission of Jamaican shipping movements to Nazi raiders.

The dawn before my arrival at Kingston saw two men executed for violation of this order. The two—the master and radio operator of a vessel of Norwegian registry—were surprised in the radio cabin of their ship as it rode at anchor in the bay.

On a table was a code book with which the two were composing a message relating to the departure of a merchantman loaded with supplies for England. British officials attributed the sinking of six merchantmen to this pair Their trial was brief and the verdict inevitable.

Importation of Jamaican or British currency is barred because it can be purchased at from 20 to 25 per cent of its face value in New York. The official explanation is that the precaution is taken to guard against German dumping of British currency seized in conquered countries in an effort to shatter the world position of the pound sterling.

The strong preference for the American dollar thruout the West Indies was demonstrated to me at the customs dock when a shipmate, William Muschett, a young Jamaican returning home with gifts for his family after a year in Canada, offered Canadian money in payment of duty charges. These were rejected, but American dollars, pressed upon Muschett as a loan, were readily accepted.

Jamaica harbor, with American, British, and Canadian warships at anchor following maneuvers in the Caribbean several years ago.

"Do you mean you prefer George Washington to George the Sixth?" Muschett asked with some heat as he pointed to the engravings on the two sets of notes.

"No," the customs officer answered slowly, "but we like the American money better."

Before I left the island I had to go to the office of the press censor, an affable gentleman named Reginald Seaton, in order to secure permission to take out notes for these stories. With half closed eyes he listened to a lengthy reading of the notes.

At a nearby table four assistants were tackling a mountain of mail, and in adjoining rooms batteries of other assistants were digging into other heaps of letters. On the veranda of the postoffice women were opening packages of cigarets, destined for German prisoners of war, to guard against hidden communications.

Mr. Seaton gave my notes a clean bill of health. He also gave me a copy of the official censorship regulations which taboo the following classes of information:

"(A) All naval, military, or aircraft operations.

"(B) All matter which may be deemed enemy propaganda or calculated to adversely affect public morale.

"(C) All matters relating to strikes and social troubles whether inside or outside Jamaica."

The third is by far the most important to the West Indies. Strikes are a vital problem because the islands have been made desperately poor by the war and suffering would be great if labor took to walking out.

At the time I visited the base area, some 600 workers, gathered on the beach near Goat Island in response to a call for men to clear the island, refused to work at the piece work price of $20 an acre. The ax men demanded employment on a day labor basis which would bring higher wages.

While the men milled about, an officer of the labor department, which ordinarily acts as mediator between employer and employé, but is acting as employer's agent for development of the American bases, addressed the men. They remained firm, however. The next day the per acre clearing price was raised to $23 and the day labor price was set at 80 cents a day. Mention of this incident in my notes was passed by the censor.

Jamaicans as a whole welcome the advent of the United States to their back yard because base construction will bring sorely needed dollars and because they are practically without defense.

The reaction of Jamaicans to the American arrival was expressed editorially by Kingston's leading newspaper, the Daily Gleaner, as follows:

"What has been Jamaica's reaction to the lease? We can say without dread of any contradiction that it has been excellent; that all intelligent Jamaicans have grasped the fact that it represents the drawing more closely together of England and the United States, and that such a consummation is one which they, with other British subjects in all parts of the world, desire and approve."

The Daily Gleaner offered the explanation to its readers that the United States is giving the British West Indies protection in return for Great Britain's protection of "the United States and the rest of America in European waters, in African waters, and in Asiatic waters."

Only in one quarter did this correspondent encounter any dissent to the general enthusiasm extended toward the arriving Americans. The People's National party, known locally as the P. N. P., is an active minority against American base acquisition. The native organization, founded by Norman W. Manley, a Kingston lawyer, is against the deal ostensibly because the legislative council was not consulted on the leases.

Actually the members of the P. N. P. are afraid that the influx of Americans will result in the erection of race barriers. In Jamaica and the other West Indies, where the pure white is greatly outnumbered, the well-to-do black and various white quarterings enjoy a social equality unknown in America.

The interested native fears the advent of the Americans may upset this relationship, as the white fears that the advent of the Americans may upset island economy by bringing higher wages and shorter hours to the worker. Both are willing to run this risk in the hope that the base construction may lift the shadow of immediate bankruptcy.

What 20% More STOCKING WEAR Means to You!

By washing stockings the Dreft way after each wearing, you may increase their life as much as 20%. Over a year's time this means you may save yourself the purchase of about six pairs of stockings. In other words — "found" money for buying a new hat or a pair of shoes!

Dreft is different!

So different, its advantages can't be duplicated by any soap!

Trade Mark Reg. U.S. Pat. Off., Process and Product covered by one or more of the following patents: Nos. 1,968,793 to 7, inclusive; 1,963,431; 2,046,242.

Amazing NEW PATENTED SUDS Offers Washing Advantages Not Even the Finest Soap Flakes Can Claim!

Sing out the news! Dreft is a suds so different from any soap you ever used, it's actually been granted patents by the U. S. Government!

And Dreft's difference really means something when you wash your stockings in this amazing new suds—because Dreft gives you these important advantages that not even the finest soap flakes can claim:

1. SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS...the first suds to contain no alkali, whatever. Furthermore, Dreft suds are so wonderfully mild, they won't sting the way soapsuds do when accidentally splashed in your eye. So think of how gentle they must be on stockings!

2. SUDS THAT NEVER FORM "HARD-WATER SCUM"...not a trace of this clinging, dull film to hide colors! In your hard water, Dreft washing can leave stocking colors fresher and brighter than the finest soap flakes money can buy!

3. INSTANT COOL-WATER SUDS! In the right cool water for washing stockings, Dreft makes suds faster than any soap you ever used!

4. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER...actually 5 times more suds than any soap . . . to help you get stockings clean without unnecessary rubbing!

5. A PACKAGE LASTS TWICE AS LONG! Package for package, in hard water, Dreft goes twice as far . . . lasts twice as long as fine-fabric soap flakes! And that's real economy!

Try patented Dreft suds tonight for washing your stockings and see if you ever used a milder, safer suds! See if your silk stockings ever stayed fresher and more colorful! And for longer wear —wash your hosiery the Dreft way! Do them in Dreft after each wearing—instead of neglecting them. This may add as much as 20% to their wear—and thus save you the equal of about six pairs of stockings a year!

Ask your dealer for Dreft, in the smart green and black package! Procter & Gamble

WHISPERING SMITH

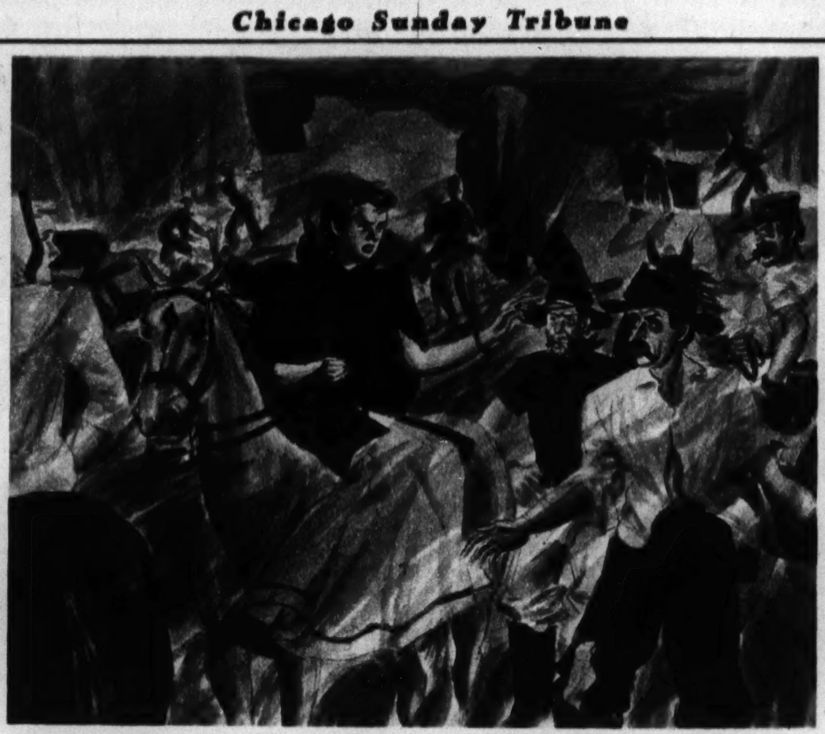
based on the novel by Frank Spearman.

ILLUSTRATED BY AUSTIN JEWELL

WHAT HAPPENED LAST WEEK Crawling Stone river is threatening the new railroad line being constructed by George McCloud, division boss, and the ranch owned by Dicksie and Lance Dunning. Murray Sinclair, embittered because McCloud fired him, and because he believes Whispering Smith, a friend of the road, is trying to win his estranged wife, Marion, schemes to use the flood to his own advantage.



1 At the Dunning ranch Lance and Sinclair drive their men in a vain attempt to halt the inroads of the river. Loath to leave Lance and fearful of having Whispering Smith there, Dicksie nevertheless agrees to ride with Marion for help.

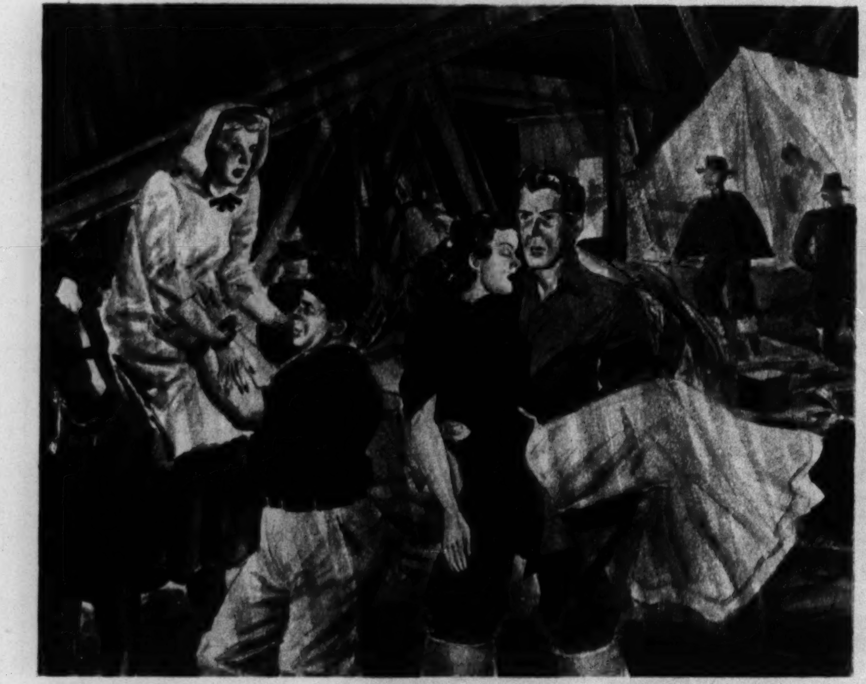
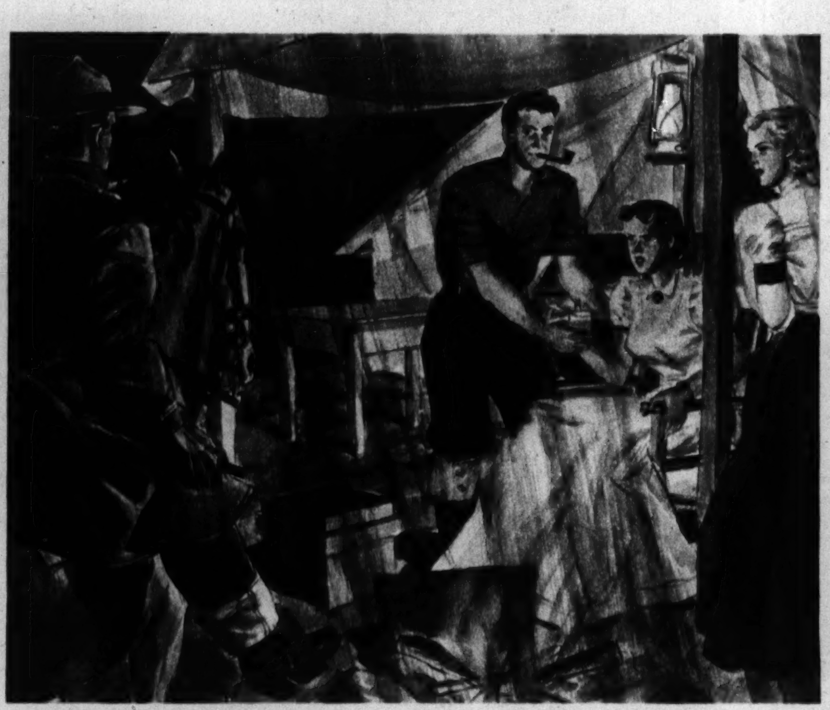
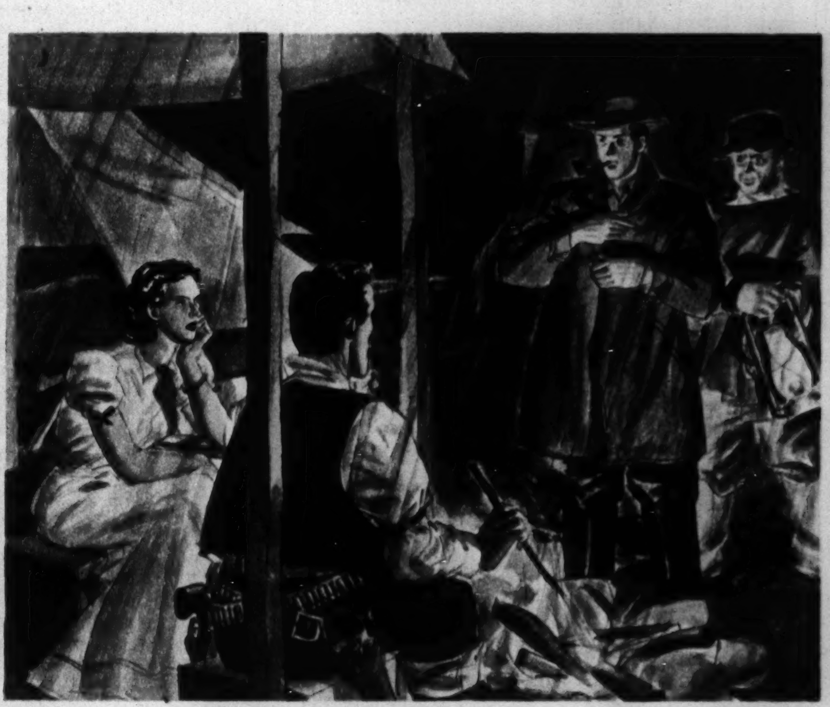
3 "Marion," cries Dicksie, "can we ever make it?" Unknown to them, a rider follows in the distance.



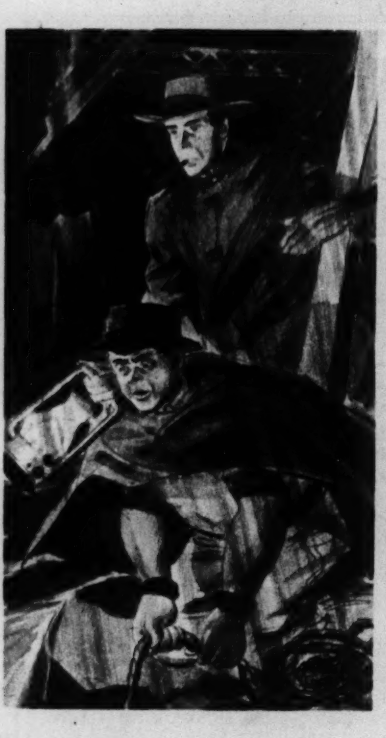
4 Reaching McCloud's camp, Dicksie falls exhausted into his arms. "George!" gasps Marion, "you'll have to send help. Lance and Murray can't hold that flood!" George reassures her, then carries Dicksie to the shelter of a tent.



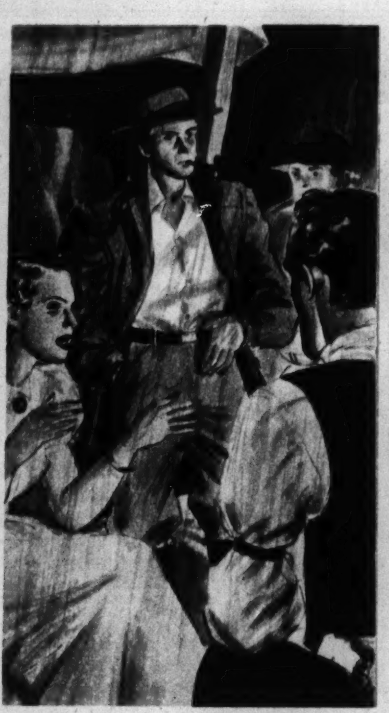
5 Hardly has the revived Dicksie begun to tell McCloud of the situation than the mysterious rider arrives. It is Whispering Smith. "Are you women all right?" he asks quietly. Then, looking intently at Marion, "There are other dangers besides the storm."



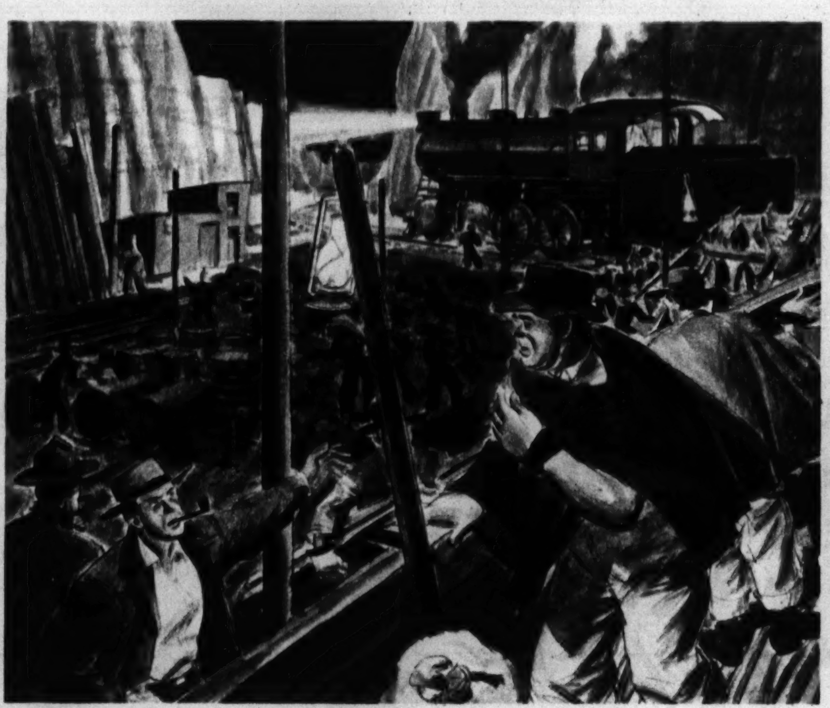
6 But that veiled reference to Sinclair's earlier threat against Marion is Smith's only allusion to the seriousness of the situation. To the women he is cheerful and banters with them about their own appearance after their hard ride.



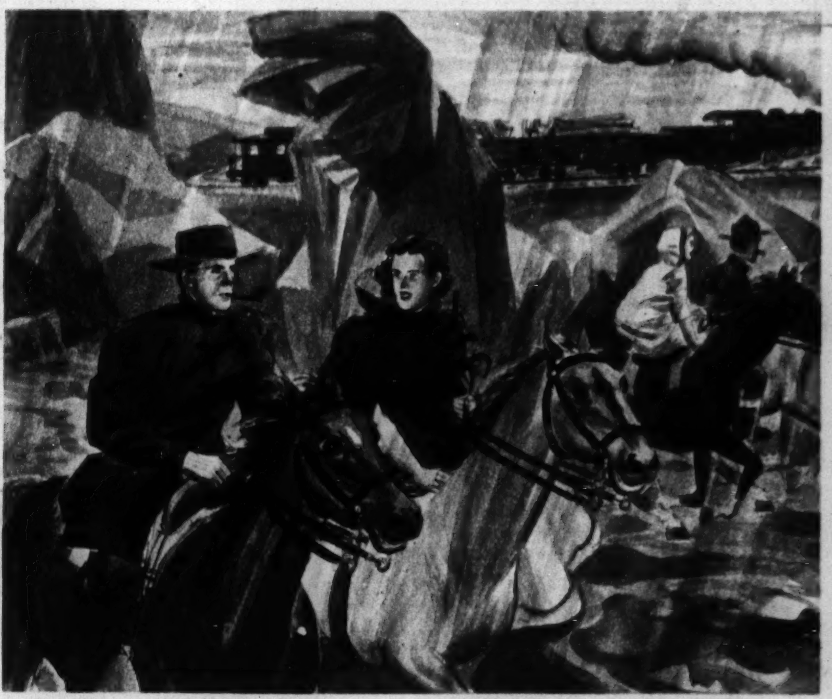
7 Behind that scene, however, stalks tragedy. McCloud finds the river has reached 35 feet.



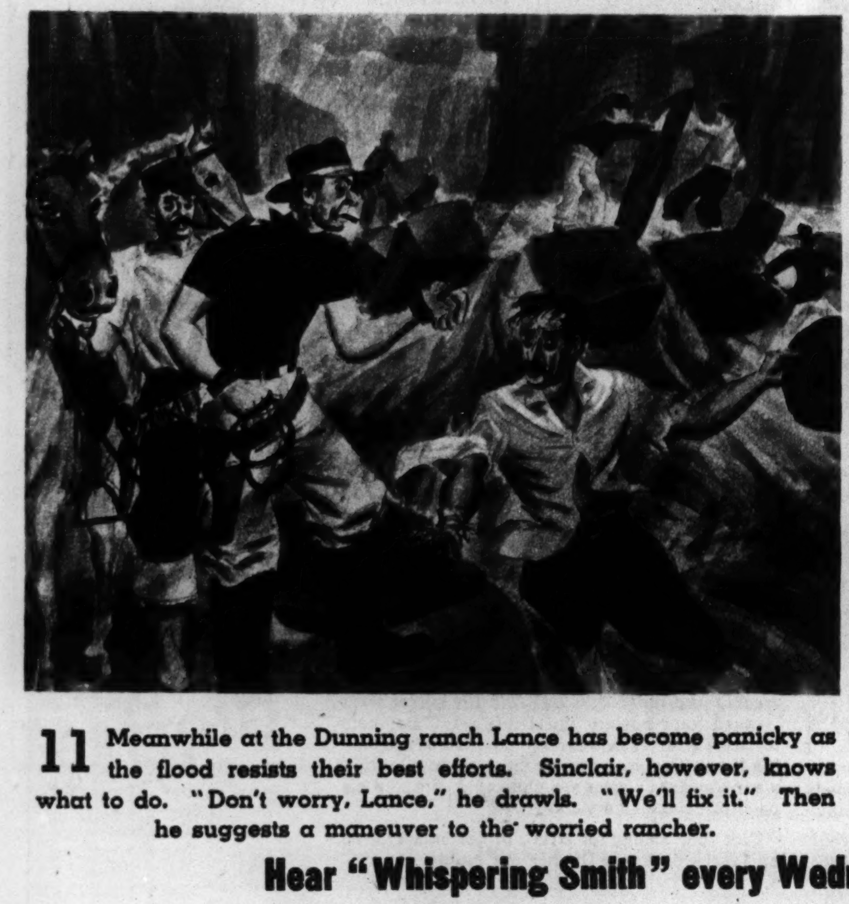
8 Facing Smith again, he says, "We've got to act. The water went up a foot while I was watching."



9 Whispering Smith does act. Following his direction, McCloud orders a rescue train made up. "Bill!" he shouts to an assistant, "load up equipment and take 100 men over to the Dunning ranch. Use the new spur, and make it fast!"



10 Smith, McCloud, and the two women start out for Dicksie's ranch. "Follow me thru the short cut," shouts Smith. "It's harder going, but quicker." Dicksie, loyal to Lance and Sinclair, finds her admiration for McCloud growing despite herself.



11 Meanwhile at the Dunning ranch Lance has become panicky as the flood resists their best efforts. Sinclair, however, knows what to do. "Don't worry, Lance," he drawls. "We'll fix it." Then he suggests a maneuver to the worried rancher.

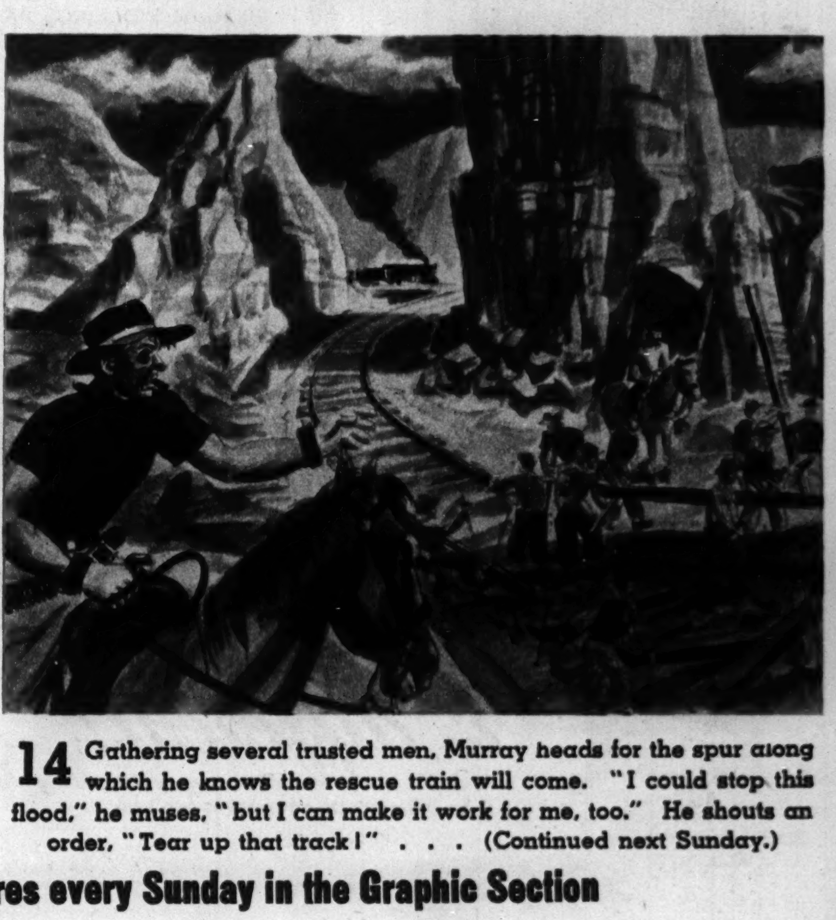
13 "When Lance's ranch goes he'll sell to me, and then I can stop that new spur they're running across it."



14 Gathering several trusted men, Murray heads for the spur along which he knows the rescue train will come. "I could stop this flood," he muses, "but I can make it work for me, too." He shouts an order, "Tear up that track!" . . . (Continued next Sunday.)

The Greeks Have the Last Word for Fashion—Especially Hairdo's

By ELEANOR NANGLE

TOO, TOO many puns have been made about the Greeks and their achievements, ancient and modern. God forbid that we should try to have the last word!

But isn't there something interesting, to the psychologist at least, in the current interest in things Grecian? It's more than the hysteria of the Bundler for Britain, who loves to read of what happens today in the dispatches from Athens. It's deeper, and it reflects that curious relationship between the pendulum swings of fashion and history. It sort of boils down to the gag of which comes first, the chicken or the egg.

Last October, for some occult reason, the people who could pick a trend mentioned the Grecian influence that was about to creep into fashion. Came the winter fashion shows, and there was vague talk of that "pure-browed" look. Comes spring, and the Grecian influence is so real you couldn't miss it! And LOOK at what has been happening in the news! You figure it out!

And while you're figuring, rest your eyes on important developments in hair fashions. Grecian, of course. And how lovely they are after the turbulent, slightly silly, and not too easy to wear fashions that came in with the coy hats!

When this Grecian fashion, spotted so intelligently by one of the great beauty specialists, really takes on—and there is every reason to expect that it will—we'll say good-by, at least for the "duration," to kittenishness, and relax in serenity. A serenity already reflected in the beautifully draped gowns, in the muted colors (you knew, didn't you, that the Greeks didn't restrict themselves to white?—they had wonderful sun-cooked blues and greens and purples, among others), and in these soft, sculptured hair fashions that emphasize the classic beauty of bone structure and the brow and what's behind it!

"Diana." For daytime she affects a scarf which twists gracefully about the throat and encircles the crown of her head, hair brushed into smooth rolls on either side.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have written a poem about a certain actress in Hollywood which I hope you will enjoy:

She has lovely brown hair and she's amazingly bright,
Deep-set brown eyes that shine in the light.
She sings and she dances most wonderfully well;
When she speaks her voice sounds like the toll of a bell.
She's pretty indeed, that I must confess.
Universal studio is her present address.
She'll be married soon, much to our delight,
To a certain young chap who seems very polite.
So now that this poem is almost thru,
It's Deanna Durbin I introduce to you.

Sincerely yours,
JUNE WEBER.

Editor's note: So happy to make your acquaintance, Miss Durbin—AND Miss Weber!

Dear Miss Tinée: A letter submitted by Mr. Sam Samaska recently appeared in your column. I was glad to see your editor's note at the bottom of his letter, but it seems unlikely that he would take it into consideration.

He wrote that any star with a wrong part is a ham, and he prefers his screen favorites sweet and smiling all the time. Does this seem at all practical?

This world of ours is a stage where we are all able to cry as well as laugh, be silent as well as talkative, or angry as well as good-natured. To be called a star an actor or actress must be able to play any rôle well, whether comedy or tragedy. L. OSWALD.

Editor's note: How about it, Sam?

Dear Miss Tinée: I'm a Robert Taylor fan. I've saved his pictures for about a year and have about 400 of them, including a snapshot and a personally autographed picture. I wonder if you would print a picture of him and give me a description and a list of pictures he's been in. This sounds like a rather big order, but I hope you will fill it for me. Thank you. ROSLYN MILLER.

ROBERT TAYLOR

Editor's note: If I were Mr. Taylor and saw this letter you'd have 401 pictures, and the last would be a honey! His real name is S. Arlington Brough, and he was born in Filley, Neb., Aug. 5, 1911. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 165 pounds, and has brown hair and blue eyes. Married to Barbara Stanwyck. Has appeared in "Times Square Lady," "Society Doctor," "Broadway Melody of 1936," "The Magnificent Obsession," "Small Town Girl," "The Gorgeous Hussy," "His Brother's Wife," "Camille," "Private Number," "Personal Property," "This Is My Affair," "A Yank at Oxford," "Three Comrades," "The Crowd Roars," "Stand Up and Fight," "Lucky Night," "Lady of the Tropics," "Remember?", "Waterloo Bridge," "Escape," and "Flight Command."

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please print Gloria Jean's address? I thank you. Sincerely,
THOMAS K., Toledo, O.

Case of the Woman Scorned

● This is another in a series of revelations of how insurance investigators fight fraud. The stories are based on fact—only the characters are fictitious.

By LLOYD WENDT

"OH, but she's an important customer I'm sure," said Miss Mays acridly. "I think you'll want to talk to her yourself. She asked for Mr. N., but when I told her he wasn't in, she insisted on seeing the man in charge."

Mr. D. tossed aside his papers. "Very well, I'll see her. She wants something wholesale, no doubt, and intends to spend the entire day arguing about it. I can't understand . . ."

Mr. D. stopped short. Miss Mays had opened his office door, revealing a blonde young woman in the corridor. She was richly and trimly dressed, but what particularly transfixed Mr. D. was her angry blue eyes, trained full upon him. At the moment they were fairly flashing with rage. He hastened out and bowed low.

"I'm sorry Mr. N. isn't in," he said, "but if there is anything I can do. . . ."

The young woman surveyed him hostilely and then her face softened. "I'm sure you can help me," she said and smiled.

Mr. D. bowed a path to his office and opened the door with a flourish. Inside she seated herself comfortably and produced a small package from her purse. "It isn't much," she said, quite affable now. "I had spoken to Mr. N. about having some pearls restrung. Could you . . . ?"

"Certainly," said Mr. D. "We'll be very happy to do it. Being wholesalers, we have so many persons come in, you know . . . persons who have no business. . . ."

"I know. I'm afraid I was rude to your secretary. But then, she was rude to me. My, how interesting your work must be! So many beautiful things about you. I have always adored gems. Do you mind if I look about on my way out?"

"Of course not! I'll show you myself. Now where will you want the pearls delivered, Miss . . ."

She hastily supplied a name. "Never mind delivering them," she said. "I'll just call for them."

"Splendid!" said D. with enthusiasm. "But perhaps you had better leave a card," he added in confusion. "Just to prevent any slipup, you know."

She hesitated, then searched her purse. "I'm afraid I have none with me. But here!" She found a little pad of paper and a tiny silver pencil. She wrote out an address and gave it to Mr. D.: Miss Cleo Le C., —— Lake Shore drive.

The telephone rang. Mr. D. excused himself and answered it.

"It's a long distance call I must take," he said. "Will you excuse me just a moment?"

"I'll look around," said Miss Le C. "You'll find me out there among your loveliest jewels." She smiled devastatingly and Mr. D. grinned. They were getting on. He returned to the telephone.

Miss Le C. carefully closed the office door as she departed. She walked quickly down the corridor. The company dealt extensively in cheap jewelry, but she paid no attention to the stacks of this kind of merchandise on the shelves and tables lining the room. She made directly for the big, cagelike "valuable room" separated from the rest of the loft by heavy wire netting. Old Mr. Smith, on duty in the valuable room during the lunch period, saw her come from Mr. D.'s office, and made no objection as she entered.

"N. told her he was going out of town that night on a selling trip and wanted her to go along." (Tribune Studio photos.)

"Mr. D. told me to look about," the young woman said. "He said he wanted to see you for a moment."

Mr. Smith, favoring his rheumatism, hobbled off to the office. When he and D. appeared, the young woman was gone. Gone also, they discovered, were two diamond and sapphire rings, worth $3,000 each, which had been lying in an open case in the valuable room.

D. hurriedly called the insurance company, and in a few moments a detective from the insurance adjuster's was in his office. D. told him the entire story.

"Let's see those pearls," suggested the agent.

They opened the package and found inside a necklace of imitation pearls, worth perhaps $20. "And where is her note?" asked the agent.

Mr. D. provided it. "Fake name and address without a doubt," said the agent, "but the paper may be traced. Hey, look here! Give me your glass, will you?"

He examined the paper under a reading glass. Then he crushed a bit of pencil lead to powder, sprinkled it over the paper, and blew it off. Beneath the woman's writing was a faint trace of letters brought out by the graphite.

"She's written some one else a note," said the agent. "The pencil impression has gone thru to this sheet. Look, here's a number . . . C-739. It might be a room number. There are only two hotels in town using that kind of alphabetical prefixes to their room numbers. That gives us something to start on. I'll call you soon."

"I got a policeman," said the agent, telling the story, "and we visited the hotels. Our first visit yielded nothing. At the second hotel we found the house detective and described the girl. He was sure no one like her lived in his hotel. But I was sure we were on the right track.

"'Let us take a look at C-739,' I urged.

"'C-739?' he answered. 'Say, there are two girls in that room. But they've been here a long time. I'm sure they're perfectly all right. We can't disturb them.'

"'I want to talk to them,' I said. He agreed to go with us.

"We knocked at the door and then walked in. I heard a kind of 'swish' as one of the girls dashed for the bathroom. In bed was another young woman. I'm telling you, she was the most beautiful blonde I ever saw. The girl was pretty mad and ordered us out. While the house detective was apologizing, I slipped her purse off the dressing table. Inside, sure enough, were the two rings.

"The young woman readily admitted she had taken them. She told us her story.

"She and her roommate made their living frequenting bars. They were both rather refined for the type, and so the detective didn't want to have them in trouble. Our girl had met Mr. N., a partner with D. in the wholesale jewelry company, and they became friendly.

"The day before, a Sunday, N. had called her at the hotel and asked her to come to his office. She went over. N. told her he was going out of town that night on a selling trip and wanted her to go along.

"She refused. Then N. made other proposals. On his desk was a tray containing two guard rings . . . little band rings studded with diamond chips. Together they were worth about $150. She told N. she'd stay if he would give her the rings.

"N. agreed, and the young woman remained for the afternoon. But when she prepared to leave, N. refused to give her the rings. There was a row, and the girl swore to get even with him.

"The next day she wrapped up the pearls and went to N.'s office. She knew he was out, but she intended to get into his office and take the rings, to which she thought she was entitled.

"She didn't find them, however, and decided to attack the valuable room. Once there she grabbed the first rings she saw and it happened they were among the most expensive in the place.

"I went to Mr. D. and told him what happened and returned the rings.

"He cursed his partner and told me the fellow had been in trouble with women before.

"'I want to withdraw the claim,' he said. 'I'll pay you for the trouble you've had. I'm going to get N. out of this business as quickly as I can. Will you just forget about the whole thing?'

"We forgot about it," continued the agent. "It's just one of the little things that happen in our business. Making a report would have hurt D. more than any one else, and he was innocent. Yet, I have no doubt that if we had not found the girl, Mr. N., on his return, knowing the truth of the matter, would nevertheless have done everything possible to collect the claim."

Hundreds of persons every year attempt to defraud insurance companies by making claims for fake insurance losses. They rarely succeed, for they are matching their wits with the experienced detectives employed by insurance adjusters. Most persons attempting such plots are really respectable, but are driven to desperate acts by financial difficulties.

The insurance detectives, for this reason, are usually more interested in effecting the withdrawal of a claim than in prosecuting the guilty persons. Many cases are settled without official reports or publicity, and the details become a professional secret. Some of these secrets have been revealed for the purpose of this series, but the agents have withheld all names.

"Our job is to protect the interests of our clients," the agents explained.

The insurance detectives do not devote their entire time to supposedly fraudulent claims. Often the investigations help to facilitate the payment of a legitimate claim. "An insurance company is primarily interested in protecting its client," the agent repeated. "If the claim is proper, the company wants to pay."

"The gaming house sent him a good amount of business."

A few years ago the wife of a prominent Chicagoan was traveling in Europe. He was a respectable man, and one evening he met a likewise respectable young woman, and they went for a drive. They parked for a time in an area known as "lovers' lane." While there the man was robbed of his diamond ring, worth $2,500, his watch, and a small amount of currency.

He called the insurance company and an agent from the office of the adjuster visited him.

"I had a $2,800 loss by this robbery," said the victim. "It is a genuine loss, but I can't sue you if you don't want to pay the claim. It was foolish of me to go for that drive. Nothing really wrong occurred, but I couldn't possibly stand publicity. I'd rather take the loss than cause my wife humiliation or injure the girl and myself."

The agent asked for the name of the young woman, talked with her, and became convinced that the robbery was genuine.

He described the circumstances to the insurance company. "You don't have to pay this claim," he said. "Nothing will ever be done about it. But I think it is a legitimate claim."

The claim was paid in full.

Once the hard pressed operator of a suburban currency exchange decided to defraud an insurance company when a genuine holdup provided him with what seemed to be an excellent opportunity.

Mr. T. was an ingenious operator, for he managed to go into the currency exchange business almost without funds. He had a few hundred dollars when he put up his sign, next door to a protected gambling house. He sold money orders in addition to cashing checks, and for the first few days he retained the money received for the money orders and used it to cash the checks. Since he always had two or three days of grace before the money orders would clear, and since he mostly cashed pay roll checks from a large manufacturing establishment nearby, he was fairly safe. The gaming house sent him a good amount of business, and he enjoyed close connections with the police as a result.

In time Mr. T. developed a growing business. But one day he was warned that an auditor was coming, and he was $2,000 short in his accounts. He borrowed the money from a man in an office next door, took this man's $2,000 check to another currency exchange, and then covered his shortage when the auditor arrived. Then he took the $2,000 back and recovered the check, but he didn't return it to his friend.

A few days later T.'s place was robbed. The bandits got only a few hundred dollars, missing, among other things, the $2,000 check.

T. thought it was a fine time to show a large loss and collect from the insurance company.

He reported $6,400 stolen, cashed his $2,000 check, and made out a new set of books. These showed that he had lost not only the $2,000 received in the loan but that he had also borrowed $2,000 cash from his wife and his mother and lost that, too.

The insurance detectives went over the books. Then they investigated T.'s wife and mother and found that neither of them had ever possessed $2,000 to lend. They learned that T. had cashed the check from his friend after the time of the robbery.

Confronted with the facts, T. admitted the fraud. But so close were his connections with the police the agents found themselves thwarted in attempting a criminal prosecution. They finally were content to force T. out of business. They had protected their client. If T. had reported his legitimate loss he would have received payment. But by attempting fraud he received nothing and was closed up in addition.

"No one need fear an investigation by the adjuster if he has a legitimate claim," the agents repeated. "It's good business for a company to pay, willingly and gladly, in such cases. But any one contemplating fraud ought to think twice. After all, we spent our lives in this business, and the amateur working against us seldom has a chance."

Match Your Handwriting with the Movie Stars'

By SHIRLEY SPENCER

(Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.)

THERE IS one pen stroke which probably reveals more about a writer than any other stroke. That is the "t" crossing. There are literally hundreds of ways of crossing a "t," and each one has a meaning which is very definite. If you saw nothing else in the writing but that you could tell something about the writer. Gene Lockhardt is one of those whose "t" bars are outstanding.

Mr. Lockhardt crosses the stem of his "t" with a heavy, bold stroke which slants downward, sometimes carrying a hook at the beginning and sometimes at the end of the stroke. The fact that the strokes are heavier than the pressure used in the rest of the writing indicates that he has a strong will and is aggressive and dominating.

Now note that the strokes slant downward and are made with force and speed. Here we have a combative nature which will fight, argue, and obstinately refuse to back down. Such writers make excellent courtroom lawyers, because they will pick up a challenge and defend and protect their stand with vigor. This is one of the things which hold true no matter what else you find in the writing.

Mr. Lockhardt's script is angular, showing highly developed intelligence, and it is this intelligence which guides the insistent, possessive, and confident will. The tall capitals, combined with the upward slant to his writing signature, show that he is ambitious, proud, and very optimistic.

O, yes, those hooks are called "tenacity" hooks—and you've guessed it, they indicate a nature that digs in and holds on—tenaciously!

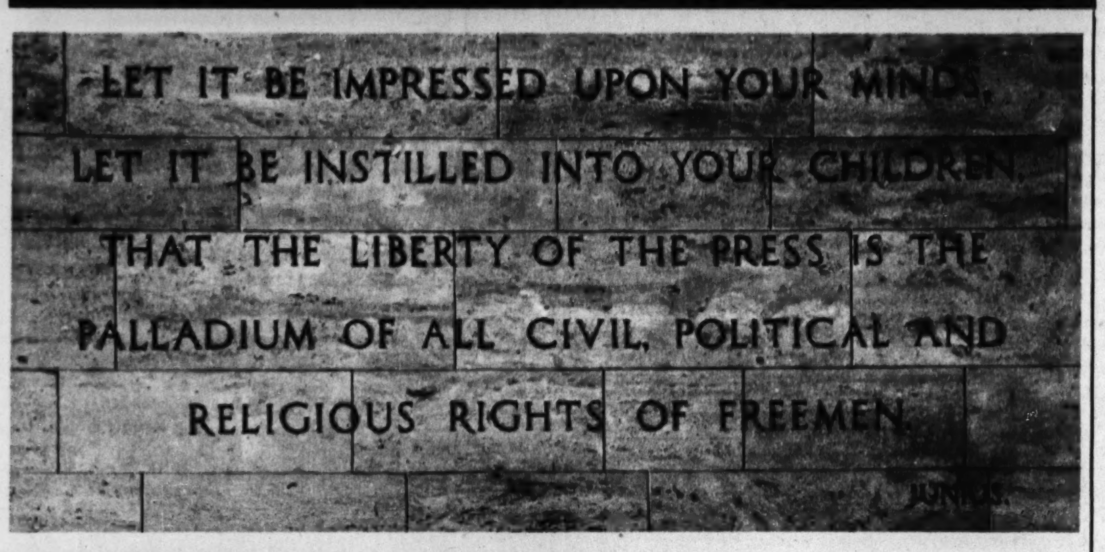
THE HALL OF INSCRIPTIONS IN TRIBUNE TOWER



LET IT BE IMPRESSED UPON YOUR MINDS,
LET IT BE INSTILLED INTO YOUR CHILDREN,
THAT THE LIBERTY OF THE PRESS IS THE PALLADIUM OF ALL CIVIL, POLITICAL AND RELIGIOUS RIGHTS OF FREEMEN.
JUNIUS.

CONTAINED in the above reproduction of an inscription on a wall of the Hall of Inscriptions in Tribune Tower is a true evaluation of the freedom of the press as a safeguard of liberty. The quotation, which is one of a score to be found in the hall, is from the famous "Letters of Junius," which were published from time to time in the London Public Advertiser during the period between Jan. 21, 1769, and Jan. 21, 1772.

The authorship of these letters has been attributed to as many as 40 different persons, but the weight of evidence makes it fairly certain that they were written by Sir Philip Francis, politician and pamphleteer. The object of the letters was to discredit the ministry of Augustus Henry Fitzroy, third, duke of Grafton, who became prime minister in October, 1768. It was mainly because of the attacks upon him in the letters that Grafton resigned from office in January, 1770.

Sir Philip Francis was born in Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 22, 1740, and educated at St. Paul's school, London. At an early age he developed a flair for writing on controversial subjects. His chief title to fame as a writer, however, is based upon his commonly accepted authorship of the "Letters of Junius."

In 1774 Francis went to India as a member of the supreme council of Bengal. There he soon aroused the enmity of Warren Hastings, the governor general, with whom in 1780 he fought a duel and was badly wounded. Francis returned to England in 1781, where he continued his quarrel with the governor general of India. He was greatly disappointed in 1795 when the house of lords acquitted Hastings after a seven years' trial on the charge of "high crimes and misdemeanors."

Sir Philip Francis died Dec. 23, 1818.

Another inscription from the Hall of Inscriptions will be reproduced and discussed in an early issue.

Want Some Sea Food?

Crabmeat Is Now Home Grown

By MARY MEADE

CRABMEAT has joined the lengthening list of home-produced and home-canned foods which are taking the place of edibles formerly imported. American crabmeat isn't pinky like the Japanese kind, and it has a more delicate flavor. Furthermore, it doesn't require picking over to remove tough particles.

CRABMEAT A LA NEWBURG

(Serves four or more)

3 tablespoons butter
1 pound or 1 large can crabmeat
Salt, paprika
½ cup California sherry wine
2 egg yolks
½ cup cream

Melt butter in a large saucepan. Add flaked crabmeat. Season with salt and paprika and sauté lightly for about five minutes. Add wine and let simmer five minutes. Just before serving add egg yolks beaten with cream and cook, stirring gently until thickened. Do not let mixture boil. Serve on toast.

MARYLAND DEVILED CRAB

(Serves four)

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup light cream
1 egg yolk
1 6½-ounce can crabmeat
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains red pepper
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
½ tablespoon finely chopped pimiento
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Melt butter over direct heat. Blend in flour. Add cream gradually, stirring constantly. Cook three to five minutes over very low heat, stirring constantly. Add slightly beaten egg yolk, crabmeat, and seasonings. Cook a minute longer. Stir in onion, lemon juice, green pepper, and pimiento. Pour into four thin glass custard cups (heat resistant), six-ounce size. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees about 25 minutes, or until brown.

There's no lack of variety in fresh and frozen fish this season. If there are two meatless days a week in your household (perhaps even if there isn't one), try one of the crabmeat dishes on one of them and baked, broiled, or fried fresh or frozen fish on the other. Smelts, pike, perch, and whitefish are good fresh fish choices. Frozen fillets of flounder are prepared with a minimum of trouble.

Thaw them first, then separate the fillets and spread with softened butter. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and paprika, place on a well greased broiler rack, and broil from 12 to 18 minutes, turning once so that both sides brown. A package of frozen fillets will serve two or three.

A simple sauce for broiled fillets or for any baked or broiled fish consists of melted butter seasoned with lemon juice and minced parsley.

Perfect Poems

This poem, another in the series being printed each Sunday in the Graphic Section, is from "Fifty Perfect Poems," selected and edited by Charles A. Dana and Rossiter Johnson.

Ode on a Grecian Urn

By John Keats

Thou still unravished bride of Quietness!
  Thou foster-child of Silence and slow Time!
Sylvan historian, who canst thus express
  A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme:
What leaf-fringed legend haunts about thy shape
  Of deities or mortals, or of both,
    In Tempe or the dales of Arcady?
  What men or gods are these? What maidens loath?
What mad pursuit? What struggle to escape?
    What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy?

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
  Are sweeter; therefore, ye soft pipes, play on;
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endeared,
  Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone:
Fair youth beneath the trees, thou canst not leave
    Thy song, nor ever can those trees be bare;
  Bold lover, never, never canst thou kiss,
  She cannot fade, tho thou hast not thy bliss;
    Forever wilt thou love, and she be fair!

Ah, happy, happy boughs! that cannot shed
  Your leaves, nor ever bid the spring adieu;
And, happy melodist, unwearièd,
  Forever piping songs forever new;
More happy love! more happy, happy love!
  Forever warm and still to be enjoyed,
    Forever panting and forever young;
All breathing human passion far above,
  That leaves a heart high-sorrowful and cloyed,
    A burning forehead, and a parching tongue.

Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
  To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
  And all her silken flanks with garlands dressed?
What little town by river or seashore,
  Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
    Is emptied of its folk, this pious morn?
And, little town, thy streets forevermore
  Will silent be; and not a soul to tell
    Why thou art desolate, can e'er return.

O Attic shape! fair attitude! with brede
  Of marble men and maidens overwrought,
With forest branches and the trodden weed;
  Thou, silent form! dost tease us out of thought
As doth eternity: Cold pastoral!
  When old age shall this generation waste,
    Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
  "Beauty is truth, truth beauty,"—that is all
    Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

NEW SHORT-CUT TO COFFEE ENJOYMENT

THIS STREAMLINED IDEA IS A REAL WORK-SAVER WHEN I WANT A CUP OF COFFEE

"Often when I'm alone, I want a cup of coffee. But do you think I'd bother with a lot of old-fashioned fuss and muss? Not me! I'm modern. I use Nescafé. And making Nescafé is almost as easy as wishing for a good cup of coffee. I simply put Nescafé in a cup and add hot water. It's ready—just like that! Think of it—no coffee pot to get ready, or to wash afterward. No grounds to clean up. Nothing to do but rinse out a cup. How's the flavor? You'll agree with me—it's marvelous! Just try it."

Something new'n delicious!
ROSY RHUBARB PIE

3⅓ cups cut rhubarb
1 cup strawberry jam
2 tablespoons tapioca

Mix rhubarb, jam and tapioca. Put into 9" pie plate lined with the following Crisco pastry—

CRISCO PASTRY—TENDER AND FLAKY!

2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup Crisco
3 to 5 tablespoons water

Sift flour with salt. Cut in Crisco. (New Crisco blends like magic! . . . makes pie crust so tender!) When mixture looks mealy, stir in water, using as little as possible. Divide dough. Roll out lower crust and line pie plate; let pastry hang over edge about ½ inch. Fill with rhubarb mixture. Roll out top crust. (While a whole crust is suitable, a criss-cross top lets the rosy fruit show through.) Arrange narrow strips of pastry criss-cross fashion across pie. Fold lower crust pastry up over ends of strips and flute edge. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) for 35 minutes.

FLAKIER PASTRY!
"I USED MY EVERYDAY RECIPE FOR PIE—WHEN I MADE THE CRISCO TEST—BUT IT TURNED OUT MUCH FLAKIER THAN WITH MY USUAL SHORTENING."
Mrs. Alma Olsen, San José, Calif.

So easy to get tender, flakier pastry with "Sure-Mix" Crisco! It's different!

Is your pie the flaky kind that melts in your mouth almost before you bite through it? Or is it "just pie"? Well, don't be discouraged . . .

There's grand news for you in the experience of hundreds of housewives who discovered how the change of one ingredient gave them tender, flakier pies.

These housewives, in 20 cities from Coast to Coast, were using every kind of shortening you can think of; independent investigators stopped at their homes—gave them cans of New "Sure-Mix" Crisco—and asked them to make pies with this Crisco and their regular shortenings—and compare.

New Crisco wins 4 to 1 . . .

When these housewives told us which shortening they liked best, "Sure-Mix" Crisco pies won their vote by 4 to 1 over all other shortenings combined! Yes—they said Crisco pies were "tender and flakier" . . . they "tasted better." And the home folks heartily agreed.

And Crisco cakes got the same 4-to-1 vote. "They're lighter—smoother-textured—more delicious!" women said, "and Crisco-fried foods are crisp—not greasy—better-tasting."

Why Crisco is different . . .

No wonder "Sure-Mix" Crisco won this great big preference. A patented discovery makes this pure all-vegetable shortening act differently from any home shortening we know of.

Change to New "Sure-Mix" Crisco for your baking and frying. It's made to make everything taste better. Just watch your family "sit up and take notice"!

SUCH CRISP, DIGESTIBLE FRIED FOODS!
"WITH NEW CRISCO MY FRENCH-FRIES WERE AN EVEN GOLDEN-BROWN. MY DOUGHNUTS WERE LIGHT—NOT GREASY. MY FAMILY JUST LOVED 'EM!"
Mrs. Hugh Burnett, Cleveland, Ohio

GRAPHIC LABORATORY OF POPULAR SCIENCE

Utilizing a Newsprint Waste Product to Facilitate Growing of Yeast

MODERN science has hit upon an ingenious way of linking together, for the benefit of both, the manufacture of paper and the business of growing yeast commercially. Liquid which has served its purpose in the paper mill is employed as food for the growing yeast. Thus a waste product is converted into a useful one. The paper mill obtains revenue from that for which it formerly could find no use, and the yeast plant obtains a desirable product from a source hitherto untapped.

This ingenious development in yeast culture already is proving successful in no small way. The newsprint paper mill of the Ontario Paper company, Ltd., of Thorold, Ont., a subsidiary of The Chicago Tribune, is supplying a yeast company's plant with waste liquid in which to grow yeast.

The finer grades of paper pulp are made by cooking wood chips under high temperature and high pressure conditions in a chemical solution which reacts with and dissolves the encrusting or binding materials that hold the paper-making fibers together. The fibers themselves are not dissolved, but are drained and washed free of the liquid in which they have been cooked.

The fibers find their proper use in paper making, and the drained liquid from the sulphite or acid cooking process, heretofore considered a waste, is now put to a profitable use in yeast growing thru a process developed in Finland by a man named Gustav Heijkenskjold.

Yeast is a growing organism, and not a manufactured product. The term itself is applied to a group of plants, many of which exhibit a marked ability to change sugar into alcohol and carbon dioxide. This change is called fermentation. The characteristics of the group of plants known as yeast, which include hundreds of different species, are quite restricted. To the layman the term suggests the little cakes of yeast that are available everywhere in food stores and shops. The ability of certain yeasts to form carbon dioxide from sugar has caused some of them to be used as leavening for bread. For centuries other species of yeast have been used in the making of alcohol, wine, beer, and the like. Innumerable are the modern uses for yeast, which multiplies rapidly when conditions are favorable.

These favorable conditions are not unlike those that apply to other living things. They embrace good, substantial food, and plenty of it, the removal of waste products from the immediate vicinity of the living things, and the protection of life from its natural enemies.

Sulphite liquid used in the paper mill contains yeast food in the form of fermentable sugars, some of which are dissolved from the wood and some of which are formed during the cooking process. All trees contain sugars. A well known example is the maple tree, from the sap of which sugar and sirup is made.

Yeast is nourished on only certain of the sugars present in the wood — the fermentable sugars—but the other sugars do no harm to it. The latter, with other wood residues, simply are not used as food by the yeast.

After the waste liquid, which is strongly acid, is neutralized by the introduction of lime, it contains slightly more than 1½ per cent of fermentable sugars. This may appear to be a small amount, yet in the liquid from a mill making 100 tons of sulphite pulp a day—not an exceptionally large mill—can be found more than 11 tons of fermentable sugar. Eleven tons obviously is a great amount of yeast food. The waste liquid can be used generously to assure a lush growth of yeast. The food for the yeast is completed by the addition of ammonium salts and phosphates to supply nitrogen and phosphorus.

Principal enemies of this yeast that is grown for commercial purposes are the so-called wild yeasts, fungi, and molds. In growing yeast constant precautions must be taken to prevent infection by the objectionable organisms. Waste sulphite liquid is an ideal medium in which to grow yeast, since it has been cooked for hours under high temperatures and high compression and therefore is thoroly sterile.

The method used to remove the waste products of the yeast life, which are principally alcohol and carbon dioxide, consists of a continuous and vigorous aeration of the liquid in which the yeast is feeding. This aeration also is of advantage because it supplies additional oxygen which the yeast requires for existence. The sulphite liquid in which the yeast grows, like the yeast itself, is chemically thirsty for oxygen, and the aeration takes care of this need, supplying oxygen for the liquid as it does for the yeast.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

This general view of a judging ring was made at the International Kennel club dog show when the working dog group was being judged.

Shows Help Improve Breeds

OF ALL the canine events that are held each year from coast to coast, bench shows are the most spectacular and in some respects the most entertaining and educational for the average dog owner. They give all of us an opportunity to see not only the finest specimens from outstanding kennels but also many rare and unusual breeds.

We have believed for many years that if the average dog owner would attend at least one or two dog shows every year, carefully inspect the breeds in which he is interested, inquire of breeders and owners at the show about breed traits and the general care of his dog, he would go home better prepared to enjoy his own pet and help it to live a longer life.

Last year there were 335 shows held in the United States, nine more than in 1939. The great Morris and Essex one-day show, with 3,462 dogs benched, was the number one event. The Westminster Kennel club show held in New York City was second in number of dogs entered. Chicago, which is holding its annual all-breed show this weekend, was fourth last year with a total of 1,297 dogs. Detroit, a doggy town which likes a dog show and stages a good one every year, was sixth with 1,133, a distinct gain over its 1939 show. Cleveland, which also stages an outstanding bench show, went in for round numbers in 1940 with an even 1,000 canines in its event. This put Cleveland in number seven position.

Altho the average dog owner may not realize it, the fact that cities and towns all over the United States hold dog shows has a definite relationship to the quality of pets which he may obtain. A dog show provides competition, and this competition between breeders accounts for the improved quality and health of pet dogs in this way: A great majority of the good pet dogs which may be bought in any section of the country are the products of reliable kennels or individual breeders who exhibit in shows. With many of these kennels it's a business which includes selling dogs, boarding dogs, and in many cases grooming and handling dogs for others. Individual breeders who raise dogs and show them usually do it as a hobby and sell puppies to help defray the expenses of kenneling, feeding, and caring for three to 40 or more dogs.

A kennel operator will pick out just a few of the most promising puppies raised each year in the hope that they will develop into outstanding show winners. The other puppies, the result of breeding the finest blood lines, commonly are sold as companion dogs at a very reasonable price.

If a dog show visitor will leave the aisles where all the dogs are benched and get behind the scenes he'll see some interesting things and more than likely will pick up some valuable tips on dog care. For example, we urge visitors to look at their favorite breeds, inspect the rare and unusual breeds, watch the obedience tests, trained dogs, and other similar features, but by all means spend at least 20 to 30 minutes around the professional handlers and their workboxes. What these handlers do to make dogs look their best is to us one of the most fascinating features of a big show. The way the white dogs are cleaned, brushed, and chalked, how the terriers are groomed to make their wiry coats lie down smoothly, the way the poodles stretch out while the handler gives them a final careful brushing, the last-minute touches given to the long coats of the collies—these and many other interesting grooming operations are going on at the dog show.

Screens Add to Effect of Print

INTERESTING and unusual effects can be created from almost any negative by using a so-called texture screen when making the print. Most photographs that look like etchings or like prints on canvas, silk, or a number of other materials are printed with the aid of such screens.

Photographs printed in combination with texture screens make it appear as if the printing paper itself had the texture shown. If you like texture effects on your prints, the screens will save you money, especially if you decide to make them yourself instead of buying them.

One of the simplest and most effective aids is the texture screen. It consists of a transparent film which carries the image of such textures as canvas, etching strokes, regular or irregular patterns of lines and dots. You use this film as you would any ordinary negative to transfer the pattern it contains onto your printing paper.

If you prefer soft, pictorial effects to straight record shots, one way of getting them is by printing your negative thru a so-called texture screen.

The most generally used method for doing this is to print your picture and the texture image simultaneously. You place the texture screen directly on the printing paper and print your negative thru the screen, exposing negative and screen at the same time.

If you are making contact prints, place first the negative in the printing frame, then the texture screen, and finally the paper. The emulsion side of the negative and the texture screen should be turned toward the emulsion side of the paper. If you are making enlargements, put the texture screen directly on the paper, and, to insure good contact, place a sheet of glass on top. Then insert your negative in the enlarger and print in the same manner as usual, except that you will have to give much longer exposures.

Naturally the screen has to cover your entire paper. And if you make enlargements you need a large screen. In the sizes 8x10 and 11x14 they cost several dollars. Therefore if you want to have a variety of screens, and if you want to save, you can prepare them yourself, even tho the results will be dubious unless you use utmost care.

As patterns for texture screens you can take any kind of cloth. You can also use rough-textured photographic or other papers, lighting them from the side to bring out the texture. Or, finally, you can draw patterns with black ink on white paper. These subjects are then photographed, and if your negative is big enough you can use it as a texture screen. If it is not you will have to make an enlargement of the required size on film. This will give you a positive image from which you can prepare a negative by making a contact print on another sheet of film, thus obtaining your screen.

It is also possible to put your negative and a texture screen of the same size simultaneously in the negative carrier of the enlarger and make a projection print of both. But in a case like this the texture negative will have to show a very small image, otherwise the finest silk will appear like burlap by the time you have enlarged the texture.

The pictorial appearance of photographs printed thru a screen is caused by two things. One is a certain amount of diffusion created by the material of which the screen consists. The other is the pattern of the screen itself. By superimposing this pattern on your picture you break up the image with hundreds of minute lines and shadows, giving it softness and changing its general appearance.

New Equipment

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

229 If you have trouble finding space for darkroom work, a new gadget may solve your problem. It's a collapsible combination of enlarger, contact printer, safelight, and work table. You can set it up in two minutes, attach it to a closet door, store it in less than one cubic foot of space.

231 One of the least expensive focusing spotlights sells for $3.50. It throws a concentrated beam to various distances, has a ventilated lamphouse, plastic handle, asbestos cord. The spot can be taken from the stand, used on a tripod, while the stand itself can be utilized for the camera in table-top photography.

232 A new 4x5 view camera made of hardwood and chromium has rising, falling, and tilting front and back, a swinging front, 20-inch bellows extension. It weighs 4½ pounds and costs $32.50 without lens. Reducing backs in 2¼x3¼ or 3¼x4¼ size cost $4.50.

Lie Detector Talks!

blood pressure. Two pens traced the course of Garcia's involuntary reaction. When he lied, a restriction of respiration was indicated by a series of low loops in the respiratory chart. At the same time the path of the blood pressure chart jumped from normal.

Garcia was tried and convicted. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder.

Attempts to detect liars by special methods date back to early times. According to a brochure on the history of lie detection, by Paul V. Trovillo, forensic psychologist at the Chicago police crime laboratory, Erasistratus, celebrated Greek physician (300-250 B. C.), discovered the love of Antiochus for his stepmother, Stratonice, wife of his father, Nicator, a general in the army of Alexander the Great, by feeling the youth's pulse as he mentioned Stratonice's name. Antiochus lied about his passion, but Erasistratus learned the truth by his method.

In medieval times and among primitive peoples a method of determining truth by ordeal has always been popular. Among the hill tribes of Bengal a suspect is permitted to attempt to prove his innocence by touching his tongue to a red-hot iron. If he is burned he is guilty. In Africa some tribes require suspects to thrust their bare arms into boiling water. Travelers seeing such an ordeal have reported that scores of persons have submitted to this test without being burned!

The Hindus had a more humane test, psychological in its method. Five suspects had soot rubbed on their hands and were placed in a dark room with a donkey. They were told to touch the donkey with both hands, and if they were innocent the soot would not be rubbed off. Only one man came out with completely sooty hands. He was seized as the culprit, for, reasoned the Hindus, he was guilty because he feared to touch the donkey. Those knowing themselves to be innocent believed that the soot would not be rubbed off.

Physicians and psychologists for years have experimented with scientific methods of recording fear, guilt, and emotional stress. J. A. Larson of the Berkeley, Cal., police department built one of the first American police lie detectors. Prof. Leonarde Keeler, director of the Chicago crime detection laboratory when it was part of the Northwestern university law school, perfected a lie detector called the Keeler polygraph which is now widely used.

The polygraph registers not only changes in blood pressure and respiration but electrical reactions of the body and skin by the use of a psychogalvanometer, named for Luigi Galvani, Italian physiologist, who experimented extensively in the field of animal electricity. When a suspect is questioned the emotional variations from normal are recorded on charts, which may be studied in connection with a list of questions planned and timed by psychologists. In 75 per cent of the cases where guilt was indicated in the course of 14,000 tests, full confessions were obtained.

Often, however, the lie detector is used not to bring a confession from the guilty person, but to uncover information suppressed by witnesses or suspects which might lead toward the solution of a crime. The work of the lie detector in this respect solved a mysterious south side murder first believed to have been connected with the tong feuds of Chinatown.

Mrs. May Wong, owner of a Chinese restaurant, lived in an apartment at 1443 West 63d street. With her lived her niece, Miss Marie Tan Sunji, a pretty Chinese student at the University of Chicago.

On the morning of Jan. 9, 1939, Marie went to her aunt's room. There on the bed was the body of Mrs. Wong. She had been beaten about the head and then strangled. Marie immediately summoned the police.

It was discovered that Theodoro Tan Sunji, brother of Marie and a former partner of Mrs. Wong in her restaurant, had fled the city.

Marie was not suspected, but the police believed that she might possess useful information concerning the crime, despite her denials. She seemed especially reticent about questions concerning her brother. She was taken to the crime detection laboratory for a lie detector test.

Fred E. Inbau

Q.—What is your name? A.—Marie Tan Sunji.

Q.—You are studying at the University of Chicago? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know who killed Mrs. Wong? A.—No.

Q.—You didn't kill her, did you? A.—O, no!

Q.—So far as you know, did your brother kill her? A.—No!

Q.—Did you have coffee this morning? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know who did kill her? A.—No.

Q.—Are you telling the whole truth? A.—Yes.

Q.—Between 3 and 8 o'clock in the morning did you hear any unusual noise in the apartment? A.—No.

Q.—Did your brother have a key to the apartment? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did any one besides yourself, your brother, and Mrs. Wong have a key to the apartment? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Do you enjoy your studies at the university? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know anything about Mrs. Wong's death you have not told the police? A.—No.

The polygraph records, however, showed that Marie was not telling the whole truth and indicated directly just when she was being truthful and when she was deceptive. For one thing, she was making some attempt to protect her brother. It might have been, the experts conceded, that she was unaware of the value of certain clews she was withholding.

"She gives evidence of emotional tension," wrote Director Inbau in his report. "The examination of the record does not indicate that Marie definitely knows who killed Mrs. Wong. The record indicates definitely that she did not kill her and that she is telling the truth when she says she heard no sound the night of the murder. She tells the truth when she says that only she, Mrs. Wong, and her brother, Theodoro Tan Sunji, had keys to the apartment."

Marie was given three more lie detector tests. After the fourth test she agreed to tell everything she knew that might in any way bear upon the case.

"My brother Ted wanted to open a restaurant at 69th and Kedzie, but the Chinese Village wouldn't let him," she said. "He told us he was threatened by the Village, and he and I and Mrs. Wong went to our tong [said to have been the Hip Sings] for help.

"My brother said the hatchet men were after him, but later we were told to fear nothing, because Ted was related to a Wong, and her tong would protect us. But Ted was still frightened, and he went to California with his wife. He didn't think it was safe to stay here.

"A man named Al—Arthur Hue was trying to help Ted by straightening out the trouble. He worked for my aunt and was very friendly with her. On New Year's day she invited him to her apartment. She seemed very fond of him."

Police interviewed officials of the Hip Sing and On Leong tongs. These organizations have carried to America a feud begun 300 years ago in China, but in recent years they have managed to settle their difficulties without violence in most cases. The leaders on both sides said there had been no trouble between them because of Theodoro Tan Sunji.

The police seized Arthur Hue, questioned him closely, and found that he was unable to account for his movements the night of the murder. He confessed. He decided to rob Mrs. Wong following the New Year's day visit, he said, and broke into the apartment thru a rear window. When Mrs. Wong awakened and recognized him he killed her and robbed the apartment.

Hue was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Hundreds of minor crimes are solved by the use of the lie detector, either to aid in producing confessions or to uncover new information needed by the police.

Once officials of a bank wanted to detect from among the bank employés the embezzler of $5,000, according to an incident reported by Director Inbau and Prof. Newman F. Baker of Northwestern university in a paper, "The Scientific Detection of Crime," published in the Minnesota Law Review.

Lie detector tests were run upon 56 bank employés, but instead of discovering one liar 12 were found. Of the 12, nine confessed to embezzlements not previously known to the bank officials.

NEXT WEEK—A story of the work of the Chicago police scientific crime detection laboratory.

Worsted-tex British Lounge Model*

which makes you look taller, fuller chested and slimmer at the hips

The Worsted-tex British Lounge* Model does for a man's figure what streamlining did for the modern automobile. This suit definitely improves the appearance of nearly all men because of the following simple details of designing.

The shoulders are a trifle wider; there is extra fullness of fabric across the chest; the collar sits lower showing more shirt collar; the jacket is longer; the button placement and waistline are lower; the sleeves and trousers are tapered and the lapels more graceful.

The fabric is the kind of worsted you find at fine custom tailors and the tailoring is equally distinguished. All over the country well-dressed men are wearing this new Worsted-tex suit. Try one on in your local Worsted-tex store. You'll be amazed at the change in your appearance.

One Best Beauty Soap

the Costliest Oil blend used for any leading soap

Millions of women know the answer . . . They have made Palmolive the largest-selling beauty soap in the world.

Women in every climate . . . of every type of skin . . . know Palmolive's lather is a thick, quick-cleansing lather. They rely on Palmolive, used faithfully in daily soap-and-water facials and in the bath, to help them to a lovelier skin.

Not Just a Better, but a Different Soap

Now, the reason women prefer Palmolive is that Palmolive is different . . . as different from other leading soaps as its natural olive color is different from their bleached or tinted hues.

The oils with which Palmolive is made are olive and palm oils . . . the costliest oil blend used for any leading soap. These vegetable oils (no animal fats) are the only oils used in the making of Palmolive. And this is true of no other leading soap.

Olive oil has been a prized complexion aid of lovely women since Cleopatra's time. Then, think what this fact means to you: Into the making of each cake of Palmolive Soap go three and a half (3½) teaspoonfuls of olive oil.

Yet, for All its Costliest Oil Blend, Palmolive Costs You No More

When claims of some other soap tempt you to risk a trial, ask yourself if you know what goes into its making. Remember the makers of Palmolive tell you that into its making goes the costliest oil blend used for any leading soap. Remember, too, that for all that, Palmolive costs you no more than the others.

3½ teaspoonfuls of olive oil

GO INTO THE MAKING OF EACH CAKE

Will anything less than Palmolive do for you?

PALMOLIVE
PALMOLIVE
Try Palmolive...NOW!

Drain trouble? Not for you if you

Use Drāno...it keeps drains open!

PREVENT DRAIN TROUBLE before it starts. Avoid the nuisance of slow-running or stopped-up drains and the possibility of big bills.

GREASE, HAIR, grounds, dirt clog drainpipes . . . make water slow up . . . unless you get the Drāno habit. A little Drāno used regularly prevents drains from clogging. If you should forget—and a drain does stop up, then Drāno's churning, boiling action clears away the trouble in a hurry. Drāno won't harm pipes. It's never over 25¢ at grocery, drug, or hardware stores.

Suggests that You PATENT Yours

IN TIME FOR EASTER $6

Footwear Fashions with a future are these by Air Step! For in seasons past, if you wanted "good" patent leather shoes, you could choose only opera pumps or sandals. Now, however, Air Steps have designed many shoes that show the shining beauty of patent leather, and conceal Air Step's patent-ed 'magic' insole — four are sketched above. Our unusually complete size range runs from 4 to 10 — our very moderate price is $6.

McClelland Barclay confesses

Miss Hoff's
Height 5'8"
Weight 117 lbs.
Hips 34"
Waist 24"
Bust 34"
Thighs 19"

"If you want to be slim, why not try the easy Ry-Krisp plan?" suggests Miss Hoff.

To get Ry-Krisp plan for losing about 7 pounds a month—just send penny postcard for

Free Reducing Booklet

Simply state if plan is for man or woman. Address Ry-Krisp, 745C Checkerboard Square, St. Louis, Mo.

"A slim, youthful figure . . . graceful curves instead of bulges . . . that's what makes a woman lovely to look at. And I understand that with the Ry-Krisp plan, any normal person can lose about 7 pounds a month. You just plan your meals from the Ry-Krisp booklet, take a little exercise every day and eat those good 23-calorie Ry-Krisp wafers as bread. When it's that easy to reduce, why should any woman be fat and unattractive?"

McClelland Barclay

Delicious flavor of new Ry-Krisp big hit at Barclay's studio parties

"One of my models who eats Ry-Krisp as part of her stay-slim plan was raving about the grand flavor of new Ry-Krisp," says Barclay. "So I tried it and say! the new wafers are tops. They're the hit of my studio parties. Perfect with my favorite fruit-and-cheese dessert . . . good, in fact, with any food or drink."

Everywhere people are talking about new Ry-Krisp . . . and no wonder! Today these all-rye wafers are crisper, finer-textured, more delicious than ever. And each wafer is scored so it breaks easily into two cracker-like squares. Grand with soups, salads, cheese, spreads . . . and a delicious every-meal bread. Wholesome, too. Supplies vitamin B_1, provides bulk to keep you regular. Try it!

Barclay's Favorite Dessert (shown below): Score orange or tangerine into 8 sections. Peel part way down so skin can be tucked in to form petals. Separate fruit sections. Put cream cheese in center and top with spoonful of currant jelly. Serve as dessert or salad with toasted Ry-Krisp wafers.

NOW, DON'T BE NERVOUS---AS YOU KNOW, I'VE HAD THE RUN OF THIS WHOLE PLANT FOR A MONTH---THEY ALL KNOW ME---
I'M AN "EXPERT" DOING SPECIAL CHECKING FOR OLD WARBUCKS HIMSELF---YOU'RE MECHANICS FROM THE PLANT-- YOU'RE ACTING AS MY ASSISTANTS---IT'S SIMPLE-
THE GUARDS WON'T EVEN LOOK TWICE AT THOSE BUNDLES---BUT DON'T JIGGLE THAT STUFF, OR WE'LL ALL GO TO GLORY---COME ON NOW---EASY DOES IT-
HI, TONY! HI, BILL---MORNIN', PAT---THESE BOYS ARE WITH ME--SPECIAL RUSH JOB FOR MR. WARBUCKS-
SURE-O. K! WE KNOW YOU-
YEAH--I KNOW THE MECHANICS-IT'S ALL O. K.-
HA! EASY, EH? JUST AS I SAID IT'D BE---NOW TO THE POWER PLANT--WOW! WHAT A SURPRISE THIS IS GOING TO BE-
HA! HA! YOU SAID IT, CHIEF-
AH! THE LITTLE GADGET IS PLUGGED IN---I AM QUITE READY---
BUT IF THOSE BUNDLES DO NOT CONTAIN WHAT WE THINK THEY CONTAIN--WHAT THEN, PUNJAB?
IN THAT CASE NO HARM WILL RESULT FROM THE ACTION OF THIS INVISIBLE RAY--AH--THEY ARE AT THE CENTER OF THE OPEN SPACE-------NOW!
HM-M-M-A FEW BROKEN WINDOWS, A HOLE IN THE GROUND, ONE SMALL PUFF OF SMOKE--
AND THAT IS ALL-
BUT THERE WAS A GREAT NOISE---MANY PEOPLE GATHER--IT WERE AS WELL YOU AND I SHOULD VANISH FROM HERE TO AVOID QUESTIONS DIFFICULT TO ANSWER-
HA! HA! PERHAPS THE ASP WISHES ME TO AID HIM TO DISAPPEAR WITH MY MAGIC CAPE?
NO! NO, THANKS, MY FRIEND! THE BACK WAY AND OUR OWN LEGS WILL BE ALL WE NEED TO GO HENCE UNNOTICED, I AM SURE-
QUITE SO-AND WE SHALL NOT SPEAK OF THIS AGAIN--NO NEED TO ADD TO THE GREAT LOAD OF WORRY OUR SAHIB CARRIES-

WATCH! WATCH! WATCH THAT FRONT WALK-THAT'S YOUR JOB. SIT BY THIS WINDOW AND WATCH THAT FRONT WALK!
YOUR WOUND WILL HEAL UNDER MY CARE AS WELL AS THE DOCTOR'S, AND FOR THE SAKE OF BOTH OF US WE'VE GOT TO KEEP THE POLICE OUT OF THIS!
YOU DON'T DARE TELL THE POLICE I SHOT YOU, BECAUSE THEY'RE SEARCHING FOR YOU FOR THE MURDER OF YOUR UNCLE. THAT MAKES US EVEN, EH, SELBERT?
MEANWHILE, AT HEADQUARTERS - -
NOW LET ME GET THIS STRAIGHT. YOU'VE BEEN KEEPING COMPANY WITH MYRNA DEPOOL, GRAND-DAUGHTER OF THE OLD LADY!
THAT'S RIGHT! IN FACT, MYRNA AND I ARE ENGAGED!
YOU KNOW THE WHOLE FAMILY IS UNDER SUSPICION, REVOL. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THEM?
THAT'S WHY I CAME TO THE POLICE. THE OLD LADY WON'T LET ME IN THE HOUSE!
I CAN'T TALK WITH MYRNA. THE GRANDMOTHER HAS EVEN REMOVED THE FRONT DOOR BELL!
I THINK, YOUNG MAN, YOU'RE GOING TO BE A BIG HELP TO US IN THE NEXT FEW HOURS!
ONE THING WE MUST REMEMBER, SELBERT, WE MUST KEEP THIS FORTUNE FOR OURSELVES. UNDERSTAND, OURSELVES! THERE MUST BE NO SWEETHEARTS OR HUSBANDS TO CHISEL IN!
ONE HOUR LATER - - -
YOU'RE WRONG, REVOL, THE DOOR BELL ISN'T MISSING. GO OVER AND TRY TO GET ADMITTED TO THE HOUSE. PAT AND I WILL WAIT HERE AND WATCH.
IT'S REVOL! MY SWEETHEART! I MUST STOP HIM-
OUCH! WHAT WAS THAT?
MY HEAD! OH, MY HEAD. EVERYTHING SEEMS BLACK. I- -I CAN'T BREATHE.
HE'S UNCONSCIOUS! WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM?
HIS PULSE IS BARELY BEATING. HE'S — HE'S DYING, PAT!
HELP ME GET HIM INTO THE CAR!
BUT HE WAS A HEALTHY MAN WHEN HE WALKED TO THAT DOOR. THERE WERE NO SHOTS. WHAT HAPPENED?

THE GUMPS
DADDY-DON'T LEAVE ME-- NEVER, DARLING, NEVER!
IF HER DADDY HAD ARRIVED ANY LATER, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN TOO LATE TO SAVE HER!
JUST AS THE DOCTOR BEGAN TO HOLD OUT A FAINT HOPE OF RECOVERY FOR LITTLE ROSE BUDD, THE AUTHORITIES AT STATE PRISON DISCOVERED THAT THEY HAD MISTAKENLY IMPRISONED KAIN BUDD INSTEAD OF HIS TWIN BROTHER, ABEL (ROSE'S FATHER)—
BUT AT THAT VERY MOMENT IN THE NEARBY STATE PRISON-
I INDUCED HER INTO TAKING A LITTLE BROTH AND NOW SHE'S ASLEEP- THE DOCTOR SAYS SHE'S GAINING-IF SHE LIVES THROUGH THE NIGHT SHE'LL GET WELL-
SHE WILL LIVE, MR. BUDD-
-IF LOVE AND MEDICAL SCIENCE COUNT FOR ANYTHING-AND THEY DO! AFTER ROSE HAS RECOVERED, WE'LL SET IN MOTION ALL THE LEGAL MACHINERY AT OUR COMMAND TO GET YOU OUT OF YOUR DIFFICULTIES WITH THE LAW-
I'M AFRAID THAT WILL BE A MUCH HARDER TASK THAN YOU THINK, MR. GUMP-
TELL ME MORE ABOUT THE CASE-JUST WHY WAS SUCH A TERRIBLE MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE COMMITTED?
THE REAL CRIMINAL WAS APPARENTLY MY BROTHER, KAIN-WHOM I HADN'T SEEN IN MANY YEARS! I WAS PICKED UP BY THE POLICE AND TAKEN OUT WEST-WHERE I WAS IDENTIFIED BY EYE WITNESSES AS THE CULPRIT-
BUT, SURELY, YOU MUST HAVE BEEN ABLE TO FURNISH AN ALIBI? DID NO ONE IN THE EASTERN CITY SPRING TO YOUR DEFENSE?
NOBODY KNEW ME THERE-I WAS FRIENDLESS-I DISCOVERED THE TRUE MEANING OF BEING ALONE IN A BIG CITY-
AT THE TIME I WAS CONVICTED AND SENT TO PRISON, I FOUND OUT THAT ROSE'S GRAND-MOTHER PASSED AWAY-EVENTS PROVED THAT KAIN THEN TURNED UP AND TOOK CUSTODY OF LITTLE ROSE-
MR. BUDD, DID YOU HAVE A PHOTO TAKEN OF YOURSELF IN THAT CITY? DID YOU SEND IT TO ROSE?
DO YOU REMEMBER THE DATE YOUR BROTHER ROBBED THE BANK, MR BUDD?
HOW COULD I FORGET? IT WAS DECEMBER 16TH, 1935-AND IF MEMORY SERVES, IT'S THE SAME DATE I HAD THAT PHOTO TAKEN!
THAT PROVES YOU DIDN'T COMMIT THE CRIME! YOU COULDN'T ROB A WEST COAST BANK THE SAME DAY YOU WERE BEING PHOTO-GRAPHED IN THE EAST!
BY JOVE! YOU'RE RIGHT! HOW STUPID OF ME NOT TO HAVE THOUGHT OF IT AT THE TRIAL! BUT I WAS SO SHOCKED BY IT ALL---
MAYBE NOT, SIR! I SAW ROSE WITH IT A WEEK AGO-
-AND IT HAD A DATE RIGHT THERE ON ITS BACK!!

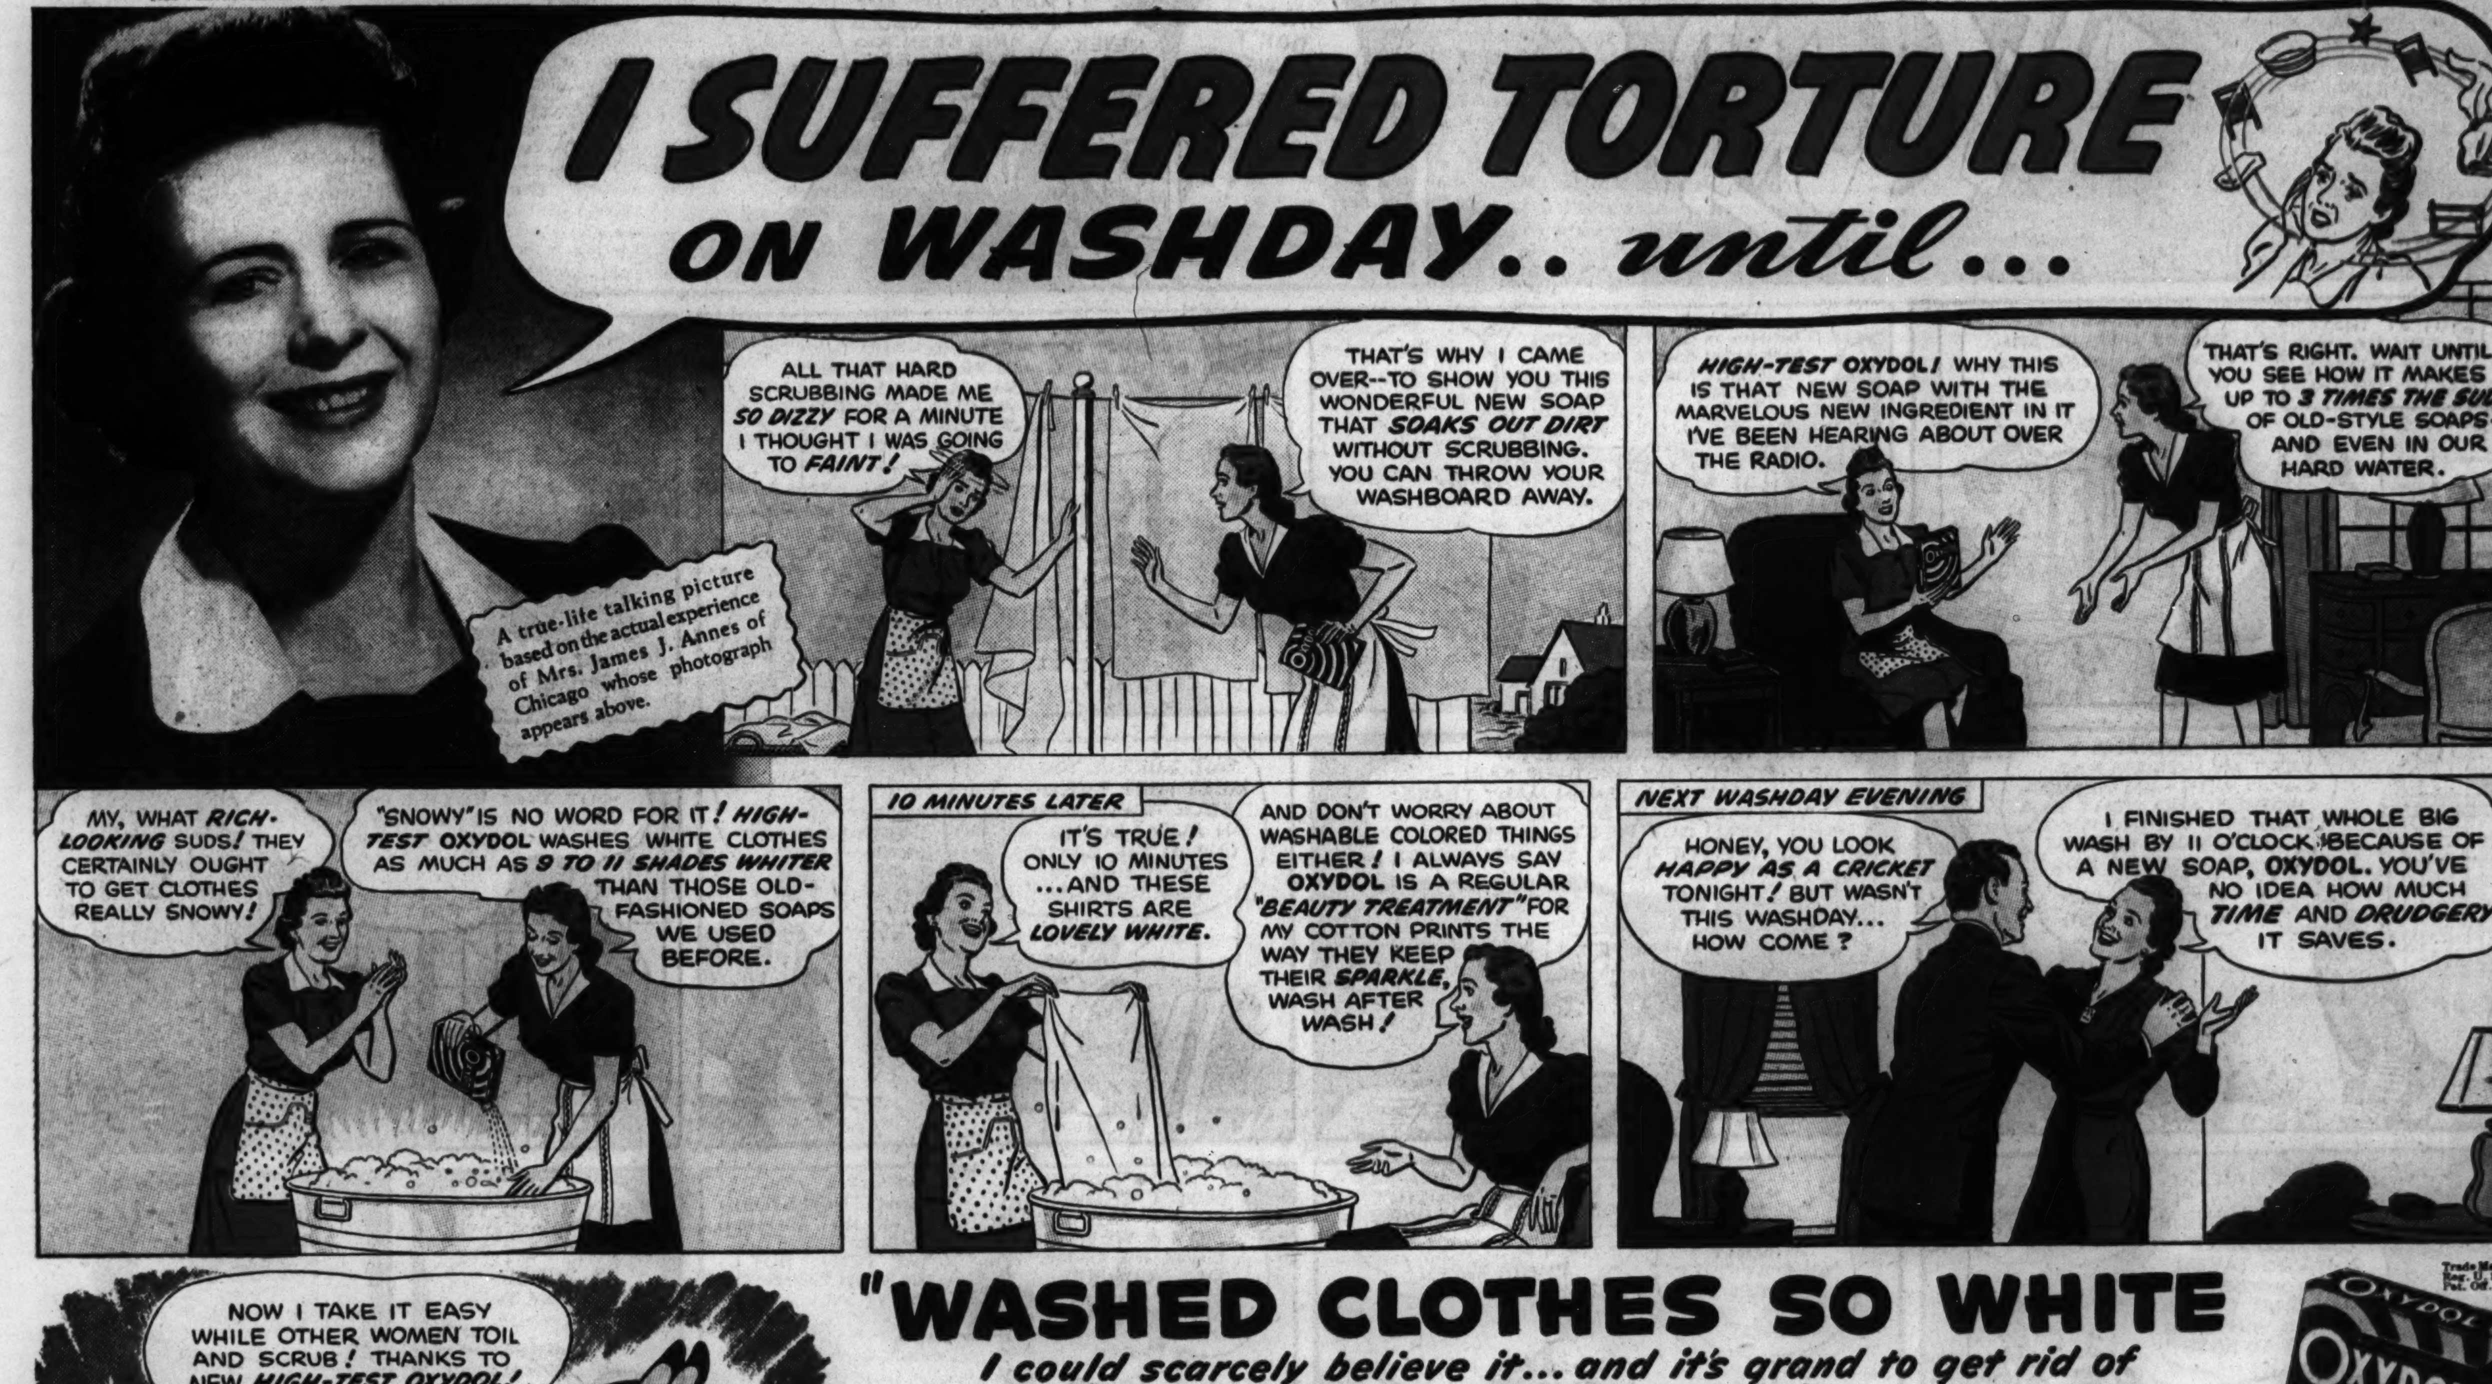
TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by MILTON CANIFF
BURMA, WHY DID KIEL TELL US TO BE READY TO SEE SOMETHING?
...NO KETCHUM, TERRY!... MAYBE IT'S HIS BIG SECRET!
IN ALL THE TIME HE'S MADE ME HIS STOOGE HE'S NEVER LET ME GET CLOSE TO ANY REALLY IMPORTANT STUFF! IT'S ALL JUST TO SATISFY HIS SCREWY VANITY!
YOU'RE TELLING ME!... SHHH! HE'S COMING!
AH, MY TWO FAIR PLOTTERS HAVE THEIR HEADS TOGETHER AGAIN! YOU ARE LIKE ALL THE AMERICANS...FRIGHTENED BECAUSE YOU DO NOT KNOW WHERE THE BLOW WILL FALL NEXT! THIS TIME YOU WILL SEE!
WE ARE NOW IN A PLACE WHERE MY GOVERNMENT IS CONDUCTING PROCEEDINGS! YOU WILL NOTE THAT WE ARE ENTERING A SHIPYARD!...
THIS IS AN INTERESTING DEVICE WHICH IS TO BE USED TO DESTROY THE SHIPPING OF OUR ENEMIES IN THESE WATERS — WHERE CARGO VESSELS ARE NOT CONVOYED! NOTICE THAT THE UPPER PART IS BUILT TO RESEMBLE A RAFT....
... THE STRUCTURE BELOW THE WATER LINE CONTAINS MAGNETIC TORPEDOES!... THIS CRAFT WILL BE LAUNCHED ON THE SHIPPING LANES AND A SOMEWHAT GARBLED SOS WILL BE BROADCAST—AS IF FROM A SINKING NEUTRAL VESSEL!...
... WHEN A SHIP OF OUR ENEMIES MOVES TO THE PLACE INDICATED IT WILL FIND NOTHING BUT THIS SUPPOSED RAFT! THE TORPEDOES WILL BE RELEASED BY THE MAGNETIC PULL OF THE SHIP'S METAL HULL —AND WILL STEER THEMSELVES TRUE TO THEIR DESTINATION!
BUT A SHIP WONT JUST COME ALONGSIDE AN EMPTY RAFT AND STOP LONG ENOUGH FOR THE TORPEDOES TO LET GO!
...THE RAFT WILL NOT BE EMPTY!...
SUSPECTING NO DANGER, THE RESCUE VESSEL WILL SEE A LONE FIGURE ON THE RAFT! IT WILL HEAVE-TO AND PREPARE TO TAKE THE SURVIVOR ABOARD!
... THE TORPEDOES WILL BE DISCHARGED AT THIS POINT! THEN OUR FIGHTER CRAFT WILL MAKE PRISONERS OF THE CREW... IF ANY MEMBERS SURVIVE THE EXPLOSION!....
... BUT HOW CAN YOU BE SURE A CARGO SHIP WILL STOP FOR A SINGLE CASTAWAY?
... DANGER IS NOT EXPECTED HERE—AS IN THE NORTH SEA!... WHEN THE CAPTAIN SEES A LONE WHITE MAN, HE'LL STOP! —ESPECIALLY IF THE UNFORTUNATE CREATURE IS AS OBVIOUSLY ANGLO-SAXON AS YOU!

[ADVERTISEMENT.] [ADVERTISEMENT.] [ADVERTISEMENT.]



I SUFFERED TORTURE ON WASHDAY.. until...
ALL THAT HARD SCRUBBING MADE ME SO DIZZY FOR A MINUTE I THOUGHT I WAS GOING TO FAINT!
THAT'S WHY I CAME OVER--TO SHOW YOU THIS WONDERFUL NEW SOAP THAT SOAKS OUT DIRT WITHOUT SCRUBBING. YOU CAN THROW YOUR WASHBOARD AWAY.
HIGH-TEST OXYDOL! WHY THIS IS THAT NEW SOAP WITH THE MARVELOUS NEW INGREDIENT IN IT I'VE BEEN HEARING ABOUT OVER THE RADIO.
THAT'S RIGHT. WAIT UNTIL YOU SEE HOW IT MAKES UP TO 3 TIMES THE SUDS OF OLD-STYLE SOAPS-- AND EVEN IN OUR HARD WATER.
"SNOWY" IS NO WORD FOR IT! HIGH-TEST OXYDOL WASHES WHITE CLOTHES AS MUCH AS 9 TO 11 SHADES WHITER THAN THOSE OLD-FASHIONED SOAPS WE USED BEFORE.
10 MINUTES LATER
IT'S TRUE! ONLY 10 MINUTES ...AND THESE SHIRTS ARE LOVELY WHITE.
AND DON'T WORRY ABOUT WASHABLE COLORED THINGS EITHER! I ALWAYS SAY OXYDOL IS A REGULAR "BEAUTY TREATMENT" FOR MY COTTON PRINTS THE WAY THEY KEEP THEIR SPARKLE, WASH AFTER WASH!
NEXT WASHDAY EVENING
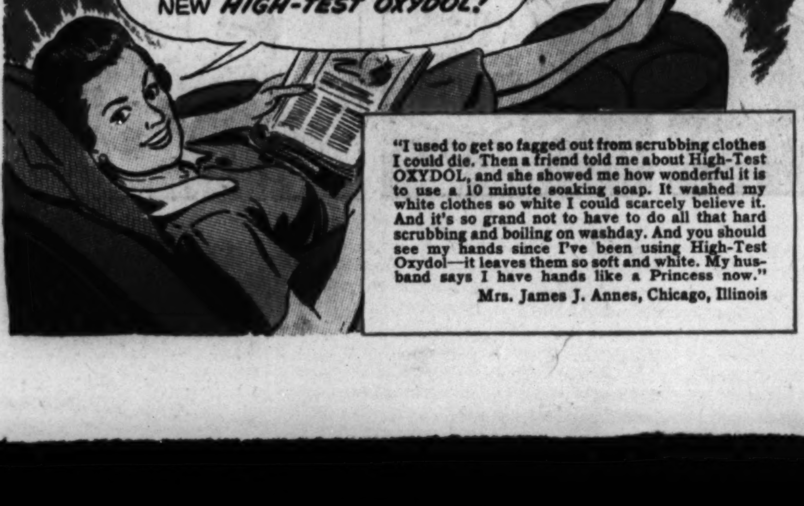
I FINISHED THAT WHOLE BIG WASH BY 11 O'CLOCK BECAUSE OF A NEW SOAP, OXYDOL. YOU'VE NO IDEA HOW MUCH TIME AND DRUDGERY IT SAVES.

A true-life talking picture based on the actual experience of Mrs. James J. Annes of Chicago whose photograph appears above.



NOW I TAKE IT EASY WHILE OTHER WOMEN TOIL AND SCRUB! THANKS TO NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL!

"I used to get so fagged out from scrubbing clothes I could die. Then a friend told me about High-Test OXYDOL, and she showed me how wonderful it is to use a 10 minute soaking soap. It washed my white clothes so white I could scarcely believe it. And it's so grand not to have to do all that hard scrubbing and boiling on washday. And you should see my hands since I've been using High-Test Oxydol—it leaves them so soft and white. My husband says I have hands like a Princess now."
Mrs. James J. Annes, Chicago, Illinois

"WASHED CLOTHES SO WHITE

I could scarcely believe it... and it's grand to get rid of all that hard scrubbing!"

THE minute you switch to new High-Test OXYDOL, you'll join the thousands of women who, with Mrs. Annes, have said good-bye forever to washday torture. You'll get blessed relief from drudgery . . . PLUS the thrill of clothes washed so white you'll hardly believe your eyes. For there's an amazing new ingredient in High-Test Oxydol . . . and here's what this "wonder soap" can do:

(1) It simply soaks out dirt in ten minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Even grimy collar bands come clean with a few quick rubs, a good douse and a rinse. (2) It washes white clothes as much as 9 to 11 Tintometer shades whiter. (3) And cup for cup, it gives up to 3 times the suds . . . suds that stand up as much as 2 to 3 times longer! This isn't idle talk . . . it has all been proved in our scientific laboratory tests against less efficient soaps.

Now before you say, "What about colors?" . . . just listen to this: gay cotton prints, given the equal of a whole year's washing in our laboratory, stayed looking as bright as new! That's how SAFE Oxydol is.

With all these advantages, it's hard to believe that High-Test Oxydol is actually a money-saver. Penny for penny, it goes up to 25% farther than less economical soaps. It can cut your laundry soap bill as much as one-fourth!

So why keep scrubbing your life away? Try this new, safe, "no-scrub" way that puts an end to washday drudgery . . . saves money . . . and brings your white clothes as much as 9 to 11 shades whiter! Get a package of new High-Test OXYDOL today. Procter & Gamble.

PATRIOTS QUIZ ANSWER

ON MAY 10, 1775, ETHAN ALLEN, LEADER OF THE "GREEN MOUNTAIN BOYS," A BAND OF AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS, CAPTURED FORT TICONDEROGA IN NEW YORK BY DEMANDING THE GARRISON COMMANDER TO SURRENDER "IN THE NAME OF THE GREAT JEHOVAH AND THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS." ALLEN LATER WAS CAPTURED IN AN EXPEDITION AGAINST CANADA BUT WAS RELEASED AFTER NEARLY THREE YEARS IN AN EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.
